Student leaders praise God, knock business, advertising

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — God is not dead among some outstanding high school leaders, but American business and advertising in particular suffer from increasing infirmity, says a nationwide survey.

Some 52 per cent of the students polled said they had "very little" confidence in big business and 64 per cent said they distrusted advertising.

But some 86 per cent of the students polled said they thought religion was relevant in U.S. society, up from 73 per cent in 1973. And 80 per cent said they were members of an organized religion, a 10 per cent increase from two years ago.

The 22,300 students polled were among 235,000 listed in the 1974-75 edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students. They were sent the survey forms after submitting biographies for the book. The students, juniors or seniors during the 1974-75 school year, were chosen by principals, teachers and guidance counselors.

Only 3 per cent of the teenagers said there is no God, while more than 75 per cent expressed belief in a personal God or Supreme Being. Seven per cent said they were not sure if there is a God, but 11 per cent said there is "some kind of vital force or spirit in the world."

Solving the nation's economic problems was listed as the nation's top priority for 1976, with development of a comprehensive energy plan second and inflation and unemployment third and fourth.

Pollution and environmental controls dropped to sixth on the list of national priorities, from second in 1970 through 1974, with foreign policy issues placing fifth.

Favoring premarital sexual intercourse ranked the same as last year, according to the survey, stabilizing at 29 per cent — the first year of no increase since 1970, when the figure was 16 per cent.

And the number of students who would live together unmarried also dropped to 18 per cent this year, down from 24 per cent in 1974.

Some 94 per cent of the students said the women's movement has been effective, with 59 per cent of the females and 49 per cent of the males saying the movement has affected their own views of women.

Fifty per cent of the males and 65 per cent of the females also agreed that if both married partners are working, home tasks should be shared equally.

But support for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment dropped from 74 per cent last year to 63 per cent in 1975.

Some 28 per cent of the teenagers surveyed thought there has been an increase in homosexuality over the last decade, but a majority, 69 per cent, said homosexuals have just become more visible.

Fickle winds spreading Baldy blaze; 23,000 acres consumed

WEARY FIREFIGHTERS CATCH A NAP

Two weary firemen rest on cots at a park near Mt. Baldy after fighting the big blaze there. New evacuations were ordered in the area when the size of the fire doubled in a few hours.

Most Baldy area residents still refuse to evacuate

"We ask people to leave, but we can't drag them out bodily."

A spokesman for the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department thus described evacuation procedures in the San Dimas Canyon and East Fork areas Tuesday evening after a shift in the Mt. Baldy fire.

The Sheriff's Department ordered the evacuation of homes in the canyons and as far west as Highway 39 at 4 p.m. Tuesday, when rising winds caused a flareup of the fire which started Sunday afternoon near Mt. Baldy Village and has continued eating west across the San Gabriel Mountain range.

According to a department spokesman, this area was still evacuated this morning with the exception of a few homeowners who refused to leave. The department has no estimate of the number of residents who left.

The Pomona Red Cross Chapter opened its shelter at the San Dimas Community Center again on Tuesday, but most of the inquiries were from people who needed to have pets housed, according to Bill Braden, chapter director.

"We were able to place the animals with the Pomona Valley Humane Society," Braden reported late Tuesday night. He added that the center will remain open today to assist any evacuees from the foothill areas.

Los Angeles County Probation Department camps in the foothills above San Dimas remain evacuated today.

Firefighters in the area are being fed at a base camp set up in San Dimas Park, where food provided by "chow trucks" from the Los Angeles County Fire Department is being supplemented by donations from area merchants and served by fire department auxiliaries from the valley.

Hundreds of "Big Macs" from McDonald's at 2200 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, have been devoured by hungry firefighters and washed down by gallons of donated soft drinks.

An auxiliary member from the county fire department said that McDonald's had added employes to meet the demand for food and had offered to continue supplies "as long as necessary."

Food and drinks for the firemen also came from Tastee Freez of La Verne, Michael J's of La Verne and Albertson's market, Pomona, according to the volunteer.

Fire crews get upper hand at Tujunga; 60% contained

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Capricious desert winds continued to taunt fire crews early today, pushing two massive brush fires, over 100 square miles of valuable mountain watershed.

No serious injuries were reported.

More than 600 persons have been evacuated, at least 20 homes have been destroyed and 30 others damaged since the fires began Sunday.

After a calm day Tuesday in the twin fire areas 20 miles apart in the San Gabriel Mountains north of Los Angeles, sudden gusts of up to 60 miles per hour rekindled several hotspots overnight, forcing the evacuation of several residential areas previously considered out of danger.

The 46,000-acre Tujunga blaze, called 60 per cent contained today, flared anew along its southern flank inside the city Tuesday, nearly burning a sanitarium for the elderly and forcing the evacuation of more than a dozen homes in one previously evacuated canyon where residents had returned home. Firemen said both flareups were put out without injury or loss to property.

Today's forecast was for more 60 m.p.h. winds, but in the opposite direction, to the northeast instead of the southwest.

Before that forecast was issued, a Forest Service spokesman warned:

"If the wind turns around on us, all the unprotected flanks we'd thought were safe will be in danger."

On the other hand, he said, because of the unpredictability of the winds, "It might be just what we need."

Fire fighters were focusing their most intensive efforts on the 23,000-acre Mt. Baldy fire 35 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles, now the second-largest fire of the year after nearly doubling its size in a few hours Tuesday evening.

New evacuations were ordered in both fires Tuesday night as winds began to move fire lines that had been held for nearly a day.

Ford to tell plan for N.Y.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will announce a stopgap plan to aid financially-stricken New York City at a nationally-broadcast news conference tonight.

Aides said Ford would hold the news conference at 4:30 p.m. PST in the East Room of the White House and would open it with a brief statement on the New York situation.

Ford's news conference comes in the wake of an agreement by New York City banks and union pension funds to take over the major responsibility for refinancing the city's massive short-term debt — and at interest rates lower than they have been getting.

Latest threat to village abates as fire moves westward

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A huge brushfire touched off by a Mt. Baldy Village cabin fire Sunday continued its sweep westward in the mountains above the valley this morning, forcing the evacuation of forest camps and cabins on the East Fork of the San Gabriel River.

The fire, according to the latest U.S. Forestry Service report, has consumed more than 23,000 acres of brush from the Mt. Baldy Road on the east to Highway 39 near the East Fork of the San Gabriel River on the west.

Currently the fire is continuing to burn out of control west towards the San Gabriel Reservoir area. The fire early this morning was just north of Glendora on the south flank.

Forestry officials, still watching a hot spot buring above Bear Canyon west of Mt. Baldy Village, reported that manpower in the Mt. Baldy area is being reduced to 250 men this morning. Most of the fire crews have been working on the East Fork of the San Gabriel River where three mountain penal camps were evacuated Tuesday night.

Officials said the main headquarters for the firefighters is being moved to the Rincon Highway area above the San Gabriel Reservoir.

"It's easier to move men and equipment into the area from there," said a forestry spokesmen this morning.

Tuesday night Mt. Baldy residents become anxious when a wall of flames pushed over a small mountain at the top of Bear Canyon and threatened to move down towards dozens of small cabins already evacuated.

West End sheriff's deputies from their headquarters at Buckhorn Lodge, said the fire had moved within 300 yards of one cabin at the extreme west end of Bear Canyon. "It looked like a sheet of flames was coming down the canyon about 8 p.m.," said Sgt. Rod Maniord. "But it suddenly quit."

About 3 p.m. Tuesday, Forestry officials said a Forest Service fire station in eastern San Gabriel Canyon was threatened by flames pushing down the canyon to within several hundred feet of the buildings.

About 50 firefighters and numerous pieces of equipment were moved into the area. Firefighters, seeing the danger to the station imminent, began lighting a series of backfires to burn off brush leading to the station. The backfires were effective and the flames retreated.

Meanwhile, more than 20 engines and men have been stationed along the Mt. Baldy Road and above San Dimas and Marshall canyons as a "strike force" to be put into action in case of a flareup in the area.

Forestry officials said the fire by Tuesday night was 30 per cent contained, mostly on the southern flank, but the gusty Santa Ana winds that had diminished during the daylight hours, began picking up again at nightfall. The winds pushed the main front of the fire westward in huge balls of flames.

The winds are not expected to diminish again until later today, according to the latest weather information.

The Mt. Baldy Volunteer Fire Department said that the cause of the cabin fire in the village that started the brush fire Sunday, was probably a faulty propane heater that exploded. The explosion caused the small cabin, at 30 Bear St. rented by two brothers to burst into flames.

The volunteer firefighters, hampered by low water pressure managed to partially contain the blaze, but embers set an adjacent cabin, owned by Jim Brown, on fire.

Sparks from the Brown cabin fire blew into a hillside on the west side of Mt. Baldy Road and set the brush afire.

A San Bernardino sheriff's arson team was called to the village Monday night by the Mt. Baldy Volunteer Fire Department to determine if the blaze was caused by something other than accident. The arson team reported that the fire was most likely accidental.

Mt. Baldy residents and firefighters in the area praised the services rendered by the Ontario Salvation Army volunteers who, from the fires onset, have been running hot sandwiches, drinks and other items back and forth from the Lower San Antonio Ranger Station to the village feeding the firefighters.

Other volunteer emergency services were active in the Mt. Baldy, San Dimas and Marshall Canyon areas including Kniffen Ambulance Co., who sent several paramedics to the area, and the USC Triage Medical Team sent to the Mt. Baldy Forest Camp. Numerous valley residents offered their homes to any of the residents choosing to evacuate their homes in the wake of the fire.

Water bond issue will go before voters again

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The $35 million water bond issue which was defeated by the valley's voters earlier this month is headed for a second try at the polls.

A group of 30 civic leaders and water officials representing every community on the Los Angeles side of the valley except La Verne approved a proposal Tuesday to bring the bond issue before the voters next June, "because we must have water."

But the group called for a greatly simplified plan, "one that the people could understand," as well as broad participation by every community in promoting the bond issue.

The meeting was held at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona by agency members of the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District "to check the pulse of the community" after an attempt to enlarge the valley's water distribution system so it could deliver Northern California water throughout the valley failed at the polls Nov. 4.

Communities represented included Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas, Walnut, Rowland Heights, Diamond Bar, Glendora and Covina.

Several representatives castigated themselves for losing the election.

"We allowed it to defeat us," Art Cook head of the Glendora water department declared. "We allowed you (the district board) to carry on the campaign without taking an active part in it ourselves. Each of us should have spoken up in our own areas."

C.J. Peterson, manager of the Diamond Bar Water Co. said the proponents of the bond issue had "underestimated the opposition. We had no real coordinated program, either from the district as a whole or from the communities."

Nearly everyone at the meeting had an explanation for losing the election. It included contentions that:

— The proposition was too complicated.

— It became an issue of a choice between clean air or sufficient water.

— There wasn't enough time to educate the voters.

— The north and south projects should have been separated so voters did not think they had to pay for everyone.

— The name of the district was a deterrent. People in the outlying areas thought they were asked to buy a Pomona project.

— The district should have sought the support of construction labor unions, pointing out that more water meant more jobs.

After two hours of discussion, the group agreed to try again, this time with a much larger base of organization.

Under that proposal, each of the participating agencies would form a citizen's advisory committee to explain local needs. And each member agency would send a representative to a valleywide advisory board which would direct the campaign.

The group agreed to play down the needs of the district as a whole and to concentrate on the needs and benefits of each of the areas the district served.

The group's next meeting has been set for noon Dec. 30 at the Castaway.

Approval of the second try by directors of the PVNWD is expected to be merely a formality. The board is expected to meet the early part of this month.

Year-round school stays optional in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Chino's year-round school controversy — the issue that has divided the community for several years — may finally be settled.

School board members Tuesday night declined to place the issue before voters on the March 2 ballot, putting a certain end to any plans for a mandatory year-round program for the 1976-77 school year.

Trustee Pete VanderPoel moved to table "indefinitely" a resolution calling for an election. Board member Al McCombs seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

The action voided a notice of intent approved by trustees earlier "to operate a continuous school program in such a manner as to require some pupils to enroll in the program."

VanderPoel said later that intent of his motion was "not to have the issue come up again."

The district currently offers an optional year-round and traditional nine-month scheduling system, and trustees recently said everyone seems pleased with it. Parents are given a choice of either program, and may transfer their children from one to the other.

Trustees had veen haggling over whether to call an election to decide the controversy, since July. They strongly favored an election at one meeting but postponed action after a public hearing in which most residents opposed it.

Election talk began when the board was confronted by Citizens for Improved Education (CIE), anti-YRS group, which claimed waiting lists had developed in the traditional program.

But waiting lists have since been eliminated. "We've provided a program for everyone now," explained VanderPoel.

"The issue has died down," he added. "If we had scheduled an election in March, there would be polarization again and we aren't interested in that."

VanderPoel claimed, "We're not moving to cram something down people's throats."

Both VanderPoel and McCombs said there was nothing "clandestine" about the motion to table the election.

Supt. Royce Lapp, a strong supporter of year-round school, said he was not disappointed over VanderPoel's move. "It's strictly a political issue," he contended. "I had doubted whether we'd ever operate a mandatory YRS program."

Unruh-Hayden mutual aid deal hinted

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Indications of a political deal for mutual support have surfaced between California Treasurer Jesse Unruh and Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Tom Hayden.

Questioned Tuesday on a report that in return for Hayden's support in liberal circles, Unruh had offered to boost Hayden's candidacy among black and Jewish groups, Unruh said:

"I don't recall that conversation at all. It's possible that someone interpreted it that way, however. If there was such a suggestion, it was theirs then, and I can't remember agreeing to it."

Unruh, who is chairman of Washington Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson's presidential campaign in California, confirmed, however, that he is "not inimical" to Hayden's bid for the U.S. Senate seat now held by California Democrat John V. Tunney.

Last week, Grover McKean, a top political aide to Unruh, recalled Tunney had resisted appearances with Unruh on campaign platforms in 1970, when Unruh made an abortive run for California governor and Tunney was elected to the U.S. Senate by about half a million votes.

Asked if Tunney's lukewarmness had any bearing on Unruh's potential support for Hayden, Unruh replied: "Oh, of course not! That would be very petty, wouldn't it?"

But Unruh recalled Hayden's father-in-law, actor Henry Fonda, "did help me in 1970."

Unruh attended a $125-a-person fund-raising dance here last Friday night that also attracted some Hollywood celebrities.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Sarge, a police dog with the Vancouver Police Dept., is recuperating after being run over by a speeding car and dragged almost five blocks. He suffered a fractured rear leg, a front leg scraped to the bone and numerous body scrapes. Minutes before he was run down, Sarge had sniffed out a suspected thief in a flower bed. When he recovers, he will retire as the pet of his handler, Tom Carroll.

Mayor says he OKd reward

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Tom Bradley has testified he authorized a $45,000 reward to a man who tipped off authorities about the scheme to cash $3.5 million in stolen city checks.

Bradley told the jury Tuesday in the trial of motel operator Joyce Lewis that he had discussed the reward with Capt. Clayton Anderson of the county district attorney's office.

"I told Capt. Anderson to try and get the information for $25,000, but I said we would go as high as $50,000," Bradley testified.

Lewis, 44, is charged with 12 felony counts of conspiracy, forgery, grand theft and perjury.

Two men have pleaded guilty in the case and been sentenced to state prison and a third man is in custody in Puerto Rico.

But Bradley said he believes one or more persons still working in city government may have helped in the scheme.

Claremont tables plan to vacate two streets

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council Tuesday night tabled a request by the Claremont Colleges that the city vacate 12th Street between Dartmouth Avenue and Mills Avenue, and Mills Avenue between Foothill Boulevard and Sixth Street.

The council followed the recommendation of city Planning Director Donald G. King who asked that the matter be tabled until the Planning Commission has approved a parking and traffic circulation plan which would assure that vacating the two streets would not have an adverse impact on the residential areas adjacent to the colleges.

Public Works Director Paul E. Cook estimated that 80 per cent of the traffic using Mills Avenue and 90 per cent of the traffic on 12th Street is college-oriented and would continue to use those streets after they are vacated.

Two persons protested the proposed vacations because of potential growth north of Foothill Boulevard where future residents would use Mills Avenue to get to the San Bernardino Freeway or to go to Montclair Plaza.

John Tessier, 1948 Pembroke Court, off Mills Avenue, said that he and five neighbors all use Mills Avenue for work and shopping.

"I object to the closure. It denies me the right to use the streets as a taxpayer," Tessier said.

Ted Garner, Claremont businessman, also objected to the proposed closure of the street to the public, and stressed that the plan of having drivers use Claremont Boulevard instead of Mills Avenue "will not happen."

"A lot of people will use Indian Hill Boulevard instead," Garner said. "The colleges have lived with Mills Avenue for many years. They have created this problem themselves by straddling Mills for a purpose."

Garner suggested an underpass or overpass on Mills Avenue.

Joseph Platt, president of Harvey Mudd College, told the council there are 12,000 pedestrian crossings of Mills Avenue every day.

"We are not eager to have pedestrians and vehicles mixed up," he explained.

"We are trying to move much college traffic away from cars to bicycles and pedestrians."

He noted that Mills Avenue would become a pathway instead of a road south of 12th Street.

Mills could still be used for emergency vehicles and delivery trucks south of 12th Street, Platt said.

With the vacation of Mills Avenue, "we would like to have one extended campus," Platt explained.

To a suggestion by Councilwoman Eleanor Cohen for a three-month temporary closure of Mills Avenue, and a traffic count before and after the closure, Platt said a temporary closure would be "advantageous to all."

Jack Albrecht, associate provost to the Claremont Colleges, stressed that Mills Avenue was declared a secondary street in 1955, and that Claremont Boulevard was put on the city's general plan in 1957.

Councilman Frank Hungerford said he was not adverse to vacating the streets, and moved to table the item. The motion carried 4-0.

American Bakeries Co. files suit against sugar makers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There has been price fixing of sugar since the 1950's, American Bakeries Co. of Chicago alleges in an antitrust suit against 11 sugar companies.

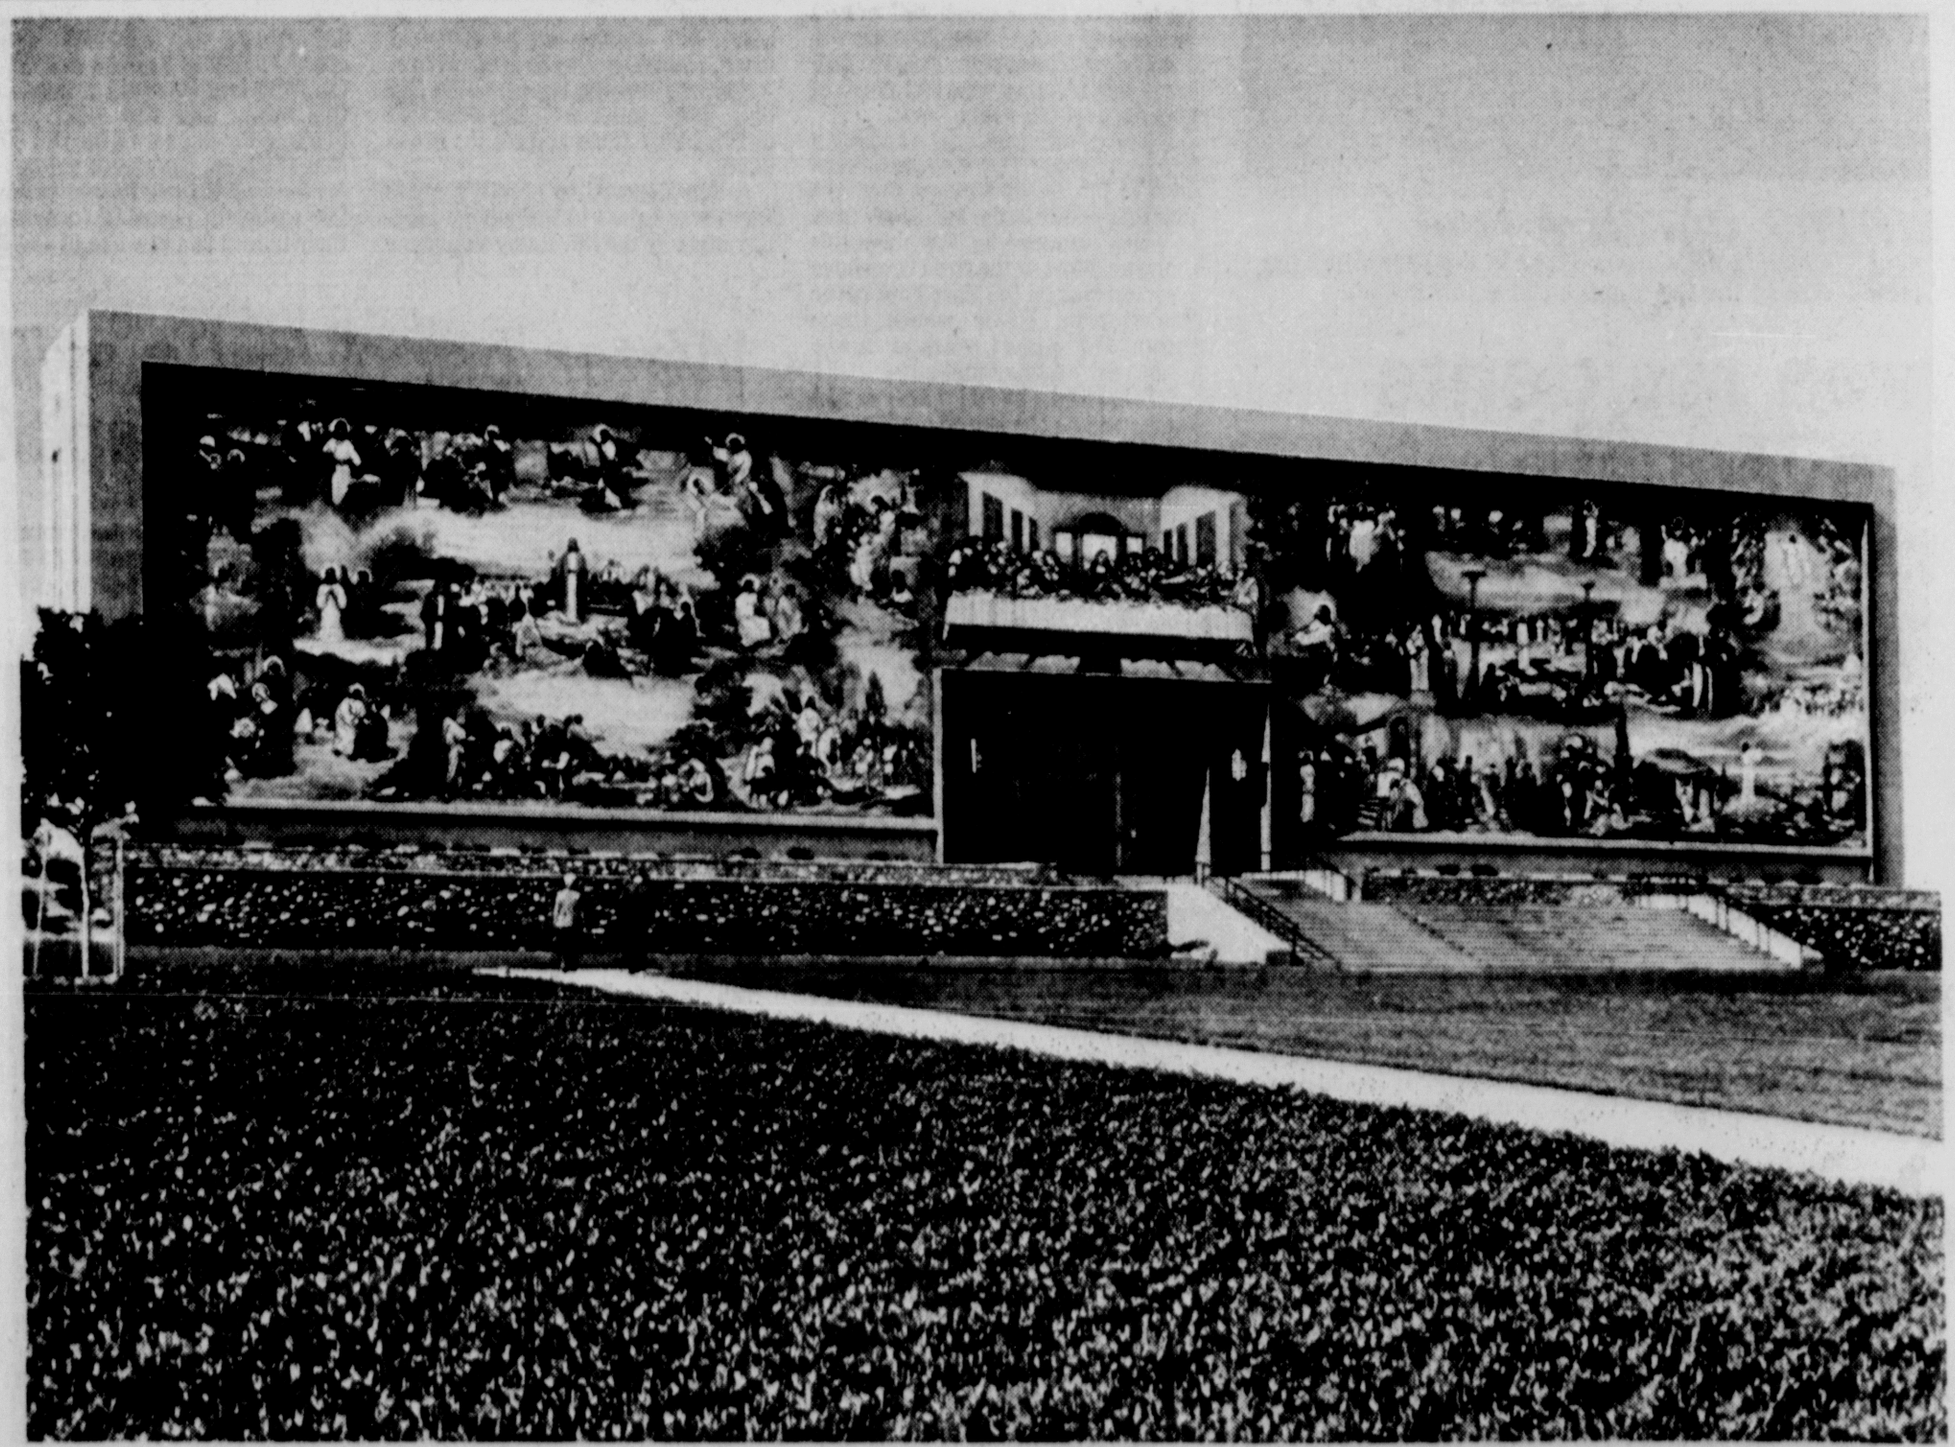

In a U.S. District Court suit filed Tuesday, the firm asked the court to find a violation of antitrust laws and to award unspecified actual damages trebled under law.

Claiming that the alleged violations caused it to pay more for sugar, the nationwide bakery firm said it bought $43 million in industrial sugar from the 11 companies from 1968 through June, 1975 — and pobably more than this when purchases through brokers were added.

The suit alleged that starting in or before the 1950's and continuing at least through 1972, the defendants and others conspired to restrain trade in refined cane and beet sugar starting from the 1950's through at least 1972.

It claimed they agreed and acted to fix and raise base prices of sugar; fix prepaid freight applications; eliminate, reduce and prevent giving of allowances to customers; and fix, maintain and stablize the effective selling price of refined sugar.

The complaint also claimed the alleged conspirators had fixed sugar atnon-competitive levels.

The world's largest religious mosaic.

The size alone is breathtaking. But the scope is even greater. Many of the world's best known and best loved religious paintings combined in a single, eloquent story—the story of Christ's life, in 26 scenes.

Although all are awed by this masterwork in Venetian glass, many are surprised by it. They think it's unusual to find great art existing side by side with a mortuary and a mausoleum. We agree. It is unusual. But it's the very essence of Forest Lawn.

We invite you to view our art. And our unsurpassed facilities for above ground burial. We think you'll agree that our new mausoleum is every bit as impressive as the great works of religious art that grace the grounds here at Forest Lawn.

NIGHT GLOW Flames burning across the mountains north of valley cities created a spectacular sight in the night sky. Increased winds Tuesday night whipped the fire closer to homes in San Dimas Canyon and the East Fork areas forcing evacuation of some foothill sections.

N.Y. unions ease debt crisis; city taxes are hiked

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York City's major banks, city employe union leaders and the state legislature have taken painful new steps designed to convince Washington that the city deserves federal help. There are indications today that President Ford may now respond favorably.

As part of Gov. Hugh Carey's $9.4 billion plan to end the city's prolonged fiscal crisis, the banks and union pension funds agreed Tuesday afternoon to take over the major responsibility for refinancing the city's massive short-term debt — and at interest rates lower than they have been getting.

In a late-night session here, the state legislature imposed a $200 million increase in city taxes and voted to require city workers to contribute to their pensions.

And in Washington, Ford administration sources told The Associated Press the White House would soon announce, perhaps today, that Ford now favors federal aid to avert default. Default, the equivalent of municipal bankruptcy, could come as early as next week without federal assistance. Several reports said Ford's plan would provide up to $2.5 billion in loans or loan guarantees.

That would complete the last piece of the Carey plan. And it would provide a middle ground between previous state and city pleas for massive federal help and Ford's rejection of any plan that would "bail out" the city from the consequences of its long record of deficit financing.

Ford administration officials told the state during long negotiations on a save-the-city program that they could consider nothing more than short-term aid to help the city maintain "vital services."

State officials chose a $2.5 billion figure for federal assistance because that would do no more than provide for the city's "seasonal borrowings," borrowings which any government makes to maintain an even cash flow in the face of irregular tax and aid payment schedules.

City employe pension funds would make new investments totalling $2.5 billion in borrowings for the city, and convert another $1.15 billion in short-term city notes into state Municipal Assistance Corp. longterm bonds at lower interest rates.

Levi wants King killing reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has asked top Justice Department officials to review the FBI investigation of the death of Martin Luther King and to make a recommendation about reopening the probe, a department spokesman said today.

Levi took the action on Monday in the wake of testimony before the Senate intelligence committee that the FBI, during the regime of the late director J. Edgar Hoover, carried out an extensive campaign to destroy King as a civil rights leader.

The spokesman quoted Levi as saying that he asked assistant attorneys general J. Stanley Pottinger and Richard L. Thornburgh "to review the file and to recommend to me whether the investigation should be reopened."

Spotlight on valley crime

Wounded student lucky, police say

An 18-year-old Pitzer College student who was shot three times outside a dance in Holden Hall late Friday is lucky to be alive, Claremont police said.

The student, Juan Basilio Pina, has been hospitalized since the shooting and was reported in satisfactory condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Pina was shot in the temple, in the cheek and in the hand. The two bullets which struck him in the head coursed downward and lodged in his neck. The third passed through his hand and lodged in his arm.

Police recovered one bullet, which appeared to be .38-caliber. The reason the shots did not kill Pina, they said, may have been that the cartridges were under-loaded with gun powder. Officers said witnesses told them that the shots did not sound very loud.

Meanwhile, the investigation has continued but no new arrests have been made. Four young Pomona men, arrested soon after the incident, were released without charge.

Police said the shooting was the result of nonstudents trying to crash the party, a birthday celebration for student Rosie Contreras.

A CLAREMONT man who recently underwent surgery was beaten and kicked Tuesday night by a youth who invaded his home and robbed him.

The victim, Benjamin Clarkson Sanford, 69, said the youth knocked on his door at 519 Geneva Ave., asked "Is the Johnson family here?" and shoved his way inside.

Then he knocked Sanford down and kicked him as he lay on the floor before going through his pockets and taking his wrist watch. The robber also took a camera and radio before ripping the telephone wire from the wall and fleeing.

Sanford underwent stomach surgery two weeks ago, authorities said, and was recuperating. He was taken to a hospital for examination after the attack, they reported. It was the second such incident to in Claremont in the last two weeks.

Sanford's attacker was described as a Negro about 17, 5 feet 7 wearing a short-billed cap, a dark tanker jacket and dark trousers. He had a round face.

Two teen-age CLAREMONT girls told police early Monday that they were kidnaped and raped in Pomona by two youths who forced their way into their cars.

The victims, 17 and 19 years old, said the youths got into their car when they stopped at a drive-in restaurant at Towne Avenue and Arrow Highway late Sunday night after getting off work a few minutes earlier at a Claremont restaurant. They said the youths warned that they had a gun, but no gun was seen during the incident.

The victims said they were forced to drive to an abandoned house at 2336 Lovejoy St. where they were attacked in the backyard. Then the youths robbed them of $22 before allowing them to leave.

Both youths were described as Negroes between 17 and 18 years old. One was 5 feet 10, weighed 145 pounds and wore a dark, nylon jacket, small brimmed hat and dark, baggy trousers. The other was 5 feet 8, 140 pounds and wore a dark plaid shirt, blue jeans and had an afro hairdo.

Portugal army revolt ends

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A pro-Communist revolt in the armed forces appeared to have collapsed today as commandos and armor loyal to President Francisco da Costa Gomes forced the surrender of rebel units and set up barricades around Lisbon.

A leftist military policeman was killed in a clash in Lisbon and a Communist trade unionist was shot dead by four anti-Communists in Oporto in the north.

Military authorities said holdout rebel paratroopers and airmen who had seized the Montijo air base across the Tagus River from the capital were "negotiating their surrender."

Rebels at three other air bases seized Tuesday surrendered during the night, apparently without bloodshed.

The last serious resistance ended shortly before noon when officers of the Lisbon Light Artillery Regiment arrested their commander, Maj. Dinis Almeida, a leading radical in the armed forces, and then offered no resistance to a loyalist tank column.

A government official said only "pockets of resistance" remain to be mopped up among marines at the Almada naval base near Lisbon.

Officers at Copcon, the headquarters of all operational forces in the Lisbon region headed by pro-Communist Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, said the command had been dissolved on orders of Costa Gomes.

However, there was no official confirmation of this.

A number of leading left-wing officers were reported under arrest.

A government spokesman said earlier that Carvalho, the leading military opponent of the moderate left government, had been stripped of all his posts but was not under arrest.

Premier's son flees Laos—'too unsafe'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The second son of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the premier of Laos, swam across the Mekong river before dawn today and asked for refuge in Thailand, the governor of the border province to which he fled reported.

Prince Panya, 32, apparently fled from his country because of the controls imposed on it by the Communist Pathet Lao, which took control of the Laotian government last spring. Prince Souvanna Phouma, an anti-Communist neutralist is still premier but Western diplomats in Vientiane say he is virtually powerless.

"I told my father and got permission from him before fleeing the country," Prince Panya said, according to a report to a Bangkok newspaper.

The newspaper report said Panya told the Thai police the situation in laos is very "unsafe" and his father is under the strict control of the Pathet Lao.

The Harvard-educated prince was director of Royal Air Laos, the national flag carrier, and director-general of the Laotian water works department.

Thai Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj told newsmen he had no specific knowledge of the prince's escape and said he expected "more Laotians would be seeking asylum in Thailand."

The Thai government said more than 50,000 refugees from Laos are currently inside Thailand, the majority of them Meo hill tribesmen who sided with the U.S.-backed regime in the country during the war.

Souvanna Phouma, now 75, has been a political leader in Vientiane for three decades.

Ex-trooper held in slaying of state police chief

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A former state trooper charged with gunning down Oregon State Police Supt. Holly Holcomb underwent psychiatric examinations Tuesday night.

Doctors examined Robert Wampler, 59, Beaver Creek, just hours after he was indicted for murder by the Marion County Grand Jury.

Defense lawyers requested the mental examinations when Wampler was arraigned so it could be determined if Wampler understands the charge against him and is capable of assisting in his own defense.

Circuit Court Judge Val Sloper postponed entering of a plea by Wampler until Dec. 15 so the results of the tests will be available. Wampler is being held without bail in the Marion County Jail.

Wampler was dismissed from the state police force 18 years ago after a trial board heard evidence of charges brought against Wampler by Holcomb, who was a lieutenant stationed in Milwaukie at the time.

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — A scientific study of films showing President John F. Kennedy's assassination tends to rule out multiple assassin theories and support Warren Commission conclusions, photo analysts say.

Experts who examined the films said Tuesday the results cast doubts on a theory that former Texas Gov. John Connally was wounded by a bullet other than the one which first went through Kennedy's neck. That theory suggests that a second assassin might have been behind the presidential limousine.

The photo specialists also said that what some people see as a man with a rifle hidden behind a bush in the famed Zapruder film actually is an optical illusion.

Analysts for the Itek Corp., a firm specializing in optics, photo systems and photographic analysis, studied slides from the original film taken in Dallas by Abraham Zapruder, a clear copy of the entire film and films taken by others on Nov. 22, 1963.

Among their conclusions:

—Jacqueline Kennedy's movements at the instant of the fatal shot to Kennedy's head may have contributed to a violent backward motion Warren Commission critics say indicates he was hit from the front.

—There was no indication Kennedy was shot from the front, casting more doubt on a theory of another assassin on a nearby grassy knoll.

—Connally, seated in front of Kennedy in the limousine, appears to react to being shot more quickly than he later testified. The analysts say this increases the likelihood of the Warren Commission's conclusion that Connally was injured by the same bullet that first hit Kennedy.

—There is evidence of "something moving in a sixth floor window of the Texas Book Depository, from where Kennedy was allegedly shot by Lee Harvey Oswald. No other movement was seen on that floor.

Francis Corbett, a senior photographic scientist at Itek, said in an interview the films were examined using computer and optical techniques unavailable until recently.

Concerning Connally's reaction to being shot, Corbett said five photo analysts independently detected "a rapid change" in Connally a half second before he previously said he noticed being hit, based upon his viewing of the Zapruder film.

"These results cut the gap between Kennedy's first reaction to being shot and Connally's," Corbett said.

This, along with an analysis of where both men were sitting, enhances the Warren Commission's one-bullet theory, he said. Critics say the apparent slower reaction by Connally could indicate he was hit by another bullet.

The analysis also said there was no man in a bush in front of the limousine because the only bush in Zapruder's field of view was five to 10 feet away from him and too small for someone to hide in.

The photo specialists said the focus and optics of the movie camera apparently made the head of a person standing in the open in front of the bush appear inside the bush.

Corbett said the direction of particles from Kennedy's fatal head wound at the moment of impact was analyzed by computer and this "showed all trajectories in a forward direction and no particles going backward.

"So, it would appear that a ballistics expert would conclude that the shot was from the rear," he said.

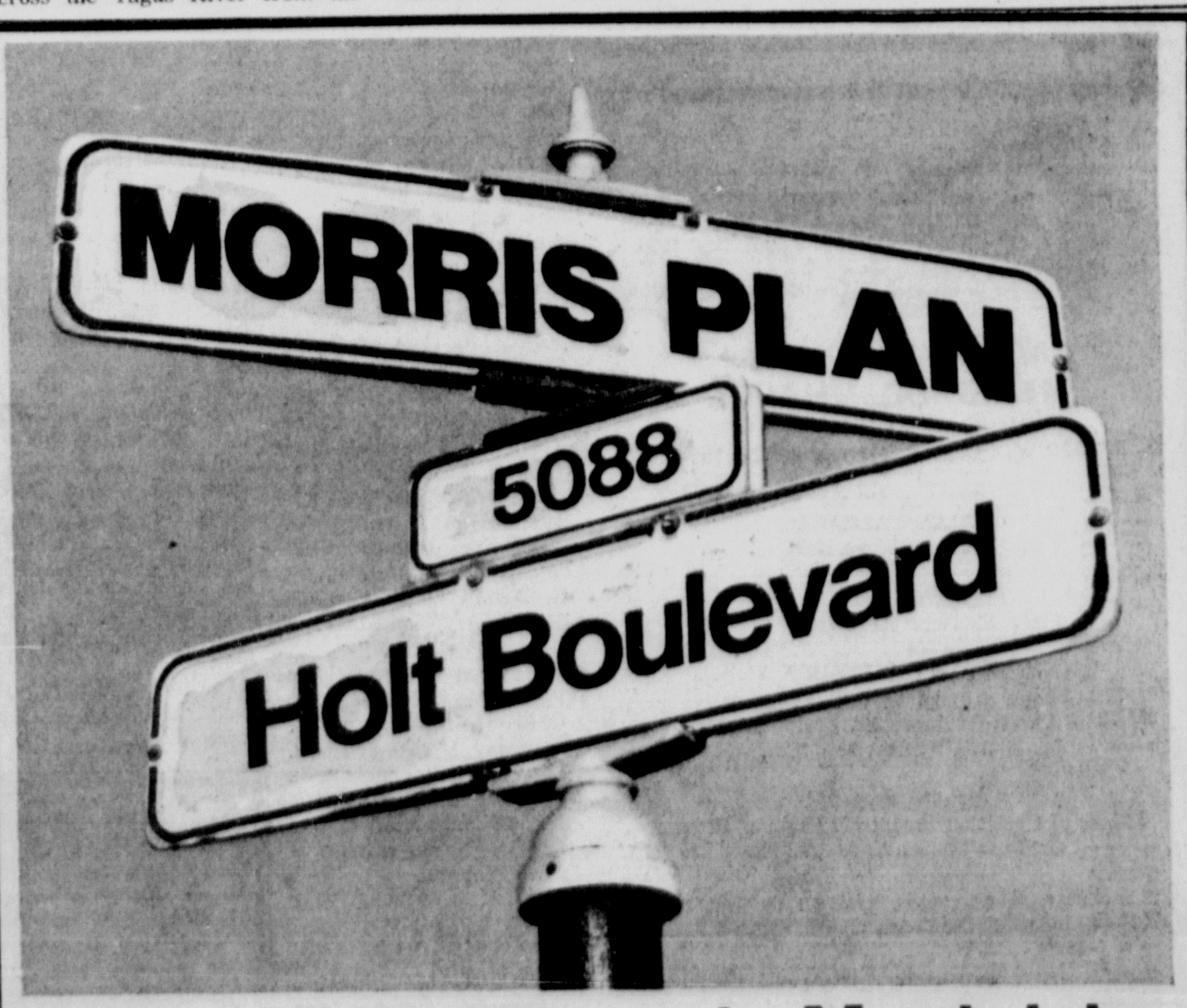

The Zapruder film shows Kennedy moving slightly forward before the explosive impact of the shot to his head, and then moving violently back and to his left.

"We do not see any evidence of an external force hitting him from the front," Corbett said. "The only other moving object near him was her (Mrs. Kennedy).

"No one has ever looked at her before, so we did," he said.

Corbett said the films showed for the first time that both of Mrs. Kennedy's hands were in front of the President at the time of the fatal shot. She was to Kennedy's left and facing him when the bullet hit.

"Our hypothesis is that she had both hands on him at the impact of the bullet and she felt the full impact," he said. "There is an indication she was imparting a force somewhere and the only place we can see is through her hands."

6-inch snowfall hits Kansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As much as six inches of snow fell throughout Kansas and western Missouri through early today, complicating highway travel and snarling rushhour traffic in some of the area's larger cities.

A weather service spokesman in extreme northwest Kansas said: "We've got blowing snow, poor visibility — just plain lousy winter weather."

Snow has already ended from the Texas panhandle northward through the western Great Plains. However, snow continues from southwest Oklahoma through the eastern Great Plains and across the mid-Mississippi Valley. The snow will spread into the Ohio Valley and upper Great Lakes region.

An intense Pacific storm is moving southeastward across British Columbia, and it is expected to bring another surge of winter weather to Idaho and Montana and eventually to the northern Plains.

Heavy snow warnings are in effect from southeast Kansas and in northwest Arkansas and northwest Missouri.

Elsewhere around the nation, skies were clear over the Southeast while rain and snow was scattered through Washington state and western Oregon.

Light snow fell in the Great Lakes region eastward with rain or snow reported in southern New England and New Jersey.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from -9 at International Falls, Minn., to 75 at Point Mugu, Calif.

Chutist lands in Salton Sea

EL CENTRO (AP)— Rep. Clair Burgener's first taste of parachute jumping was a salty one, ending as it did in a splash landing in the brackish waters of the Salton Sea.

"How sweet it is. I want to go again," said the 53-year-old San Diego Republican after jumping from 4,000 feet Tuesday. "It was a fantastic sensation up there, deathly quiet."

Floor clock

The noon mark used in pioneer days was a line drawn on the floor of a cabin which marked one edge of the patch of light that came through an open door or window when the sun was due south. Clocks were set by this mark.

DR. JAMES R. LA ROSE

Claremont man gets USC post

Dr. James R. LaRose of Claremont has been appointed clinical associate professor at USC.

He will serve at the County USC Medical Center as associate dean of podiatric medicine. At the same time, Dr. LaRose will continue his association with Landrey-Lantz-LaRose Podiatry Clinic, 136 E. Artesia St., Pomona.

Dr. LaRose is a member of the staffs of Pomona Valley Community Hospital and Park Avenue Hospital in Pomona and Doctors Hospital in Montclair.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University and the California College of Podiatric Medicine, he formerly served as chief of podiatry at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Vallejo before joining the Pomona clinic a year ago.

College idea clicks with old

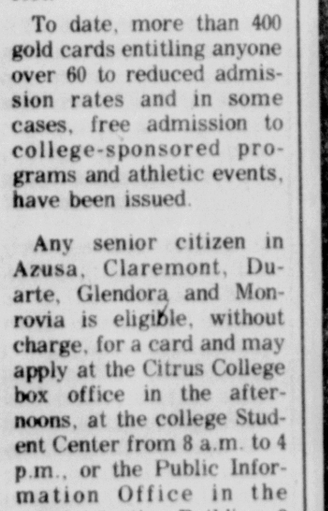

Membership in one of Citrus College's newest clubs, dubbed the Gold Card Club," is growing rapidly among senior citizens in the five cities served by the college district.

To date, more than 400 gold cards entitling anyone over 60 to reduced admission rates and in some cases, free admission to college-sponsored programs and athletic events, have been issued.

Any senior citizen in Azusa, Claremont, Duarte, Glendora and Monrovia is eligible, without charge, for a card and may apply at the Citrus College box office in the afternoons, at the college Student Center from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., or the Public Information Office in the Administration Building, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Nine organized senior citizen groups in the district have been contacted and told about the program.

Students working with the senior citizen groups are Ivan Misner, chairman of the Senior Friends of Citrus committee, Marion Peter, Sherry Hadcock, Phyllis Reaber, Mark Wright, Gidget Dunbar, Tim Ayres and Laurie Rosiello.

SPEAKER — Robert D. Lund, General Motors vice president and chief of the Chevrolet division, will be the guest speaker Dec. 2 at the annual meeting of the Motor Car Dealers Association of Southern California. He will discuss new trends and concepts for marketing. The meeting will take place at noon at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

S.D. senior citizen site will open

The San Dimas Senior Citizen Center will officially open on Dec. 7 with an open house for local residents and officials.

Marie Christianson, president of the local Senior Citizen Club, announced that club representatives, City Council and city staff members and the Civic Beauty Commission will be on hand to greet visitors from 1 to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Christianson reminded valley residents that furniture donations are still needed. Among those items requested are card tables, magazines and magazine racks, pictures, occasional chairs and lamps. The president also said that Christmas decorations are needed to complete the holiday theme in the new center.

Interested persons may contact Mrs. Christianson at 817 Boston Place, Pomona or call 629-8500.

BB gun warning is issued in L.V.

La Verne Police Chief Jack Baker warned today that parents whose children have been causing thousands of dollars in damage with BB guns recently in the community face the probability that they may have to pay if their children are caught.

Officers will take away guns from minors shooting them illegally within the city and they will be returned only if the parents go to the police station and request their return. If damage is reported and linked to a specific minor, either the minor or his parents will have to pay, Baker said.

The chief pointed out that a La Verne city ordinance outlaws the shooting of BB guns by minors without the supervision of an adult.

Nursing home owners turn into performers for patients

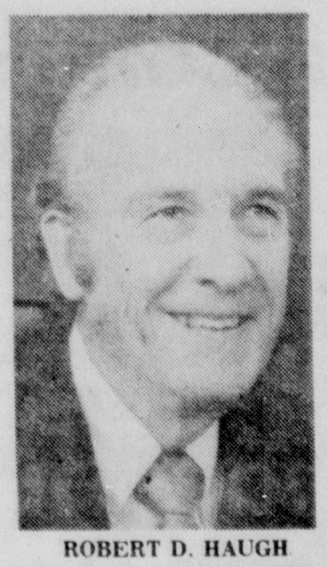

The Rev. A. L. Braswell Sr., and his wife, Verna, founders of Olive Medical Development, Inc., and nine members of their family Tuesday presented hour-long, musical Thanksgiving programs at the four facilities they operate in Pomona.

The facilities are Laurel Park Nursing Home, Towne Avenue Convalescent Hospital, Olive Vista and Esperonza.

Those who performed with their parents were Al and Ruth Braswell, John Braswell, Jim and Joyce Braswell, Art and Carolyn Braswell and Glen and Jeanne Braswell Crume.

Mrs. Crume, musical director of the group, led the singing of gospel, semi-classical and Hawaiian numbers, accompanied by piano, trombone, clarinet and tambourines.

On Oct. 17, the group entertained patients at the Yucaipa Convalescent Hospital, also operated by the family under Olive Medical Development, Inc.

ROBERT D. HAUGH

College chief rehired

Robert D. Haugh, president of Citrus College since 1967, has had his contract extended for an additional four-year term.

Haugh's contract was extended to July 1980 by the trustees at the November meeting. The action was unanimous.

Prior to assuming the presidency of Citrus, Haugh was president of Glendale College for eight years. He also held the position of dean of men and dean of student activities at Pasadena City College.

Haugh received his B.A. degree in 1935, M.S. in 1949 and, doctorate in education in 1956, all from USC. He is chairman of the USC Alumni Scholarship Program.

The college president was recently selected to receive the USC Alumni Service Award for outstanding achievement.

Haugh and his wife reside in Monrovia.

Mazda comes up with top mileage car

DETROIT (AP) — Mazda, whose fortunes sagged because of the poor fuel economy of its rotory engine cars, has introduced a new, piston-engine model which tops all 1976 cars in the mileage sweepstakes.

The Environmental Protection Agency released figures this week showing the mileage of the mini Mazda Mizer, a Japanese import, at 42 miles per gallon of gasoline on the highway and 32 m.p.g. in the city, for a weighted average of 35 m.p.g.

Previously, the Chevrolet Chevette, Datsun B-210 and Subaru shared top mileage honors with a combined highway-city rating of 33 m.p.g. Those figures, released in September, put an American-made car at the top of the fuel economy sweepstakes for the first time.

Several weeks ago, the EPA gave the 1976 rotary-powered Mazdas a combined city-highway mileage rating of 22 to 23 m.p.g. That figure represented a 50 per cent gain over the mileage of Mazda's 1975 models.

The Mizer figures showed a better than 50 per cent gain over the mileage ratings for Mazda's rotary-engine cars, which have accounted for 86 per cent of the firm's sales in this country in 1975.

With the Mizer, Mazda expects its piston-engine cars to account for 40 per cent of its U.S. sales in 1976. The firm's other piston-engine car, the 808, is rated at 21 m.p.g. in the city and 30 m.p.g. on the highway.

EPA combined mileage ratings are based on estimates that 55 per cent of all driving is done in the city and 45 per cent on the highway.

Mazda, which became one of the hottest-selling U.S. imports in the early 1970s, suffered a sharp decline in sales two years ago when EPA tests showed the rotary engine consumed 50 per cent more fuel than a comparable piston engine.

TB cases rise 10% in L.A. County

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 10 per cent increase in the number of tuberculosis cases in Los Angeles County is being blamed in a county report on the waning emphasis on public health following the creation of a single Department of Health Services.

The report, released Monday by the Public Commission on County Government, noted the increase in Los Angeles County tuberculosis cases since 1970 occurred when the incidence of the disease was on the decline in most other U.S. cities.

The report said the de-emphasis on preventive health measures, following the 1972 merger of four health-related county departments, also could be a factor in the drop in immunizations for childhood diseases and the rise in venereal diseases in the county.

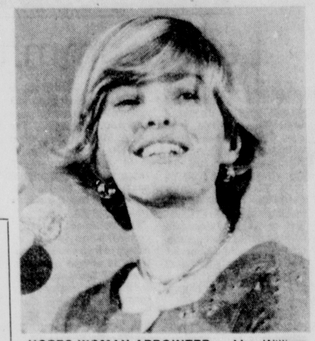

The Department of Health Services, created by the merger of the Hospitals, Public Health, Mental Health and County Veterinarian departments, has a budget this year of $650.95 million, with nearly 24,000 budgeted positions.

Department director Liston Wetherill predicted a special committee formed to study the aftereffects of merger will determine that county health services have not suffered.

The report noted that a plan to divide the county into five fairly autonomous health regions has not yet been implemented fully and mental health services in particular continue to be provided physically separate from other health centers.

The report noted that the Board of Supervisors-appointed Mental Health Advisory Board "has steadfastly resisted the merger and still publicly opposes it."

"Many mental health specialists feel that a merged department would downgrade these approaches (prevention) in favor of hospital treatment, and now believe that their fears have been confirmed," the report said.

Med students trying to halt tuition hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — turb" Medical students at a number of schools across the nation are trying to organize in their efforts to halt tuition increases that at some schools put admission costs 50 per cent higher than last year's.

The focus of the students' dissatisfaction is on Washington where a group of medical school students have filed suit in an effort to halt a tuition increase at the George Washington School of Medicine.

A national organization of medical students, the American Medical Students Association, is voicing its support for the lawsuit. The group of students claims the school is relying solely on higher tuition to ease financial pressures.

On other campuses, medical students are attempting to organize. At the State University of New York School of Medicine in Buffalo, students are trying to develop a statewide lobbying campaign. At Boston University, second-year medical student Dereck Taylor said students have started a letterwriting campaign to their legislators.

Lawyers for the George Washington medical students appealed Friday in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to reverse a lower court decision rejecting their claim that the school's tuition hike was a breach of contract. They claim statements in the school catalogue promised only a $200 annual increase through 1979.

Instead, school tuition jumped $1,800 in 1975-76 to $5,000 annually.

In the lower-court ruling, Judge DeWitt Hyde of the D.C. Superior Court ruled Sept. 11 that the medical school is not obligated to restrict tuition, saying the increase was "an administrative decision that the court should not dis-

U. of Mass. campus to get JFK Library

BOSTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy was a public man who loved the sea. For those reasons, and others, the John F. Kennedy Library and Museum will be built at the University of Massachusetts campus on Boston Harbor.

There had been plans to build the Kennedy Library and Museum near Harvard University, the late president's alma mater, but the objections of local residents scuttled those plans.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told a news conference this week the University of Massachusetts site was the unanimous choice of the Kennedy family and trustees of the library corporation.

"President Kennedy was very much a public man and a public figure, he said. "It is appropriate that the museum and archives that bear his name be housed in a public place."

He said the school's site on Boston Harbor was important to the family and the trustees in view of John F. Kennedy's close association with the sea during his lifetime. One requirement, he said, was the building be "as close to the water as possible."

The decision ended 12 years of squabbling and threatened legal action.

Community groups in Cambridge, across the Charles River from Boston, had complained the museum would draw up to one million persons annually into the already congested area, adding to pedestrian and auto problems.

L.A. solon charges payoff in land deal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The purchase of a downtown parcel for $1.4 million by the Community Redevelopment Agency was a "payoff" to prevent threatened lawsuit against the central city renovation plan, Councilman Ernani Bernardi has charged.

Bernardi, the only councilman to vote against the controversial renewal plan, said Monday the purchase was a "prime example" of the agency's ability to circumvent control by the city council and the mayor.

The proposed 255-block downtown redevelopment project — the nation's largest — has been under attack since the council approved it on a 12-1 vote July 18. Bernardi has filed one lawsuit challenging the council's determination of blight in the central city area and another suit challenging the environmental impact report of the redevelopment agency.

At a City Hall press conference, Bernardi said the agency broke a "legal commitment" when it purchased the property for a new fire department headquarters site.

"The action was taken quickly, quietly and done ... to buy off the threat of a lawsuit by a major property owner in the downtown project area," he said.

Redevelopment administrator Richard G. Mitchell said Bernardi was "all wrong and (is) just trying to create more problems."

The property was bought for $1,437,000. Bernardi claimed that price was $500,000 over the market value determined by the county assessor.

On the other hand, Mitchell said the agency felt the price was realistic and added that it was "ridiculous to call the transaction a payoff — it was no such thing."

Bernardi added that he will ask the council to rescind an ordinance approving the redevelopment plan and to have the question placed on a citywide ballot.

Also, the councilman said the council should make itself the agency in charge of downtown redevelopment and remove the present agency commissioners and staff.

Tunney defends hike in natural gas price

LOS ANGELES (AP)— "You've got to encourage entrepreneurs in our society to go out and look for that gas," said Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., advocating higher natural gas prices as the only way to ease the energy shortage.

Addressing the California Council of Environmental and Economic Balance, Tunney said Monday that without higher prices, "you're not going to be able to encourage private capital to move in."

Replying to allegations that oil companies had capped a number of natural gas wells anticipating an increase in natural gas prices, Tunney said preliminary information obtained by the General Accounting Office indicated "no more than 3 trillion cubic feet (of natural gas) has been withheld and that represents about 7 per cent of one year's (national) consumption."

Charges of natural gas well capping, particularly in the Gulf of Mexico, had been made earlier by Leo S. Wyler, chairman of TRE Corp., an aerospace firm, and an organizer of Energy Action Committee, formed to oppose alleged exploitations by oil companies.

Joyce Brothers

Love, commitment

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I don't understand what's wrong with me. I keep falling in love with men who run when I start to be honest about my feelings. And I don't look for this particular type of man. They always seem warm and friendly in the beginning and I don't know they're going to react as they do until rather late in our relationship. I'm so frightened of this now that I feel I'm never going to tell another man I love him.

Right now, I have the misfortune of being involved with a young policeman who seems just perfect. My fear is very serious, as far as I'm concerned, because I don't want a love affair with sex and no commitment. We've been living together for three months so why shouldn't I be able to say, "I love you" without having him run away and get drunk? I don't understand this. — A. O.

Dear A. O.: This fear of getting emotionally involved is a very serious comment on our troubled times. Usually, it comes from a fear of being rejected or hurt, so the individual, to protect himself from possible pain, simply withdraws and puts an iron fence around his emotions. When anyone fences off his feelings, he's very apt to become physically as well as emotionally ill. The person is really robbing himself of joy and fulfillment, especially in matters of love.

Psychoanalyst Herbert Hendin surveyed a number of college students and found that a great many were in flight from emotion. He writes of this in his book, "The Age of Sensation." He feels that for both sexes in this country, caring deeply for anyone is becoming synonymous with losing. Men want to give less and less and women see the demands men make as demeaning. The point that both sexes seem to miss is that commitment and involvement mean sharing and mutual sacrifice. Without this, love never has the soil in which to grow.

One result of this fear of commitment is an increase in impotence. Impotence is almost always a result of fear and rage. Sometimes a fear of being hurt if one becomes close to another begins in a childhood where parents constantly seem to be injuring each other. This kind of pain may become closely associated with love and what appears to be emotional closeness.

In all fairness to this particular man, police officers do see much more pain than the rest of society. They may begin their careers as well-adjusted idealists and because of the stresses of their work, they may undergo a personality change. They may see so much corruption in their work, that they become cynical, overserious and emotionally withdraw. If this is the case with your friend, you might be wise to give him a little more time to allow for change. If you can be patient and not too demanding for instant commitment, he may gradually want to become more involved when he learns that this doesn't necessarily mean pain. Commitment often means greater pleasure and rewards for both individuals, but this is something that is often hard for the person who's been hurt to learn.

While it's true that most people do follow a pattern in selecting a particular type of individual, often one who will reject love, this isn't necessarily true in your case. Unfortunately, today the person who is willing to risk himself in love and to commit himself may be a rare exception.

Pomona church setting for rites

The First Presbyterian Church in Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Miss Janet Yarborough of Pomona and Steven Siedschlag of Pomona.

The couple was wed by the Rev. Jerry G. Elliott in an evening double-ring ceremony followed by a reception held at the church parlor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Yarborough of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Siedschlag of Pomona.

Miss Julie Yarborough of Pomona was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Gary Nehls of Upland.

Bridesmaids were Miss Jane Edwards of Upland, Miss Cheri Crocker of Pomona and Miss Anita Curtiss of Pomona.

Ushers were Dave Durbin of Etiwanda, Jim Matthers of Pomona and Gary Lilley of Ontario.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Crystal Cove near Laguna and will be at home in Upland.

Childbirth classes will begin

A new series of classes in Prepared Childbirth will begin Dec. 3 at 7:15 p.m. at Inter-Community Hospital at Covina. The classes, conducted by Chris Wied, will consist of eight two-hour sessions. Prepared Childbirth is a method of preparation for expectant mothers and provides them with methods of dealing with discomforts of pregnancy through exercises and good body mechanics. Husbands are urged to attend.

Information concerning the classes may be obtained by calling 213-447-3159.

Booklet available to readers

A new Armour Meat Guide is now available to give consumers basic information on fresh and processed meats.

The 32-page booklet includes easy-to-read charts which recommend time, temperature and cooking methods for preparing various cuts of meat.

Many of the processing methods used in producing hams, sausages and hot dogs are explained.

Single copies of the guide are available without cost by writing to: Armour Meat Guide, Consumer Service Department, Armour Food Company, Greyhound Tower, Phoenix, Arizona 85077.

Bethel 353 sets Dec. 6 installation

The senior princess of Bethel 353, San Dimas, International Order of Job's Daughters, will be installed the 16th honored queen at a ceremony on Dec. 6 at the Masonic Temple in San Dimas.

She is Miss Debbie Arnett, daughter of the Dallas Arnetts of San Dimas. She attends San Dimas High School. Her mother was the 16th honored queen of Bethel 215, Arcadia, 16 years ago and is presently serving Bethel 353 as guardian.

Elected to serve with her for the next six months were: the Misses Terri Brooks, senior princess; Denise Palmer, junior princess; Kelly Querry, guide; and Nancy Walther, marshal.

Miss Arnett has appointed the following members to fill positions: the Misses Lyn Hyatt, inner guard; Diana Martinez, outer guard; Renee Desmond, junior custodian; Susie Moore, senior custodian; Teresa Levotch, first messenger; Linda Levotch, second messenger; Michelle Severson, third messenger; Kitty Dowden, fourth messenger; Lisa Truitt, fifth messenger; Christa Hotaling, librarian; Sally Farmer, musician; Mara Freeman, recorder; Terri Johnston, treasurer; Kathy Minarik, chaplain; Paula Benton, flag bearer; and Lori Levotch, assistant recorder. Choir members are Misses Pam Hamic, Vicki Sliffe, Bernice Cox, Tracy Querry and Kristina Way.

The theme chosen for the installation is "Love is a way of smiling with your heart."

Installing officers for the evening will be: Miss Melinda Brockelmeyer, Miss Hamic, Miss Debbie Moore, Miss Sandy Franks, Miss Melissa Tatalovich, Miss Sandi Detrick, Miss Judy Franks, Miss Linda Chandler.

Davis Leonard, past associate bethel guardian of Bethels 343 and 121, will be soloist. Miss Tatlovich will serve as narrator.

Miss Connie Hotaling and Miss Sheri Lintonen will present the candlelight ceremony. Janet Forbes will attend the guest book and Mrs. Marveen Moore will be official hostess. Ushers will be David and Bryan Arnett and Frank Reed.

Mrs. Arnett and J.T. Dorsey, past associate bethel guardian, will introduce Mrs. Evelyn Simon, deputy grand guardian of California, mistress of ceremonies, and Richard Palmer, member of San Dimas Lodge F&AM, master of ceremonies.

A reception will follow the installation. In charge will be Mrs. Edna Palmer, assisted by Mmes. Vera Johnston, Claudia Boudreau, Danny Hyatt, Libby Minarik, Georgia Farmer, Julia Levotch and Norma Behen.

Turkey care

With kitchen activity at its peak, it's all too easy to sacrifice safe food practices in the interest of speed. Careless food handling can result in sickness. A stuffed turkey can be hazardous under certain conditions but there are a few simple rules to follow as safeguards. Thaw turkey in the refrigerator, not at room temperature. To hasten thawing, place the bird under cold running water, not still water. Warm, moist stuffing is a fertile breeding ground for bacteria. Dry ingredients may be prepared in advance, but moisten them and stuff the turkey just before it goes into the oven. At mealtime, remove stuffing from the turkey and serve it separately. Remove turkey meat from bone before refrigerating.

Neckline hint

Chokers are unflattering for those with short necks. Necklaces that fall in a V-shape or chains that can be lengthened or shortened with adjustable pins work very well.

Hamilton-Kreitz vows exchanged

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. James D. Hamilton have established a home in Pomona following their marriage at the First Lutheran Church in Pomona.

The former Miss Pamela Kreitz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kreitz of La Verne. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. Hamilton of Pomona.

Honor attendant was Miss Kathleen Kreitz of La Verne.

Best man was David Tyner of Fullerton.

Bridesmaids were Miss Melinda Kreitz, Miss Susan Hamilton and Mrs. Linda Hamilton.

Ushers were John Hamilton, Clarence Knutson and Jay Kreitz.

The couple left the reception held at the church for a wedding trip to San Diego and Catalina Island.

BARBERS' BARBER POLE — Dave Guminey of Elkhart Lake, Wis., has converted a silo into one of the world's tallest barber poles. He is planning to convert the 54-foot silo into a barbership.

New stamps being printed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite congressional and legal efforts to halt a planned increase in postal rates, the Postal Service is busy printing new 13 cent stamps that will be needed on first class mail beginning next month.

"The 13 cent rate will go into effect Dec. 28 unless there is some law to the contrary in the meantime," said Postmaster Gen. Benjamin F. Bailar.

The House has approved a bill that would hold the rate increase to 12 cents, but there appears to be little chance that that measure will be used to halt the scheduled price hike.

Mailing a first class letter now costs 10 cents.

"Some people seem to think that because of a bill the House passed, the increase will only go to 12 cents. But that bill hasn't become law and we plan to put the 13-cent rate into effect Dec. 28," Bailar said.

An aide to the Senate Post Office Committee said hearings are not scheduled yet on the House-passed bill. This makes it unlikely the Senate will act on the House bill in time to prevent the full increase to 13 cents on Dec. 28, the aide said.

"It looks like it will be next year before we hold hearings," he said.

Bailar said the Postal Service, which is losing nearly $7 million per day under present rates, needs the new revenue that the increase would bring in. The House bill "from a financial standpoint would just make a bad situation worse," the postmaster general said.

Bailar has announced a series of economy measures that he said would save money without affecting service. In addition, the Postal Service has said it is considering cutbacks in service, including elimination of Saturday mail delivery.

Three lawsuits, which also could affect the planned rate increase, are unlikely to be decided before Dec. 28, court spokesmen said.

Eleven states sued to block the planned rise to 13 cents, contending the planned rate would discriminate against users of first-class mail. And the Associated Third-Class Mail Users filed suit contending the Postal Service's board of governors did not properly approve the present rates.

Hearing dates have not been set for the cases, a spokeswoman for the U.S. District Court in Washington said.

A third case, brought by the Association of Greeting Card Publishers, has not been set for hearing in the Circuit Court of Appeals here, a court official said. This case seeks to overturn the present 10-cent rate and lower it to 3½ cents per letter.

The publishers are scheduled to submit a brief next month with the Postal Service's reply brief due in January.

Stolen violin may hurt his children

ATLANTA (AP) — Benjamin Picone says whoever stole his violin may have stolen his children's education as well.

The violin, a Guadagnini made in Italy in 1781, was worth $60,000, Picone says, and he was planning to sell it to help send his four children to college.

"It was my only valuable material possession," said Picone, who has played the rare instrument for 12 years in the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra.

He says the violin was taken from his car while he was in a cafe after an October concert.

Leaving the violin was a mistake, he admits, especially since his insurance company has said that since the instrument was left unattended it won't pay the $30,000 for which the violin was insured.

"I've lost people in my family and never incurred this kind of trauma," Picone said. "Of course, you expect to lose family members; this you don't expect, and it's been a tremendous blow."

It isn't the first dangerous adventure for the delicate instrument, Picone says.

In 1970 a water main broke in the symphony's locker room, soaking the violin for eight hours.

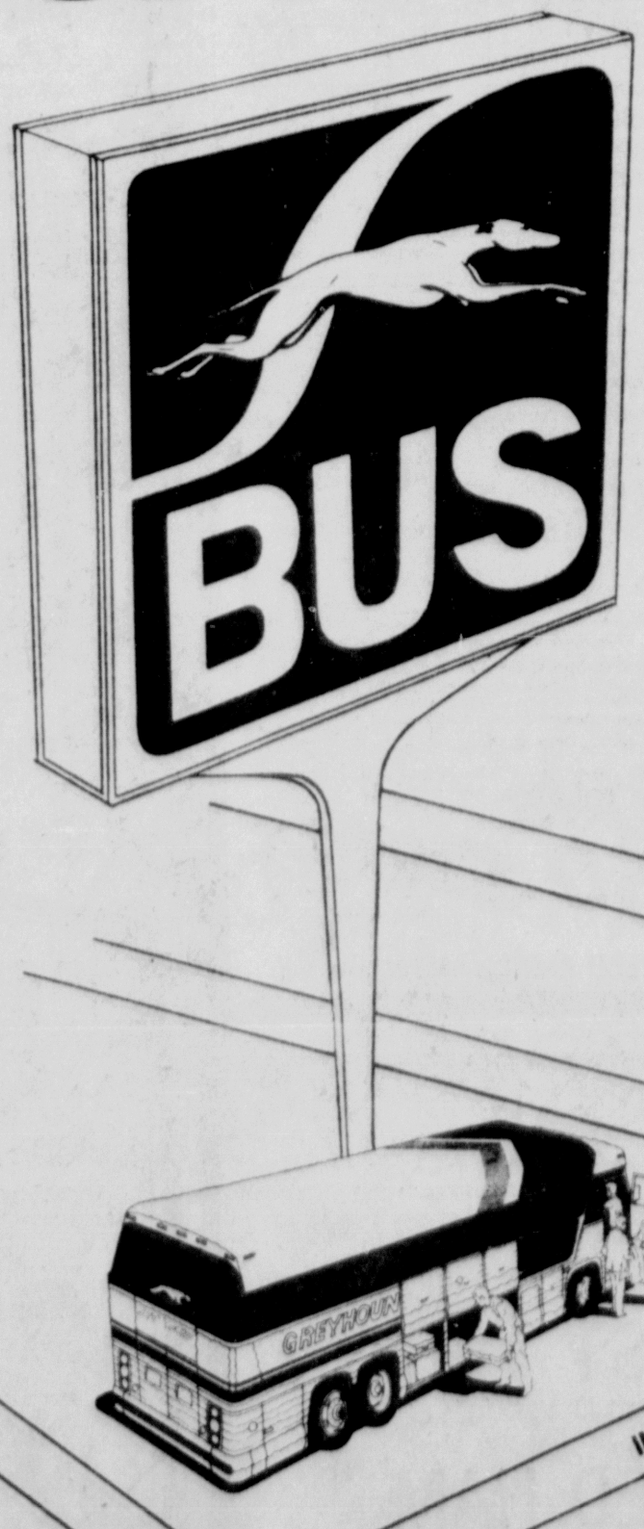

Picone bundled it up, took it to New York, and after nearly three years of careful drying, it was returned. Insurance paid the cost of $5,000.

That's also the amount of no-questions-asked reward Picone is offering after nearly two months of police investigation and want ads have failed to turn up the violin.

Pictures and descriptions have been sent to violin dealers in several nations, and Picone said, "It would be so hard to move with dealers that I still hold out hope I'll get it back."

Opera Company almost sinks H.M.S. Pinafore

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

You'd probably think that when a serious troupe like the New York City Opera Company, more concerned with "La Traviata" "La Boheme" and "Die Meistersinger," tried its hand at a frothy piece like Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore," it would be stilted, humorless and slightly stuffy. You'd be right.

The good ship Pinafore sailed into the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Friday night and nearly sank under its own weight. In spite of the excellent voices, the fine orchestra conducted with vigor by David Effron, and Thomas Andrew's spritely choreography, the lighthearted lyric to the lass that loved a sailor came off as pedestrian and ponderous.

At curtain's rise, confirmed Savoyards were put off by Patton Campbell's weird setting, which made the British man'o'-war look like a cross between a New York Harbor tugboat and Mississippi River sidewheeler.

Another discordant and pervasive element was the attempt by several members of the cast, notably Muriel Costa-Greenspon as Little Buttercup and Paul Ukena as Dick Deadeye, to simulate a cockney accent. This consisted primarily of pronouncing all "a's" as "i" and ended up less cockney than a speech defect.

The NYCO cast trudged through the operetta's lilting choruses, trios, duets and solos with the stolid solemnity of their "Lucrezia Borgia." There was none of the bounce and bouancy, none of the sense of nonsense and fun that makes G&S a challenge to companies from junior high school to civic light opera.

NYCO's Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., is a round-faced gnome named James Billings who comes off as a cross between Mr. Pickwick and Mr. McGoo. He is funny and frolicsome and does well with "I am the monarch of the seas" and "When I was a lad," though the magical trio, "Never mind the why and wherefore," is labored and unimaginative.

Gary Glaze's Ralph Rackstraw is amiable and fun, and Glenys Fowels as Josephine sings well but offers little more than a pretty face and an excellent voice. Ukena as Dick Deadeye is too big, physically, for his role, but has an impressive voice and presence. Miss Costa-Greenspon does Little Buttercup like an Elisa from "My Fair Lady." Charles Roe's Capt. Corcoran is very good, indeed.

"Pinafore" comes to anchor again Nov. 30 and Dec. 6.

TELEVISION SPECIAL — Karen Valentine is Johnny Mathis' special guest when "Johnny Mathis in the Canadian Rockies" airs Dec. 6 at 7 p.m. on ABC-TV. The hour-long show was taped entirely on locations in and around the resort areas of Banff and Lake Louise in the province of Alberta, Canada. Monsanto is the sponsor of the special.

Entertainment

Henryk Szeryng

Violinist due at Pasadena

Henryk Szeryng, one of the world's top-ranking violinists, stars in two special evenings at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena Dec. 3 and 4 at 8:30 p.m.

The concerts are preceded by American cellist Christine Walevska in performance Dec. 2 at 8:30 p.m.

With a career spanning 40 years and five continents, Szeryng has been called a "musician's musician" by Arthur Rubinstein. In the Ambassador program, he will perform selections from Brahms, Bach, Beethoven, Mozart and others.

Miss Walevska studied with Piatigorsky and Maurice Marechel of the Paris Conservatoire and was the first American to win the Premier Prix in both cello and chamber music. She will perform selections from Vivaldi, Brahms, Finastera and Chopin.

Tickets for the concerts may be purchased singularly or in a four-concert series. Single ticket prices range from $8.75 to $25 and are available at Mutual, Liberty and Wallich's ticket agencies, the box office and by phone. Students rush tickets will be available one-half hour before showtime at the box office.

Recording artist

Natalie Cole at Long Beach

Capitol recording artist Natalie Cole will appear at the Long Beach Arena Sunday with new birth and B. T. Express on the bill.

Miss Cole's debut album is entitled "Inseparable," and includes the title song and the single "This Will Be!" In this album she blends contemporary innovations with the discipline of jazz.

She recently completed a three-week promotional visit to Europe and is currently touring the United States.

New Birth will headline the show, singing such hits as "Wild Flower" and songs from their latest album "Blind Baby."

B. T. Express will be featured in such rhythm presentations as "Here Comes the Express" and "Peace Pipe."

Willie Hutch will also be on the program.

Are forest fires godsend? Experts disagree

A controversy is developing, even as blazes rage out of control, over whether forest fires are really a godsend in disguise.

Richard Vogl, chairman of the Biology Department at Cal State Los Angeles, says the fires are beneficial because they restore life to the charred land and produce a healthier environment in the long run.

But firefighters, forest rangers and homeowners disagree. They view the charred remains not only as a devastation, but also as a forerunner of winter and spring floods.

"Without some brush and trees to absorb some of the rain we may have some bad slides next winter," Joe Steed, public information officer for the Los Angeles County Fire Department said. "We are going to lose a lot of earth along the steeper grades."

He said infrared measurements now show a total of 23,000 acres have been burned so far in the Mt. Baldy area. Plans are already under way to reseed as much of the land as possible as soon as the firefighting operation is over.

Although only two cabins have been consumed by the flames — firemen called it a miracle — the aftermath of the conflagration may be more significant when the rainy season arrives.

In 1968 a crew of youths fighting a fire above Glendora was killed. But the disaster continued the following spring when the heavy rains caused mudslides above the city and destroyed nearly a score of homes.

Steed said the likelihood of damaging floods is accentuated by the fact that the blazes passed north of several communities.

This meant, he explained, that heavy storms may later loosen the ground and cause slides above the communities of Baldy Village, Marshall Canyon, San Dimas Canyon and the east fork of the San Gabriel Canyon.

Forest rangers said they did not expect heavy losses to wild animal life. They said they saw many deer, rabbits, coyotes and squirrels run out of range at the first smell of smoke, and take up squatters rights in the safer areas.

But they pointed out that until the brush grows back, there will be less vegetation for those animals to feed on.

Situation of refugees still uncertain today

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

No resolution of the troubled refugee situation appeared in sight today after representatives of the Tolstoy Foundation were almost at a total loss to explain what they will do in taking over sponsorship of some 185 Vietnamese in Pomona.

Tolstoy spokesmen said Tuesday no legal action had yet been taken against Gerald Martin, original sponsor of the Pomona refugees, despite the fact that Tolstoy was stripping Martin of sponsorship for his failure to meet his promises and obligations over the past three months.

In fact, not only is Tolstoy planning no immediate legal action against Martin, he has been asked to remain as an adviser to the Golden State Gardening Co. of Garden Grove, which could become the focal point of a grand jury investigation requested by the Pomona City Council.

Martin set up the company using portions of the more than $100,000 he received for sponsorship, although estimates of how much money he paid for trucks and other equipment range from $20,000 to $40,000. While the company did employ many of the Vietnamese briefly, refugees are now claiming they are still owed back wages or were paid with bad checks.

Reed Nelson, head of the Tolstoy office in Pomona, conceded that almost everyone who worked for Martin, Vietnamese and others alike, are probably owed money.

Prospects for collecting the money owed is remote, however, since Martin will turn over the debts as well as the assets of the company to Tolstoy — assets in form of trucks and gardening equipment that can be accounted for by an audit of the company's books.

Nelson could not say for certain when such an audit would be made, and until then the company legally remains in Martin's hands with only his oral commitment to relinquish control of the gardening operation.

When pressed to explain why Tolstoy should continue placing any trust in Martin, Nelson could only admit that he was not a lawyer and didn't know what action should be taken to prevent an attack on the company's assets.

Robert McClure, district manager of Department of Health, Education and Welfare office in Riverside, told Nelson that Tolstoy did not understand what it was dealing with (Martin).

It was the first time that McClure had publicly denounced Martin's operations, although he added "it has been HEW's position from the beginning that Martin should be removed."

McClure later said he would call Julia Taft, head of the Inter-Agency Task Force for Southeast Asians in Washington, urging that immediate legal help and more competent management for Tolstoy locally be arranged.

Under questioning at a press conference Tuesday, Nelson explained that he did not have, in fact had not sought, legal counsel and if he felt it was necessary at all he was "not sure whether it was best for Tolstoy or the Vietnamese to get a lawyer."

He said that to take legal action to get title to the gardening company would only hurt the refugees, that Martin was being cooperative and as soon as a Los Angeles CPA checked Martin's books "we will know what we have and can go ahead."

Nelson said that as soon as Tolstoy obtains title to the business, the foundation intends applying for a small business loan of between $50,000 and $100,000 on the assets that are free and clear to keep the business going.

A Tolstoy man already had been employed, and was expected to arrive Tuesday to run the company, Nelson said.

Also, Nelson continued, Tolstoy was to send him an additional $5,000 Tuesday to be used to pay rents way past due so refugee families would not be evicted from their Pomona apartments.

A spokesman for the Southern California Edison Co. said that it was impossible for the utility to avoid turning power off if required deposits, and utility bills, were not paid by the refugees.

As Martin's participation in the resettlement effort wound down, he remained absent and out of reach.

Nelson quoted Martin as saying Monday, when he was asked to turn sponsorship and the gardening company over to Tolstoy, "Fine, I'll be happy to turn everything over."

But as his words were being repeated, two Vietnamese men displayed pay checks signed by Martin that had been returned stamped "insufficient funds" or "payment stopped."

Team on transit coordination headed by mayor of Montclair

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair will coordinate a team of city and county transit representatives in devising a joint powers agreement for transit coordination throughout the county.

The team will be comprised of two representatives each from San Bernardino County, West Valley Transit Service Authority and San Bernardino Transit System.

Hayes was given the responsibility Tuesday afternoon at the conclusion of a joint meeting in San Bernardino with the county Board of Supervisors, the executive board of San Bernardino Associated Governments, the SBTS board, WVTSA, Victor Valley Transit Service Authority and other city and county personnel.

The joint meeting tentatively resolved conflicts of more than a year with the supervisors approving motions of intent to go along with the umbrella concept for transit coordination, to join SBTS and therefore merge transit operations for the county, and to completely fund Route 14, the intercommunity line going from Yucaipa to the West End.

Although the dissent became rather intense at times, the meeting was generally low key and indicated there had been some discussion between county and city representatives prior to the meeting.

Supervisor Robert Townsend was absent because of a meeting with the Army Corps of Engineer regarding Prado Dam. And the four supervisors present were momentarily split in support and opposition to SANBAG as the transit coordinator.

Supervisors James Mayfield and Nancy Smith, the county delegates on the SANBAG executive board, pointed out that SANBAG has the capability, resources and staff to serve as the umbrella agency.

On the other hand, Supervisors Daniel Mikesell and Dennis Hansberger were totally opposed to any consideration of SANBAG as the umbrella, saying the power and strength of implementation should not be within the planning organization's function.

The federal government through its Urban Mass Transit Authority indicated to county and city officials that it must create a central coordinator of transit if they are to remain eligible for federal transit dollars.

Mayor Jack Cummings of Redlands said "it seems ridiculous to have systems vying between one another, particularly from the Sacramento and Washington points of view. In order to get the federal clearing house off our backs we must have centralized coordination or risk a takeover by the state."

Cummings was first to suggest an umbrella agency named Omnitrans to include representatives from WVTSA, SBTS, the county and the cities of Pomona and Claremont. The umbrella's function, explained Holcomb, could be coordination of budgets, short and long range planning, a single capital improvement program and grant applications.

Hayes reported that the West Valley consensus is to also go along with the umbrella concept "in order to get away from dead center." He added that the West End, Pomona and Claremont are willing to go along with the Omnitrans umbrella and did not feel it would be a duplication of efforts because SANBAG is involved in other planning matters.

The WVTSA chairman also told supervisors that it was willing to contract with whomever became the operator for the countywide transit system.

Mikesell moved to ask SBTS and WVTSA to join with the county in appointing two representatives each to a study group that would develop a joint powers agreement for creation of an umbrella agency to coordinate transit functions and receive state and federal funds for that purpose.

A real Thanksgiving blessing: fire-feeding winds to subside

Pleasant Thanksgiving weather belying the devastations in the mountains is in store for residents of the valley.

The weatherman predicts the winds will die down by tonight permitting firemen to take better control over the blaze that has eaten up more than 23,000 acres of forest and brushland in the mountains from Mt. Baldy to the San Gabriel River since Sunday.

Many activities will stop for the long weekend, but Thanksgiving services are scheduled at churches throughout the area.

All city halls except those in San Dimas and Upland will be closed for the rest of the week, as will all public schools.

Post offices will be closed Thursday and there will be no window service or city delivery on that day. But special delivery service will be maintained and the lobbies will be open for access to box mail and stamp vending machines.

Banks as well as savings and loan association offices will be closed on Thursday, but they will be open on Friday. Virtually all businesses will be closed on Thursday but will reopen Friday.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, trash collections will be staggered throughout the valley. Persons whose refuse is collected on Thursdays will be serviced on Friday, and Friday collections will be moved to Saturday.

Many churches in the valley plan to add to the joys of the holiday by scheduled services on Thanksgiving.

They include joint services under the auspices of ministerial associations at St. Margaret Catholic Church in Chino, at the First Church of God in Pomona and at the United Methodist Church in Claremont.

A large number of other churches plan to hold individual services. They include:

POMONA: Peace Lutheran Church, First Lutheran Church, and First Church of Christ, Scientist.

MONTCLAIR: Trinity Lutheran Church, United Methodist Church and Bethany Baptist Church.

CHINO: Christ Lutheran Church. Claremont: Good Shepherd Lutheran Church. Rowland Heights: Redeemer Lutheran Church. San Dimas: Valley Community Drive-in Church and Faith Lutheran Church.

The weather is expected to become somewhat cooler over the Thanksgiving weekend, with occasional light winds from the southwest driving the smoke out of the valley.

Temperatures are expected to be in the low and mid 70s through Sunday.

D.B. accident injures driver

One motorist suffered chest injuries Tuesday when his car collided with a vehicle which was turning off Diamond Bar Boulevard into an alley in Diamond Bar.

Robert Gibson, 35, of 4673 Catalina Ave., La Verne, was treated at San Dimas Community Hospital and later transferred to the Kaiser Hospital in Fontana.

He was driving north on Diamond Bar Boulevard and his car collided with a car driven by William Henry Kernodle, 22, of 231 Navajo Springs Drive, Diamond Bar, which was turning into an alley, said highway patrolmen.

Three injured

Three persons were injured Tuesday when two cars collided at Chino and Walker avenues near Chino.

Treated at Chino General Hospital were Ruth Henderson, 38, of 7706 Beryl St., Cucamonga, passenger in a car driven by Darlene Henderson of the same address; and Margaret Robinson, 40, the second driver, and Karen Robinson, 2, a passenger, both of Yorba Linda.

Safety tips

Be home to accept packages

The Progress Bulletin has asked for tips from valley law enforcement officers which will help readers avoid becoming victims of holiday season crime. Today's advice from Pomona Police Chief F.P. Wallick concerns holiday deliveries.

Packages left on door steps are tempting and are easy to steal. They tempt even honest neighbors and are quickly stolen by those with a streak of larceny in them.

Thieves have been known to follow delivery trucks and pick up the packages almost as fast as they are left.

If you are expecting a package, plan to be home when the deliveryman arrives. If you cannot, make arrangements to have your package delivered to a neighbor as an alternative.

Red Cross sets Friday hours for giving blood at center

The Pomona Red Cross Blood Donor Center will be open Friday so that people who have the day off from work will be able to help with the essential need for blood over the holiday season.

According to Mrs. Joan Hamming, blood donor coordinator, the Los Angeles and Orange Counties Red Cross Regional Blood Center anticipates a shortage of blood from now through the end of the year.

The special donor program is being sponsored Friday by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches but is open to all potential donors.

The center, located at 420 N. Reservoir St., Pomona, will be open from 1 to 5:30 p.m. Appointments are requested and may be made by calling 629-7455.

Walnut City Council to make appointments

Several foregone conclusions, including appointments of an acting city manager and acting city clerk, will make up the Walnut City Council agenda tonight.

Andrew C. Lazzaretto's recent announcement that he was resigning as city manager effective Dec. 1 makes both appointments necessary. He also is city clerk.

Samuel Siegel, city attorney, is expected to be named acting city manager. He'll perform his temporary duties in that capacity from a distance part of the time. His law offices are in Paramount.

Diana Higdon, now administrative secretary and deputy city clerk, is expected to become acting city clerk.

Lazzaretto is leaving his present job to serve as assistant city administrator in Montebello.

The City of Walnut currently is accepting applications for the position of city manager. The deadline is Jan. 15.

Councilmen also are expected to approve a final portion of plans for a residential development by the firm of Umark and Grant. The entire development will consist of 750 homes on the north side of La Puente Road east of Nogales Avenue.

Animal control services will be discussed by councilmen. They are trying to decide whether the city should continue to obtain those services from the county or should use other sources.

Abstaining is no answer

One of the most disturbing things about the recent vote in the United Nations condemning Zionism as a form of "racism and racial discrimination" is that so many countries refused to take a stand on this issue.

The vote in the General Assembly was 72 for the resolution and 35 against, and among the majority, as expected, were all the Arab states and the Communist bloc. A little more surprising is the fact that they were joined by such ostensibly "free world" countries as Brazil and Mexico.

But fully 32 other delegations elected to abstain from voting. Among them were nine other Latin American countries — Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Guatemala, Paraguay, Peru and Venezuela — and even such countries as Japan, Greece and the Philippines.

Even if all the abstainers had joined with the 35 in opposition, this invidious resolution would still have carried the day. But its victory would have been a narrow one and the United Nations would not be in quite the moral shambles it is now.

One is reminded of the words of Martin Niemoller, the German theologian who belatedly opposed Nazism in the 1930s:

"In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant.

"Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

Object lesson for oil slick skipper?

Last July a vessel of unknown registry discharged tens of thousands of gallons of crude oil, accidently or deliberately, off the Florida Keys. The stuff came ashore in a tarry blob 25 miles long that cost $350,000 to clean up.

At the time, we noted that it was this all-too-frequent sort of thing, not the spectacular but rare oil well blow-out like the one that occurred in the Santa Barbara Channel in 1966, that posed the greatest threat to the marine environment. We also lamented the difficulty of enforcing the law against oil dumping or flushing out tanker holds on the high seas because of the near impossibility of associating any particular oil slick with any particular ship on the heavily traveled sea lanes.

It is gratifying to report that we underestimated the ingenuity and perseverance of the U.S. Coast Guard and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Using a recently developed oil "fingerprinting" technique involving a number of sophisticated laboratory tests, they compared samples of the spill with oil samples from 247 ships. The culprit was identified as a bulk carrier named the Garbis and its Greek captain has been arrested, the first such arrest under the 1974 Water Pollution Act.

The detective work of the environmental guardians deserves the nation's applause. One's enthusiasm is tempered, however, pending the legal outcome of this case. It depends now upon whether the courts administer a slap on the wrist to the careless captain, or whether he — and more importantly, the ship's owners — are given punishment sufficient to serve as an object lesson to all other shippers.

Not until the consequences outweigh the convenience will the practice of using the oceans as a sewer be stopped.

A lifetime chance

Dear Editor:

I disagree with the article you printed 11-19-75 on page 8 wherein the article labeled the Freedom Train a "Ripoff".

On October 18, 1975 I personally viewed the American Freedom Train in Salt Lake City and was very impressed. It's true there was little time to browse. The Freedom Train is not a museum, but rather a kaleidoscope of sights and sounds dramatically illustrating the spirit of American achievement. The walkway allows the Freedom Train to touch as many lives as possible — and that's all it can do.

As a member of the Host Committee that is bringing the Freedom Train to Pomona, arriving here on December 22, 1975 and open for viewing on December 23rd through the 30th, I feel the Progress Bulletin should review wire service releases to your newspaper and not accept the views of people outside our area that allow the negative side to be in headlines and the positive opinions of the train printed in fine print. I respect the freedom of the press to print both sides of any issue, but why is the minority opinion always headlined?

We highly recommend you visit the Freedom Train when in Pomona and suggest that since it is a kaleidoscope illustrating the spirit of American Achievement that you and everyone purchase the program wherein it goes into detail what is aboard the Freedom Train and also what it stands for and is trying to accomplish. We know you cannot please everyone, but I personaly feel this once in a lifetime chance to see the Freedom Train is very historical and worthwhile during our Bicentennial celebration. — R. G. Harris, Chairman

Community turns pro

Dear Editor:

This letter is in answer to a music review by Ralph Pierce that appeared in the Progress Bulletin on Nov. 11. First of all, I would like to state that I agree with Mr. Pierce, who is a long-time personal friend, about the evaluation of the San Gabriel Valley Symphony Concert on Nov. 7 in the San Gabriel Civic Auditorium.

It was a good concert I was told by two of our Claremont Symphony members who also perform with the San Gabriel Valley Symphony Orchestra. Secondly, I agree that Mr. Bernstein is a good conductor. However, I would like to clarify a statement made in the article about the community aspect of the San Gabriel Valley Orchestra. The article goes on to say that "the San Gabriel Valley Symphony Orchestra didn't sound like a community orchestra but it sounded like a professional orchestra."

The reason for this is simple. The San Gabriel Valley Symphony Orchestra is not a community orchestra. In simple terms it is a highly screened, professional pick-up orchestra made up mostly of union players. Obviously, one can expect an orchestra like this to sound like a professional orchestra. The San Gabriel Valley Symphony, like many other orchestras in the county, do not meet on a regular, weekly basis but one or two weeks prior to concerts.

I personally remember the San Gabriel Valley Symphony as far back as 30 years ago when its founder-director, my good friend, Harold Scott, nursed it along for many years as a community orchestra based at Monrovia High School with most of the musicians coming from the San Gabriel Valley.

After his death, the orchestra hit some rough times and its complexion and philosophy began to change. Various conductors have tried various techniques maintaining the orchestra as a community type symphony with less and less success. But at least the so-called old-timers that have maintained the San Gabriel Valley Symphony for years have been allowed to remain as players.

Now most of these people are no longer members of the orchestra and have nothing to do with it. The players come mostly from Hollywood, West Los Angeles, USC, etc., or as they did last year, quite a few were students at Pomona College. These are the facts of life that are turning most of our Southern California orchestras into professional groups and in most cases, benefiting the same players that perform in as many as 7 or 8 of these organizations.

It is also worth noting that when you say that the San Gabriel Valley Symphony Orchestra didn't sound like a community orchestra, one can say, "What community?". Is it Monrovia, San Gabriel, Glendora, Arcadia, Azusa, Temple City, El Monte, etc. After all, the San Gabriel Valley covers a population of almost a million people. — George Denes, Claremont

FBI's dirty tricks on Dr. King

WASHINGTON — The FBI's undercover campaign to besmirch the late Dr. Martin Luther King was even more incredible than the recent Senate hearings revealed.

It began, as the testimony showed, with the late J. Edgar Hoover. The cantankerous FBI chief developed a boiling hatred for King during the turbulent 1960s.

Some suspect that Hoover became jealous of King's Nobel peace prize, an honor the old man had coveted for himself. Others say Hoover simply became convinced, altogether falsely, that the civil rights leader was a communist sympathizer.

From close associates of both antagonists, we have now pieced together more of the compelling story.

Early in the 1960s, the FBI began monitoring King's activities. Some of his hotel rooms were bugged. One of the tapes contained a replay of an uproarious party, which he had attended at Washington's old Willard Hotel.

The FBI director and his trusted sidekick, Clyde Tolson, conspired together to send this embarrassing tape to King's wife, Coretta. The idea disturbed the subordinates who were ordered to carry out the blackmail plot. But in those days, no one in the FBI dared to stand up to the formidable Hoover.

Upon Hoover's instructions, the tapes were doctored in the FBI lab to bring out King's voice, loud and clear. Then the tape was carefully cleaned of fingerprints or telltale evidence that might link it to the FBI.

The tape was packed in a seven-inch reel box, which was also sanitized of fingerprints. Hoover's orders were, as one aide recalls, to mail it "from a southern state" to Coretta King in Atlanta.

An FBI agent, unaware of the contents of the poisonous package, was dispatched by plane to Florida to mail it. This was the sole purpose of his plane trip.

The vindictive Hoover also ordered that a separate message, suggesting suicide, should be mailed to King himself. It was typed, according to one source, on an old typewriter, with a smudgy, red-and-black ribbon.

The civil rights leader later speculated that Hoover got the suicide idea from reports that King as a child had tried to injure himself following the death of a beloved grandmother. Our FBI sources doubt, however, that Hoover knew about this childhood incident.

In any event, the diabolical message suggested that King had only 34 days to take the "one way out." The 34 days coincided with the date he was supposed to receive the Nobel prize in Oslo.

Clearly, the suicide suggestion and the scurrilous tape were timed to hit King with a one-two punch. But the FBI had not reckoned with the enormous workload at King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. For weeks, the group had been collecting Tapes of King's speeches for posterity.

The FBI material, therefore, was buried in the pileup of tapes and mail. Dr. King showed up in Oslo, accepted the award and returned home, quite unaware that he had been invited by the FBI to kill himself.

As King's friends recall, it was Coretta who eventually opened the package from Florida. One friend has the impression that the letter was sent in the same package with the tape.

Coretta King played part of the scratchy, garbled tape and then called in her husband. King was aware that the FBI was trying to discredit him. He immediately concluded that both the tape and letter were the doing of the FBI.

Next day, he summoned some of his closest associates to his Atlanta offices. Among them were the Reverends Ralph Abernathy, Joseph Lowery and Andrew Young.

As they entered, King sighed: "You'd think the FBI would understand that we're trying to save America." The Nobel laureate showed his colleagues the letter. All agreed it was no mere crank note but a foolish FBI attempt to get King to kill himself. Young recalls that King chuckled grimly over the preposterousness of the scheme.

The group also listened carefully to the tape, which was often inaudible. But King's voice could be heard making an occasional ribald crack. There was also audible evidence of a sexual interlude. They agreed, however, that King was not involved in this portion of the tape.

Then the civil rights leader, speaking sorrowfully, said he had previously felt he could count on the FBI to protect his rights. But no longer, he said, could the FBI be trusted.

Footnote: We were the first to report on May 24, 1968, that the FBI was bugging and badgering Dr. Martin Luther King. We reported that the FBI, among other things, had spread stories about his sex life.

At the request of King's associates, we investigated the FBI's smear charges against him and published our findings on October 9. The Senate hearings have now confirmed our revelations.

A REMINDER: There are only a few days left to participate in our search for a bicentennial slogan. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 1. The best one will be adopted by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Send your slogans to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C.

Just in jest

As a part of our continuing effort to improve the intellectual level of the great American public, we come now to another lesson in word definitions. And for this session we shall engage in a bit of much needed word definition updating. Let's start with COCKTAIL PARTY. Despite Noah Webster's more classic description, it has now become a gathering of the Bores and the Bored. —Also while we're at it, let's redefine EPITAPH as the last word in positive thinking. —Next comes the FEMININE EGOTIST. She's the gal who hangs her photo in the post office along with the pictures of the country's 10 most wanted women. —Then there's the BURIAL PLOT SALESMAN, an enterprising fellow who moves heaven and earth in order to succeed. And finally we come to the ALL AMERICAN HE-MAN. He's the fellow who never misses an opportunity to display his brute strength by crushing beer cans with his two bare hands. Sometimes there's even beer still in them.

Ray Cromley

Study record, not the words

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — As a freshman at Cal Tech years back, I had a professor who regularly told his history class that in a democracy, the talkers rule.

We elect the men who say what we want them to say and promise what we want to hear. Of course, they do not always deliver after the votes are counted.

Our cleanup efforts are based on faulty reasoning.

Common Cause, for one, has mounted what promises to be a multimillion dollar campaign — figures in terms of money and volunteer man hours — to hold candidates feet to the fire.

But this campaign will fail because it heads in the wrong direction. It's based on the premise that hard questions will expose a candidate's true aims and make possible an accurate prediction of what he will do once in office.

Much of the emphasis is on more press conferences, more interviews, more questioning by panels — the questioning to be done by men and women not chosen by the candidate or his people. That is, the emphasis is on more talking — and more promises.

Now I submit that this is a candidate's dream. Since the questioners, by definition, would appear to be impartial or antagonistic, a skillful candidate could, with ease, give the impression the truth was being smoked out. Most experts in public life could handle such situations and come out either looking well, or like a martyr being pilloried by his enemies. Politicians are, by trade, expert wordsmiths. To a great extent, their public views and statements are determined by what polls and advisers say the voters want.

There's a better approach.

By the time a man is old enough to run for president, or for the Senate or House, he's pretty well set in his ways. Very few men change stripes. What they have done or not done in the lesser offices they've held is likely what they'll do or not do when elected to a higher post.

We need, therefore, more impartial studies in depth of the complete voting records of men who have been legislators, not selected votes intended to reinforce the bias of this polling organization or that.

Most importantly, we need complete records on how these men voted in committee on significant legislation.

If he has been in private business or a profession, we need to know how he conducted himself. What kind of assistants did he hire? How did he follow through on customer complaints, if he's a businessman? How did he conduct his cases, if an attorney? What was the quality of his work as a teacher? How did he handle crises? What was his attention to duty? What kind of friends and associates did he attract. What kind of people were his enemies?

If he is, or has been, an incumbent senator or representative, a state legislator, governor or President, what kind of men and women did he choose for his staff? How did they operate? How honest have they been? What were or are their objectives? These people are the real clue to a candidate's character — not what he says.

Then there's his personal financial history — not merely current assets, investments and liabilities. How has he operated? Openly and above board? Has he managed his own finances well and without hanky panky? Does he know the value of a dollar? If he's been a longtime office holder, we need to know if he has increased his wealth inordinately — that is, more than could be reasonably accounted for by prudent management of his reported income.

Has he been active in community efforts? Has he sought titles and left the work to others? Does he repeatedly come up with pipedream plans neither he nor anyone else could carry out? Does he start things, drop them and leave others to pick up the pieces? These are the things, usually unreported, that tell us what kind of a man we're dealing with.

There are activities for lonely widows

I am writing this in reference to a letter which appeared in Action Line in September. It was written by a widow.

My husband died in July of last year. I am very lonely.

I have no relatives. My friends live far away from Pomona.

I don't drive and don't own a car. I have to walk wherever I want to go.

The lady who wrote in previously said she was a member of the Roamers Club. I would like to belong but don't know how to get in touch with the club. — B.M., Pomona.

The letter you mention and one published previously set off a whole series of inquiries about activities for older people.

Some were answered individually and others in this column.

Pomona Roamers Club members take trips but they also do a lot of their roaming around the city.

Some of their activities center around Palomares Park, Orange Grove Avenue and Arrow Highway, Pomona, in the Palomares Community Building and nearby La Casita. They are arranged by the city Park and Recreation Department.

You may want to attend craft classes from 9 to 11 a.m. each Monday at La Casita or your preference may be ballroom dance classes the same hours and day but in the community building.

Either way, you will be handy for the potluck luncheon held the second Monday of each month at the community building. You will be asked to bring a food dish to serve eight to 10 people and your own table service. Coffee will be served.

There are drop-in luncheons the first, third and four Mondays. You drop in with your own sack lunch.

Dances are held each Monday from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the community building.

If you are an athletic type, there is bowling Thursday at 12:30 p.m. at the Landmark Bowling Alley, 1750 W. Holt Ave.

Somewhere in the above information is an antidote for loneliness.

Transportation help is offered by the Neighborhood Adult Participation Project, 623-0741, or the Baldy View Community Service for the Aging, 596-1159.

Just before Christmas I ordered "Camping Journal" and "Guns and Ammo" from Magazine Buyers Service.

"Guns and Ammo" was a Christmas present for my father. Copies were being mailed to me. I only received the January through March issues although "Camping Journal" is arriving regularly.

I have written to Magazine Buyers Service and received no reply. I think it is only fair that the firm sends me the next eight issues as my father has had to buy the ones he missed from the stand.

I know that Magazine Buyers Service still handles "Guns and Ammo" because my husband subscribed to the magazine a few months ago and has been receiving his copies regularly.

After we got in touch with Magazine Buyers Service, an apology went to you with the explanation that three of your payments were never credited to your "Guns and Ammo" account.

Fortunately, you had saved your canceled checks and we had sent copies to the subscription firm.

Magazine Buyers Service promised your father's "Guns and Ammo" would begin arriving. We were glad to shoot this problem down for you.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, Nov. 27, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very tactful today in handling people who are helping you, but who are not really obligated to do so. You could rub them the wrong way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're still very prone today to take foolish risks with your resources. Be very wary of all things speculative. Stick to the blue chips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there is an unnecessary tempest at home today, chances are the blame can be traced to you. Don't sound off without thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're very easily irritated today, but you're not likely to tell the real cause of your frustration. If you don't, nothing can be resolved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let an overenthusiastic friend sell you a bill of goods on a pet project. It could cost you plenty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're going to let someone set the pace for you, rather than determine your own speed. Unfortunately, your stride and theirs aren't in harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't talk about your ideas prematurely today or discuss them with one who isn't in a position to judge objectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Just because you know a person socially is no reason to deal with them in a business sense. In fact, today scrupulously avoid such involvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It would be a mistake today to be too self-serving at another's expense. This person would be very irritated if he felt he was being used.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you'll be closely associated with today has a great big chip on his shoulder. A few loose words could easily knock it off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To save money today, you may tackle something that's better left to experts. You could wind up with a larger bill than anticipated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Normally you're easy to get along with. Today, however, you're apt to behave in a manner that others could find offensive.

Your Birthday Nov. 27, 1975

This coming year you'll be better off if you handle important projects unencumbered by partners. Do what has to be done on your own, for best results.

Husband objects to counselor

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are going through a difficult time in our marriage because we have lost the ability to communicate. He blows up at every little thing, accuses me of making up stories to infuriate him, and refuses to listen to me when I need to talk.

I went to a marriage counselor twice and it helped. The third time I was asked to bring my husband. He went once — reluctantly — but refuses to return because the counselor is an unmarried man. He claims a person who is not married does not know what the hell marriage is all about.

I have a feeling my husband is uncomfortable because the counselor got his number pretty promptly and is sure to suggest that he change some of his ways.

Will you comment please on my husband's objection to the counselor? Does he have a valid point or not? — Intend To Make A Go Of It — Regardless

Dear Regardless: Marriage neither enhances nor diminishes the ability of a counselor. Some of the best marriage counselors in the country are Catholic priests. Many mediocre and incompetent counselors are married and having plenty of trouble themselves. Just because a couple is married doesn't mean everything is peaches and cream. Sometimes the peaches are rotten and the cream is sour.

Your husband is copping out and I suspect you have guessed the reason. But hang in there alone if you must, and do your best. If you can't learn to live WITH him, then learn to live without him.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are frantic with worry. Please check with your medical authorities and let us know if our fears are groundless.

Our son is engaged to marry a charming girl he met in Louisiana last year. Both her parents are deceased. Mary Ellen spoke of them with great affection, but gave few details about her early life.

We have learned from a friend who lives in New Orleans that Mary Ellen's mother died of cancer and her father died of leprosy. In fact, he died in a leper colony.

Will you please tell us if this terrible disease can be transmitted from one generation to another? Could Mary Ellen develop the disease in later life because of her early exposure to it?

Please, Ann, we need some facts. Our family doctor doesn't know much about leprosy and the dictionary doesn't give much information. Bless you for your help. — Concerned In Connecticut

Dear Concerned: Calm down. Hansen's disease (they don't call it leprosy any more) is one of the LEAST communicable diseases known to medical science. In fact, some wives tried to get the disease when they visited their husbands in the leprosorium in Carville, La., many years ago (so they, too, might be incarcerated), but they did NOT succeed.

Dr. Robert Stolar of Washington, D.C., was the first physician to succeed in getting a victim of Hansen's disease admitted to a D.C. municipal hospital. He assured me that neither Mary Ellen, your son, or their unborn children are in any danger. Relax.

What's the story on pot, L.S.D., cocaine, uppers and downers, speed? Can you handle it if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Acid comments on economy

By one of those morbid coincidences that make the angels weep, HCL stands for both the high cost of living and hydrochloric acid — both of them potent and potentially lethal. If the first gets much higher, we may all need a good shot of the second.

The outrageous, carefully manipulated runaway of prices in society today is visible in every area — taxes, rent, services, utilities, clothing, cars, appliances — name it; it's gone up. But nowhere so visibly and painfully as in food. We can wear the old suit a couple more years; we can do without a new car. But food we must have. A nation unravels on its stomach.

About a year ago bacon was 65 cents a pound; today it's $2. Eggs only went from 60 cents a dozen to 80 cents, but margarine skidded upward from 25 to 59 cents while I was making out a grocery list. Us peons aren't concerned, but sirloin steak bolted from $2 a pound last to $4 this — an increase of, let me see, 100 per cent. HCL.

Two of the most savagely put upon are pipe smokers and book lovers — often overlapping. An average-grade pipe tobacco last year was 17 cents for the 1½-oz. package. Today it's 40 cents. Put THAT in your pipe and smoke it! And books have gone out of sight. The cheapest of them starts at $6.95 (book dealers love that 95-cent tag). Today you can't buy a paperback for what you could purchase a 3-volume hard cover set a few years ago, possibly bound in leather.

Well, I didn't mean to make anyone cry — there, there. What I am wondering is if the steady progression of increasing costs and prices is going to continue through the ages, so our grandchildren will be open-mouthed at the accounts of the days when you could buy steak for $4 the pound.

My grandfather used to regale his son with accounts of "the good old days" when the oak- and walnut-paneled saloons of New York served a schooner of beer for 5 cents, plus a free lunch of cheeses, cold cuts, rye bread and pickles. My father gloatingly recalled to me the days of the 10-cent beer stein. Will I some day be taunting my grandchildren about MY day, when a glass of beer was only 75 cents?

I remember Dad's outrage when I, a rising 19-year-old, came home with an $18 pair of shoes — the cheapest in the store. Today my son's sneakers cost that. (What ever happened to the barefoot boy with cheek of tan?)

They, that ubiquitous, faceless throng who sell you goods of all descriptions, babble about finer quality, better craftsmanship, and baloney like that — they're just trying to keep the facts of life (HCL) from you.

Your barber is, of necessity, more honest. He cut your hair in 1945 for 50 cents. All he's doing today is what he did then — cutting your hair (a little off the top). But now he charges $2.50, because he is on the HCL treadmill with the rest of us, — rent, taxes, supplies, food, gas, light and clothing increase in cost for him just as for everybody else, and he's got to live.

I can see me in my dotage, having a beer by the fire with some teenage grandchildren:

"You kids got it tough today," I'll say, lighting my $2.35 per ounce pipe tobacco. "I can remember when you could get a decent hamburger for only $2.50." (Chorus of disbelief.) "It's true. Beer was only $1 a glass. Two people could eat in a restaurant for as little as $35 — I mean it! We could buy a pretty good TV set for under $1,000! You can put me down as a gaffer, but I remember when gasoline was only $3.99 a gallon!"

Are we now living in the good old days?

Dr. Lamb

Worms still major problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 55 and after going to two doctors with my stomach trouble discovered I have a nest of worms. I took three different types of patent medicine, went to one doctor again and took what he prescribed, and the other doctor said it might be fiber.

Thousands of roundworms are passing, and there is no end to this as they multiply fast. I've no more funds for doctors now, and I wonder what you might suggest.

Neither doctor prescribed any type of diet or any real laxative, but I have taken a new cure which is a mild laxative.

I'm sure they are the normal variety. However, some are long and look flat, white and have a ribbed-like body.

I am a baby sitter so may have gotten these from children I cared for. I work for a wholesale candy firm so may have eaten lots of sugar. I frequented a burger stand that closed recently.

DEAR READER — Some of my city readers may be surprised to learn that worms are still a major problem in parts of the United States. That specifically includes the large roundworms which you may have. Tapeworms also occur. There are probably over 2 million cases of roundworms in the U.S. and Canada, based on the worldwide studies of worm infections. I can't tell from your descritpion whether you have roundworms or tapeworms, but the only way anyone can tell is by looking at them.

I strongly suggest that you take some actual specimens to the doctor, whether or not you can afford to see him. He will tell you where to go to get financial help for proper treatment in your community. Most communities have some type of care that can be given even to persons with no financial resources. If necessary, ask your county welfare office for help.

Although you can get tapeworms from beef, pork and one type of fish, that is not how you get roundworms. These are usually associated with poor sanitation. They are spread from infected people to the soil and to privy areas. Some of the worms invade the skin, others gain access through eggs that are very small and are ingested.

I don't think anyone with your problem should be baby sitting or working as a food handler if that is what you have been doing.

Those roundworm infestations that people have are no small matter. In large numbers they can cause colicky abdominal pains. In the life cycle they spread by way of the circulation to the lungs, literally crawl up the respiratory tract, out of the windpipe and into the back of the throat. Here they crawl into the esophagus and pass through the stomach to the intestines to set up housekeeping.

In addition to the nutrition problems that they can cause, if you treat these actively yourself with some medicine that actually works, you have the risk of causing an intestinal obstruction. I must strongly advise that your treatment should be under the supervision of a doctor.

Untreated cases can persist for 20 to 40 years if not detected, and the individual may continue to be a source of infection. There are a wide variety of complications various ones of these worms can cause. They have even been found in the nose and ear. The large roundworms may be several inches long (some varieties as long as 13 inches) and other varieties may be so small they can hardly be seen.

10 diamonds call for open

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Freak hands are always hard to bid because bidding is based on experience and you just don't get enough of these freaks to enable you to develop a system to cope with them.

Today's hand was sent us by a Kentucky reader. His specific question will be answered below.

The South hand will take 10 tricks with diamonds as trump and should be opened with either one diamond or with a forcing two bid. We slightly favor opening with one diamond since there is bound to be action.

Our reader showed us the North hand also and the bidding in the box shows how to get to six diamonds.

NORTH 26
♠ A Q 8 6 5 2
♥ J 10 2
♣ A Q 7 4

WEST
♠ J 9
♥ A 9 7 6 3

♣ J 9 6 5 2

EAST
♠ K 10 4
♥ Q 8 5 4
♦ J 4
♣ K 10 8 3

SOUTH (D)
♠ 7 3
♥ K
♦ A K Q 10 8 7 6 5 3 2

East-West vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1 ♦
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	5 ♦
Pass	6 ♣	Pass	6 ♦
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — A ♥

North's spade response is obvious. Now South jumps right to the diamond game. North looks over his hand, decides South must have enough diamonds for both of them and bids six clubs. This six-club bid is not an effort to play in clubs. It merely shows the ace in case South might want to bid a grand slam.

Ask the Jacobys

Our reader asked us if we open the bidding with the South hand.

Our answer is that we sure do. We don't really count points with this type of hand except to note that we do have 12 in high cards. The important thing is that we have 10 diamond tricks all our own.

DOUBLE BED

The standard double bed for grownups is only twice as wide as the standard crib for infants. Ridiculous! For sound uninterrupted sleep, a double bed with two occupants should be 22 inches wider than it is. This is not just one more of Our Love and War man's whimsical theories. It comes from an authority who has made an extensive study of sleep, beds and widths of horizontal people.

SOMETIME BACK, a man climbed up on a water tower in Dania, Fla., and threatened to jump. Quite a sizable crowd gathered. Finally somebody talked him out of it and he came down. At that moment the police there were hit with the stunning realization that they had to protect him. The crowd surged forward, threatening to kill him. He had promised to jump, and they had waited all that time, and then he chickened out, the rascal. They were highly upset.

MVP AT WORK

Rookie outfielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox bats against the New York Yankees during the 1975 season. Lynn was voted the Most Valuable Player in the American League.

Fred Lynn MVP choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Invaluable Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, earlier named Rookie of the Year, added the American League's Most Valuable Player award to his trophy case today in an unprecedented vote by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Boston's stylish center fielder became the first player in baseball history to win both coveted prizes in his first year and his 169-point victory margin over Kansas City first baseman John Mayberry represented the largest in the 45-year history of the MVP prize.

In this year's National League MVP voting earlier this week, second baseman Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds won the prize by 167½ points over Philadelphia outfielder Greg Luzinski, which until today represented the largest plurality in history.

Only one other rookie ever came close to winning the MVP. That was Pete Reiser of the old Brooklyn Dodgers, who finished second behind teammate Dolph Camilli in 1941.

Lynn, the third straight outfielder to win the AL's top prize, was the only player named on all 24 ballots of the special BBWA committee. He received 22 of the first-place votes and two for second to finish with a total of 326 points.

Mayberry, whose name appeared on 22 ballots, was runner-up with 157 points. Jim Rice, Lynn's rookie teammate in the Red Sox outfield, was third with 154 points while Rollie Fingers, the Oakland relief ace, received the remaining first-place votes and finished fourth with 129 points.

Rounding out the top 10 were Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson, pitcher Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, New York Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, Milwaukee first baseman George Scott, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and outfielder Ken Singleton of Baltimore. In all, 31 players received votes.

The 23-year-old Lynn, a product of the University of Southern California who makes his home in El Monte, Calif., finished second in the batting race behind Carew. The lithe, young outfielder had a .331 average and led the league in runs scored with 103 and in doubles with 47.

"I am very honored that the baseball writers have chosen me as their Most Valuable Player of the American League," Lynn said. "It is the most prestigious award that a player can earn. To achieve this in my first season is a very pleasant surprise and a big thrill.

"For as long as I play in the major leagues, this year will be a very special one for me. I have to thank a few persons who helped me get where I am today. First and foremost, my father whose guidance and knowledge started me in the right direction. Secondly, my high school and college coaches, Dave Sandell and Rod Dedeaux, whose expert teaching in the field of baseball gave me a solid foundation on which to build.

"I would also like to thank my Red Sox teammates for their help and inspiration all during the season. Finally, I thank my wife, Dee Dee, who was my biggest fan when I needed one the most."

Kings end jinx, but still lose

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Bob Pulford of the Los Angeles Kings had something to be happy about as he walked away from his team's fifth straight National Hockey League loss.

Though they went down 4-2 before the Boston Bruins Tuesday night, the Kings scored their first power play goal in 34 chances.

"The power play was becoming a psychological block," said Pulford. "It was getting so we were beating ourselves with the man advantage. We were scared to touch the puck."

Three quick scores in the first period propelled the Bruins to their eighth straight win.

Dave Forbes scored his third shorthanded goal of the year after Gregg Sheppard jarred the puck away from Butch Gorin.

Rookie Doug Gibson took a pass from Bobby Orr and scored his first NHL goal at 7:49 in the opening period.

"It really felt good," he said later. "I didn't expect to play as much as I did."

Gibson had been brought up to the parent club from the Bruins' Rochester farm team to replace center Jean Ratelle, who missed the game when he reportedly went to New York on personal business.

Ken Hodge had the other goal for the Bruins in the first period and Bobby Schmautz added one in the final period for insurance.

Sheldon Kannegiesser scored twice in the final period to dash Bruins' goalie Gilles Gilbert's hopes for a shutout.

However Bruins Coach Don Cherry was still pleased with Gilbert.

"You'll notice that rebounds don't hang around the crease anymore," Cherry saidd

Gilbert credited his teammates with good defensive work.

"The guys played well in front of me," he said. "It was a great team effort.

"We want to catch Buffalo and the way we're playing I think we're going to catch them," Gilbert said.

Buffalo was shutout by Vancouver 4-0, but remained eight points ahead of Boston, which goes against the Rangers tonight in New York.

Citrus earns bowl berth

Citrus College will represent the Mission Conference in the Mission Bowl to be played at the College of the Canyons in Valencia on Saturday, Dec. 6.

The Mission Conference football coaches voted for Citrus in a poll taken Tuesday after an initial vote tally ended in a tie between co-champions Citrus and Saddle-back.

The two teams played to a 13-13 tie last week to finish conference play with 6-0-1 records. But Citrus had a 9-0-1 record for the season while Saddleback was 7-1-1.

Canyons (6-4) shared the Western States Conference title with Santa Barbara but Canyons earned the bowl berth thanks to its 30-14 victory over Santa Barbara.

Sciarra is confident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For quarterback John Sciarra of UCLA the word is confidence.

"If an athlete doesn't have confidence," says Sciarra, "he shouldn't be playing."

And Sciarra extends the same thinking into the rest of his life.

"Confidence is probably one of the most important things in life," he said.

"Anything you try, any task from going to school to football to going to work, it must involve confidence. If you don't believe in yourself, if you don't believe that you can do it, well, then you shouldn't even try."

Sciarra leads UCLA against Southern California with a trip to the Rose Bowl at stake in Friday night's game.

It will be Sciarra's first starting game against the rival Trojans even though he is a senior and has played four years of football at UCLA.

He returned kickoffs and punts his freshman year and his sophomore season split the quarterback job with Mark Harmon. He became the Bruins' No. 1 quarterback last season as a junior but suffered a broken ankle and missed the last four games of the season, including USC.

Sciarra is the heart of the Bruin offense, which ranks among the nation's most productive. He operates the Verr-T, which requires subtle faking and option plays to succeed. Despite his size, 175 pounds and 5-foot-10, Sciarra has run for 721 yards and 14 touchdowns and with 1,015 yards passing has 1,736 in total offense. Also, despite missing the four games last year he has still gained enough yards to become UCLA's No. 5 all-time runner, passing Mel Farr.

Confidence comes up again when Sciarra, called "the best college football player in the country" by UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil, talks about his central role in the Bruins' Rose Bowl hopes.

"This is going to be the first game in four years I've started against USC and it's going to be a big game for me," he said.

But he went on, "I really don't feel any added responsibility. I'm playing this position because the coaches feel I can do the best job there. I don't feel any added pressure. I'm doing something I feel I can handle and the coaches feel I can handle. It's my job to be the quarterback."

Sciarra, an all-around athlete who has played wide receiver and defensive back in his football career besides kick returner and quarterback, has been mentioned as an All-American and Heisman Trophy candidate.

"I'd be stupid to say I wouldn't want something like that," says Sciarra, whose intelligence is shown up by his B-plus grade average in sociology.

"But it's something that doesn't rate as high a priority on my list of goals," he said. "My only goal in football right now is to go to the Rose Bowl."

And he goes into the game against USC with confidence.

"I have confidence against every team we play. Confidence is the prelude to winning."

China cares about UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Indiana and UCLA, the nation's top two college basketball teams in preseason polls, clash this Saturday in St. Louis, Bruin coach Gene Bartow claims 800 million people in China "will care."

Bartow said Monday, "I think that there's going to be interest from coast to coast, Europe, China, everywhere."

UCLA's new coach might appear to be suffering delusions of grandeur concerning the importance of his second-ranked Bruins' game against the topranked Hoosiers, but he explains:

"When I took an all-star team to China in 1973, the first question I was asked was if I had coached against Bill Walton. John McKay may be right about 800 million Chinese knowing nothing about football, but they know about basketball."

While the game's importance in China may be debatable, there's no question that the nationally televised contest will attract much interest.

Indiana, No. 1 last season before losing in the NCAA playoffs, has four starters returning from that team. Defending NCAA champion UCLA has three starters back.

Lions are primed for Rams, Jessie

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — While the Detroit Lions gear up for their nationally televised Thanksgiving Day matchup with the Los Angeles Rams, they're keeping in mind that another loss would just about douse their dreams of a wildcard playoff berth.

Detroit is second in the National Football League's National Conference Midwest Division, sporting a 6-4 record.

The ground-minded Rams, meanwhile, could grab the Western Divison title and fuel their chances for the Super Bowl with a triumph against Detroit. Los Angeles, coached by former Lions' assistant Chuck Knox, goes into the game with an 8-2 record.

The game has added interest because it will bring Rams' players Ron Jessie and Cullen Bryant to Pontiac Stadium.

Jessie was the Lions' top receiver last year. He played out his option and was signed by the Rams.

Running back Cullen Bryant was to be awarded to the Lions as compensation, according to the order from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

But Bryant didn't like the transfer idea, and threatened court action. Rozelle then changed his stance and said the Rams would have to give Detroit a future No. 1 draft choice for Jessie.

Lions' Coach Rick Forzano warned the Rams at the time that they could keep their running backs, and the Lions would be waiting for Bryant on Thanksgiving Day.

Now, one day before the talked-about game, Forzano is calmer.

"I was upset by the whole situation — we didn't get the best deal in the history of the NFL," the Lions mentor reflected.

"You know how I feel about Ron...I like him as a player and as a person and I wish we still had him.

"I probably said too much," Forzano added about the incident. "I have nothing against Cullen Bryant...but we'd still like to stick him Thursday," Forzano grinned.

Bryant has moved ahead of John Cappelletti in the order of Ram running backs and alternated with Jim Bertelsen alongside Lawrence McCutcheon.

Jessie said in a telephone interview from his Los Angeles home Tuesday that he doesn't expect a particularly warm reception on his return to Detroit.

"I've heard boos before — plenty of times," Jessie laughed. "I've never talked to Cullen about it. He's a quiet dude and doesn't talk very much about anything. But he'll hear it from the fans.

"I'll really try to treat the game just as another game and do the best I can," Jessie said.

"I'm sure they'll be primed and well-primed. But I would love to have a fantastic day in Detroit on Thanksgiving."

Jessie's loss has hurt the Lions, along with a string of injuries to the wide receivers that replaced him. He's been busy catching 31 passes for the Rams — six more than any Lion receiver.

Jessie's feud with Detroit centered in the Lions' front office.

"It got beyond the money thing," he said Tuesday, although he added that he felt he was badly underpaid. "It got to a point where I didn't think I was appreciated."

Mended Trojans ready

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California football Coach John McKay, who has had problems at quarterback, tight end, wide receiver and center, appears to have gotten a break by having his final regular season game a week later than usual.

In McKay's final game as a college coach in Los Angeles, strong-armed, weak-thumbed Vince Evans will be back at quarterback Friday when USC meets UCLA.

Evans didn't start in USC's 8-7 loss to Washington two weeks ago because of the injury, but "all year I've thought Vince was the best quarterback and I really think the thumb is 100 per cent now," McKay said Tuesday. "It doesn't seem to be bothering him in practice. He's thrown well for the last week."

Evans was injured early in the year and McKay said the quarterback's 29 per cent pass completion mark may be due to the bad thumb.

"It doesn't hurt constantly," said McKay, "but on occasion he'd take the snap from center and it'd hit him wrong. And you can't concentrate on throwing very well when you're in pain."

The Trojan-Bruin battle, originally scheduled for last Saturday, was set back six days when a television contract was signed calling for it to be shown nationally.

McKay, who will join the National Football League's Tampa team in 1976, told football writers in his last regular meeting here that the extra week helped his team.

"Last week we didn't have a real tight end but I think Mike Howell looks like he might be able to play." Howell had been only No. 3 on the squad, but two others are out with injuries.

Offensive guard Greg Beard will be at center because of injuries to two others. Dennis Thurman will be at wide receiver for injured Shelton Diggs.

A UCLA victory earns the Bruins a Rose Bowl berth. Win or lose, USC is headed for the Liberty Bowl.

McKay said, "I don't think there'll be a lack of emotion." But he didn't think his team would try to give him a going-away present with a victory. "I would prefer that they win it for themselves.

"This will be a great game because most of our players have known a lot of the Bruin players for a long time," he said. "Many of them go out together socially. I think that's a good thing. That's what college football should be all about. I don't take the view that you should hate the other team."

Then McKay grew mellow about his last college game in Los Angeles. "I've enjoyed my stay here. The people have been good to me. But we all have to say goodbye sometime. Some day you'll see the Bear leave Alabama. Woody's eventually gonna walk out of there the last time some day."

Then he asked writers, "Well, gentlemen, any more questions?" Hearing no response, he said, "Thank you very much for all the good years. Now I'm going to go quietly into the sunset."

Davis makes Shrine squad

Southern Cal offensive guard Joe Davis, a Claremont High product, was added to the West squad for the 51st Shrine East-West Game, Jan. 3 at Stanford Stadium.

Player selection chairman Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf made the selection along with others for the annual all-star contest.

The others were Stanford placekicker Mike Langford and linebacker Geb Church, Oregon State linebacker Bob Horn, Oregon defensive back Mario Clark and Washington center Ray Pinney.

Valley cage coaches anxious for openers

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Valley basketball coaches are eager to start the season this weekend.

As expected, all of the coaches attending the first basketball luncheon of the season Tuesday at The Castaway Restaurant are optimistic about their prospects.

Quoting the coaches:

GENE VICTOR, MSAC: "We have five lettermen back from a team which compiled a 24-4 record. We host the Alumni Wednesday night (tonight) and will start a lineup of guards Jeff Cox and Jeff Nelson, center Angel Santiago and forwards Tom Pokorski and Duaine Harding. We feel we have three good freshman recruits in Dick Rockwood from Los Altos, Steve Nichols from Rowland and Santiago from North Carolina. We'll have some problems early in the season. It's tough to replace George Schader. He is one of the best players we've ever had. Bill Hewitt will be playing for the Alumni. He last played for the Chicago Bulls. Bill lives in Pomona and he says he is in good shape. We visit Glendale Friday night and host Rio Hondo Saturday."

NEIL EDWARDS, Citrus: "We'll be short again. Our front line of Roland Allbright, Sukie Melgoza and Paul Walls are all 6-3. We have three guards in Larry Eustachy, Skeeter Wilson and Danny Wilson. We'll bring in Steve Barnes as our top reserve up front. Those seven will carry the load for us early in the season. We're small but good leapers. We visit East L.A. Friday and host Antelope Valley Saturday."

ART BIAS, La Verne: "We are hosting our first invitational tournament at the Supertent this weekend. Cal Poly will play Cal State Dominguez Hills Friday at 7 p.m. and we will play Cal Lutheran at 9. It promises to be an exciting tournament. We're hoping maybe to build this into an eight-team tourney in the future. We're trying to gear it into a community-type event. We have three returning lettermen in Jon Russ, Tim Gillette and Dan Carroll. Six other people should make us an exciting team. We're a little optimistic. We feel we have a group which works well together. Lack of height will hurt us but I feel we're ready for the season. It's the first year I can say that."

DON HOGAN, Cal Poly: "We have 7½ lettermen returning. Denny Weisse is questionable right now because of an ankle injury. We will be led by Paul Newton and Joe Sills, a pair of All-Conference players. We expect the same type of performance this year. We'll start a lineup of forwards Newton and Jack Gamulin, center Mark Bernhard and guards Sills and Tom Ispas. Jack Costello, a freshman from Indiana, will be a big help to us. We have the makings of winning our conference. I feel we have the talent to do it and that's our goal. We enjoy the La Verne Tournament because it gives us a good chance to play locally."

LES NAGLER, Pomona-Pitzer: "I feel good about our progress. We're further along today than in other years especially on defense. We had our largest turnout in years. We almost have too many players because of the new traveling limitations put in by the NCAA. We have seven potential lettermen. Garry Stewart is still out from injuries suffered in an auto accident. We also have to fill Geoff Northrop's spot. We haven't decided on starters yet except for Scott Pease and Brandon Boyd. We have a 6-9 freshman in Ed McFadden, who is the tallest man ever at Pomona. The only thing he needs is experience."

DAVE WELLS, Claremont-Mudd: "We have five returning lettermen in Johnny Daniels, Stu DuVall, Ron Kasdorf, Dave Willhite and Bob Smith. Mark Sunderland is up from the JVs and Marty Habern from Bonita High is playing again after sitting out a season. We're basically a young team and I'm excited about the year because of their enthusiasm. We open a week from Thursday in the Redlands Tournament against Azusa, Pacific. We have a good group of freshmen. The top prospect is James Pipkins, a transfer from the Air Force Academy."

CLIFF HAMLOW, Azusa Pacific: "We only lost two players from last year but when you were 12-16, I don't know if that is good or not. We're ready for the season to open Saturday night at the University of San Diego. It will be difficult to pick a lineup but we'll probably open with Ken Lukhard, Keith Walker and Bruce Breeden up front plus Rob Carver and Jim Sporleder in the backcourt. We have some talented freshmen in Jay Wetzel from Walnut, Rick Dillon from Palos Verdes and Mike Street from Wilson. It's hard to figure what we have. We're going to have to see."

Don't get Burleson mad

By The Associated Press

Don't shoot at Tom Burleson. It's liable to get him mad.

Neal Walk made that mistake Tuesday night and Seattle's big man turned on him and the rest of the New York Knicks with ferocity. The result was a 128-127 overtime National Basketball Association victory for the SuperSonics.

"I got pretty upset with myself," Burleson said after allowing Walk to score 15 points in the first quarter. "I figured I better do something."

He did, all right. The seven-footer held Walk to just six points the rest of the way and then went on a scoring spree himself.

Burleson wound up with a game-high 35 points, the highest of his career in the two years he's been out of North Carolina State.

"He's a big guy and hard to handle," said New York Coach Red Holtzman. "We tried to pick him up, keep him boxed out. It's tough to stop when a big guy gets inside you."

Walk was impressed with the big man's performance, too.

"He's a young basketball player and has a lot to learn," said the veteran. "But he has a nice touch for such a big fellow."

In the other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Golden State Warriors 109-108, the Houston Rockets trimmed the Washington Bullets 100-89 and the Cleveland Cavaliers whipped the Chicago Bulls 98-94.

In the only American Basketball Association game played, the Kentucky Colonels tripped the Utah Stars 125-123 in double overtime.

Burleson's 35 points included six in overtime and helped the Sonics put the Knicks away. Walt Frazier sparked the Knicks in the final period with six field goals and Earl Monroe scored the final points to end regulation time tied at 116-116.

In the extra period, Burleson contributed two field goals and two free throws and Bruce Seals fired in a field goal which provided the decisive points.

Fred Brown chipped in with 29 points for Seattle, which has won five straight.

76ers 109, Warriors 108

Fred Carter hit a 25-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give Philadelphia its victory over Golden State. The defending NBA champion Warriors had taken a 108-107 lead on Charles Dudley's two free throws with three seconds left before Carter came through for the 76ers. Golden State's Rick Barry thought his team was robbed by the time clock operator.

"In all my 11 years, I've never seen anybody hurt us like the man running the time clock did tonight," fumed Barry. "It was the worst ever. He's paid to run the clock honestly, and we were cheated."

Rockets 100, Bullets 89

Calvin Murphy poured in 24 of his game-high 32 points in the second half to lead Houston over Washington. Murphy drove through the Bullets defense for 12 points in the third period and added another dozen in the fourth as the Rockets won for the first time in eight tries at the Capital Centre.

Cavaliers 98, Bulls 94

Campy Russell and Jim Chones sparked a fourth-quarter comeback that lifted Cleveland over Chicago and handed the Bulls their ninth consecutive defeat.

The Bulls, who equalled their longest losing streak ever, overcame a 16-point deficit late in the third quarter before inconsistent shooting enabled Cleveland to win.

"The fans who saw our second half tonight, in which we almost pulled the game out, saw this year's version of the Bulls play up to their potential," said Chicago Coach Dick Motta.

Colonels 125, Stars 123

Artis Gilmore poured in 45 points, including Kentucky's last six, to lead the Colonels to a thrilling double-overtime victory over Utah. The 7-foot-2 Gilmore put Kentucky ahead in the second extra period 121-119 with a stuff, added two free throws and with 1:27 left settled the issue with another stuff.

Sun players seek salaries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two former members of the Southern California Sun of the defunct World Football League have filed suit against the team's owner, Sam Battistone, seeking back pay totaling about $500,000, The Associated Press learned Tuesday.

The class action suit filed in Orange County Superior Court last Wednesday asked for $200,000 in back pay for games played and another $300,000 in salaries specified in player contracts.

The plaintiffs were Jack Connors, a defensive back, and Gary Dixon, a running back, and they filed the suit on behalf of themselves and 24 teammates including wide receivers Dave Williams and John McKay, quarterbacks Pat Haden and Mike Ernst and defensive tackle Dave Roller.

The defendants were Sun Football, Inc., Battistone and former president and general manager Larry Hatfield.

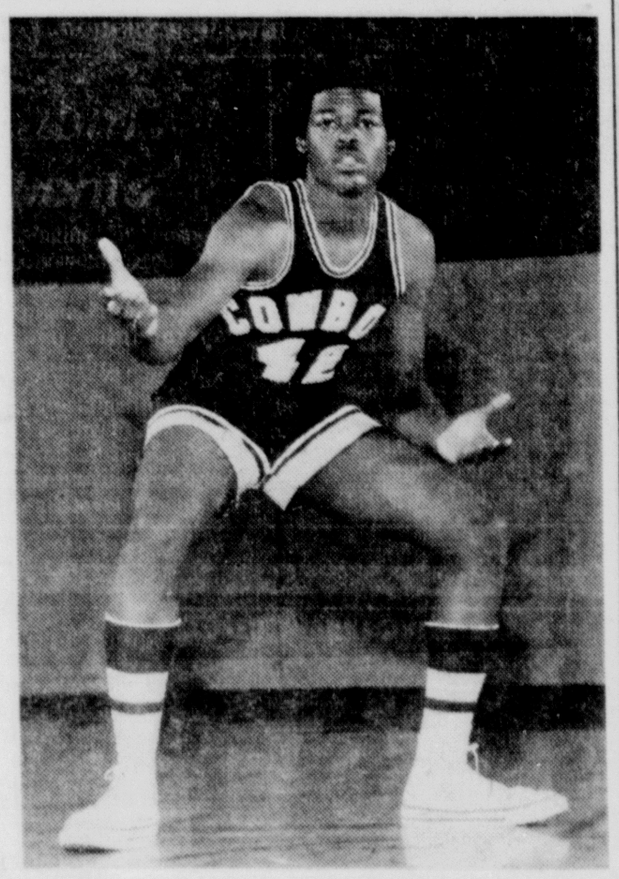

Battistone is the owner of the Sambos restaurant chain and is a majority owner of the New Orleans Jazz of the National Basketball Association.

Attorney Roger Saevig of Orange, Calif., who filed the suit, said he met with 15 of the players Monday and he said he expects all to remain plaintiffs until a conclusion.

A spokesman for Orange County Superior Court confirmed that the suit had been filed. It has not yet been assigned to a judge. Battistone could not be reached for comment. His secretary said he was away from his Santa Barbara, Calif., offices for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Linebacker Eric Patton, another of those seeking back pay from the club said, "We are suing for the balance of our salaries because of certain promises and enticements which were made to us, to get us to sign fixed-salary contracts."

The 26 players all were on fixed-salary contracts, unlike some other players who signed contracts based on a percentage of ticket sales.

STARTS COLLEGE CAREER — Former Garey High star Delbert McDonald will begin his University of Wyoming basketball career Saturday night when the Cowboys host Western State (Colo.). McDonald led Garey to CIF 3-A championship last year.

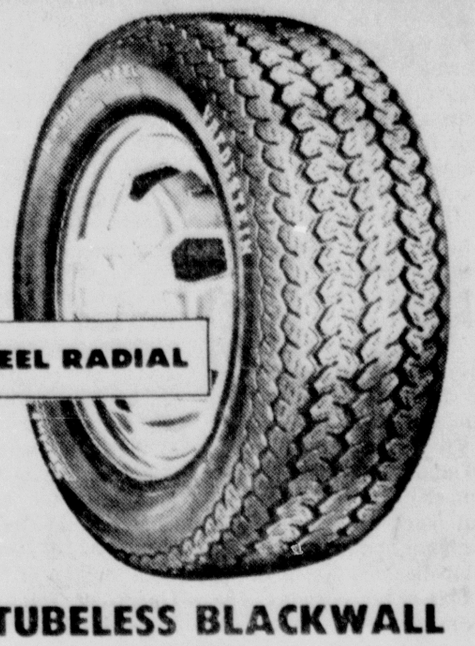

Damien's sophs go 9-0

The Damien High sophomore football team recently finished San Antonio League play with an unbeaten 9-0 ledger.

The Spartan sophs nailed down the perfect year with a 21-7 win over Chino last Friday.

The team, coached by Matt Kolodge, Dan Carroll and Bob Vislay, duplicated the feats of the 1973 Damien sophs, who also went 9-0 and won the SAL sophomore football title.

Bell, Griffin Dorsett honored

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Ohio State's Archie Griffin, Southern California's Ricky Bell and Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh were named Tuesday to the backfield of the American Football Coaches All-American team.

Joining them in the backfield are quarterback John Sciarra of UCLA and Texas fullback Earl Campbell.

Two extra backs, one on offense and one on defense, were named to the 24-man squad this year.

The Selmon brothers of Oklahoma, tackle Leroy and end Dewey, anchor the defensive line which also includes end Leroy Cook of Alabama and Notre Dame tackle Steve Niehaus. The Selmons are the only family ever to have three members honored by the coaches. Lucius Selmon was named to the 1973 team.

The remainder of the offensive team consists of Henry Marshall of Missouri and Steve Rivera at ends, Marvin Powell of South California and Bob Simmons of Texas at tackles, Dennis Lick of Wisconsin and Randy Johnson of Georgia at guards and center Rik Bonness of Nebraska.

The rest of the defensive unit is made up of linebackers Ed Simonini of Texas A&M, Reggie Williams of Dartmouth and Ray Preston of Syracuse, and defensive backs Pat Thomas of Texas A&M, Tim Fox of Ohio State, Chet Moeller of Navy, Don Dufek of Michigan and Mike Haynes of Arizona State.

The squad is selected annually for Kodak.

Sports briefs

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Ivan Edeshko hit two field goals in the final 11 seconds to lift the Soviet National basketball team to a 63-62 conquest of Alabama Tuesday night as the Crimson Tide blew a five-point lead in the closing minutes.

Baskets by Reginald King and T.R. Dunn and a free throw by center Leon Douglas gave Alabama its five-point margin in the final minutes before Edeshko keyed the Soviets late rally to win before 10,043 fans.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Albuquerque driver Bobby Unser, two-time Indianapolis-500 winner and twice U.S. Auto Club national driving champion, signed Tuesday to pilot Fletcher Racing Team cars on the 1976 USAC circuit.

"As soon as I had heard that Dan Gurney (Unser's former car owner) had hired Wally Dallenbach, I wanted to talk to Bobby immediately because we feel he is one of the very best drivers in the country," said Bob Fletcher, who will enter his fourth year of USAC competition next year with two new McLarens and three Eagles.

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings and the Minnesota North Stars of the National hockey League have traded two minor league forwards.

The Reds Wings Tuesday traded veteran right winger Pierre Jarry, 26, to the North Stars for Don Martineau, 23.

Both players have been with the New Haven Night Hawks in the American Hockey League, a team owned jointly by the Wings and the North Stars.

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Bob Griese has only a remote chance of returning to the Miami Dolphins this season, even if the club makes it to the Super Bowl on Jan. 18, according to the team's physician.

Dr. Herbert Virgin performed a two-hour operation on Griese Tuesday to repair ruptured muscles and tendons in the big toe of his right foot. Virgin said he repaired the torn capsule joint that joins the big toe to the foot and two torn flexor muscles.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals may have to face the Houston Oilers Sunday without Ken Anderson, the National Football League's leading passer for yardage, and placekicker Dave Green is getting a refresher course from famed Lou "The Toe" Groza.

Anderson was listed Tuesday as doubtful for Sunday's game after suffering a badly bruised chest in last Sunday's game with the Cleveland Browns. A team physician said it was "very stiff and very, very sore."

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Fifth-seeded Harold Solomon defeated fellow American Brian Gottfried 6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1 to win the men's singles title in the South African Open tennis championships.

OSAKA, Japan — Defending champion John Newcombe of Australia advanced to the semifinals of a $100,000 international tennis tournament with a 7-6, 7-5 victory over Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

HELSINKI — Ilie Nastase of Romania downed Leif Johansson of Sweden 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 and moved on to the semifinals of the first international tennis tournament ever held in Finland.

NEW YORK — Channelette, $10.40, edged out Spring Is Here by 1¼ lengths to capture the $25,000 Moccasin Handicap at Aqueduct Racetrack.

SAN MATEO, Calif. — Monter, $11.60, galloped to a half-length victory over New Plan and won the feature race at Bay Meadows.

PHILADELPHIA — Oxford Jack, 7.20, rallied in the stretch to nose out Chief Nocoton and take the allowance feature at Keystone Racetrack.

Flames seek some relief

By The Associated Press

The National Hockey League schedule maker hasn't done the Atlanta Flames any favors this week.

The Flames were extinguished 4-0 by the tough Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night and now face the task of playing the rough Philadelphia Flyers tonight.

"It's going to be tough in Philly tonight, having back to back games like these two," admits Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton.

Tuesday night's defeat certainly unsettled Creighton and might have unsettled the entire Atlanta team for that matter.

"That was the best performance I've ever seen a goalie turn in," said Creighton after watching Montreal's Ken Dryden dazzle his players. "I've watched a lot of goaltending and that was the best.

"We played pretty well against a good team and can't even get on the boards. That's a real downer."

Recording his fourth shutout of the young season, Dryden lowered his goals-against average to an amazing 1.81 a game.

Crusaders 4, Toros 3

Gerry Pinder's goal at 2:36 of the overtime period gave Cleveland its victory over Toronto. Pinder took a pass from linemate Ron Ward and drove a hard shot past the left side of Toronto goalie Jim Shaw, making his first start on home ice this season.

Aeros 4, Racers 1

Gordie Howe's 856th career goal followed first-period scores by linemates Don Larraway and Terry Ruskowski as Houston beat Indianapolis. The victory was Houston's fourth in a row and its 10th in the last 13 games. The Aeros have won seven games at home without a loss.

Saints 3, Whalers 2

Mike Antonovich converted a Dave Keon pass at 6:22 of overtime to give Minnesota an exciting triumph over New England. The Whalers had tied the game with only 10 seconds remaining in regulation play when Ron Climie rapped his own rebound past Minnesota goalie John Garrett.

Mariners 7, Oilers 2

Kevin Devine and Gene Peacosh scored two goals each and center Andre Lacroix added a goal and three assists to lead San Diego over Edmonton.

Canucks 4, Sabres 0

Gary Smith's impeccable goaltending and Ron Sedlbauer's two-goal performance led Vancouver over Buffalo. A roaring crowd of 15,570 at the Pacific Coliseum watched Smith turn aside 35 shots by the tough Sabres.

The Canucks, outshot 35-27 by the Sabres, made their shots count while running their unbeaten streak to seven and handing Buffalo only its fourth loss in 21 games so far this season.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — The 35th running of J.C. Agajanian's annual 100-lap USAC midget Thanksgiving night Grand Prix is set for its Speedway 605 debut Thursday night. It is the first time the event has been held on a paved track.

Defending champion Danny Knight of La Verne will be running against favorites Johnny Rutherford, Duane "Pancho Carter," Mel Kenyon, Gary Bettenhausen and Lee Kunzman.

Gates open 5:30 p.m. Qualifying starts at 6 p.m. and racing starts at 8 p.m. The 24 fastest qualifiers plus the first four finishers in the 15 lap semi-final will start the 100-lap Grand Prix.

IRWINDALE — Fun and Grudge racing is slated from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. tonight at Irwindale Raceway in the final program of the year.

The drag racing season concludes Saturday with 200 racers competing in eight separate brackets. Irwindale Raceway will be closed in December for maintenance repairs and the drag strip reconditioned for January's season opener.

* * *

IRWINDALE — Late model and modified stock cars race beginning at 7:30 at Speedway 605. Limited and street stocks are featured beginning at 2 p.m.

* * *

VALENCIA — Class "C" short track motocycle races are slated Friday night at Indian Dunes Park. Action packed motocross is scheduled Sunday beginning at 9 a.m.

'Pack lone winner in 'polo playoffs

Only one of the three San Antonio League entries made it out of the second round Tuesday in CIF 3-A water polo competition.

Claremont High proved to be the lone winner, as the Wolfpack swam past Whittier 11-8 at the Rio Hondo College pool. Tuesday's losers were SAL champ Upland and SAL third place finisher Montclair. The Scots were derailed by La Serna by a 7-5 score while Montclair fell to Riverside Poly 10-7.

Marty Jackson paced the 'Pack triumph. Jackson, son of Cal Poly water polo coach Stan Jackson, scored four goals to lead the Claremont offensive attack. Paul Beasom, Craig Hildebrand and Steve Smith chipped in with two apiece for the winners.

Claremont led 7-2 at the half and then held off a late charge by Whittier thanks to some keen defensive play by goalie Dave McCutcheon and his mates.

The 'Pack will now continue in CIF playoff action as the lone valley representative. Claremont will be back in action Friday in the 3-A quarterfinals, as coach Gene McCarthy's crew will be meeting Sonora High of La Habra. Sonara beat San Marino 7-5 Tuesday to advance.

The exact site and time of the Claremont-Sonora match will be determined by a coin flip between the two schools today.

League looks for adults

The Diamond Bar Little League is holding its annual registration for managers, coaches and umpires at the Diamond Bar Country Club on Dec.2 from 8 to 10 p.m. and on Dec. 3 from 8 to 9:30 p.m.

Written applications are required and must be submitted to the league no later than Dec. 10.

Those unable to sign-up for umpires during the registration may contact Larry MacFarling at 595-2449.

We eat vegetables and fruit nearly every day, yet it is quite difficult to say exactly what the difference between them is.

The popular distinction between fruits and vegetables is that fruits, in general, are crops, such as apples, berries, and oranges that grow on trees, shrubs, vines and other plants that live and produce fruit for a number of years.

Vegetables are foods from the leaves, stems, roots, tubers and other edible parts of plants that grow but during a single season.

But to a botanist, any part of the plant that has developed from a flower and contains seeds is a fruit.

To botanists, many vegetables are actually fruit. The tomato, for example, is commonly called a vegetable, but, like apples, it is really a fleshy fruit with seeds.

Cucumbers, melons, squash, and pea pods can also be called fruits, because they contain seeds.

It all depends on how technical we want to be.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

'Last rose on the bush'

New life loses an old friend

By IRA BERKOW

Shortly after her 78th birthday, Dr. Beatrice E. Tucker reluctantly came out of quasi-retirement to deliver a baby at the mother's home. It was a rather easy affair in a clean apartment, and Dr. Tucker, an obstetrician, did not have to climb through an attic window, or crawl onto a dirt floor, or deliver the baby among orange crates in a grocery store, or in an alley.

Nor were there any riot-squad National Guardsmen with bayonets protecting the doors, nor was the newborn baby a dope addict and, as Dr. Tucker walked to the apartment building, no friendly strangers warned her, "Don't be comin' 'round here, Miss, it's dangerous — you can be raped."

All that and more have occurred in the 41 years, from 1932 to 1973, that Dr. Tucker was the medical director for the Chicago Maternity Center, located in a West Side ghetto.

In the time there, she had a hand in over 100,000 home delivery births, either literally or as a supervisor. It was the only home delivery service in the United States staffed by physicians. She retired from the Center in 1973, and not long after the Center itself closed down its home delivery service for lack of funds and, conceivably, lack of inspiration.

Inspiration is what Dr. Tucker provided a lot of. She became the director at the depths of the Depression, when the old three-story, graystone building was transformed into a maternity center. She lived in the basement for a year organizing the operations, along with the famous obstetrician, Dr. Joseph DeLee. The neighborhood was dirty and dangerous. Stray gunshots cracked through the windows, Dr. Tucker ducked, and went on working.

She says she thrived on the excitement.

After leaving the Maternity Center she continued doing pre-natal care for the Chicago Board of Health, and on rare occasions delivering a baby at home.

Then last year she said she was finished completely. She said she was "slipping," that cataracts were impairing her vision and that she no longer had the energy to properly sew the womb after the birth.

But when another doctor friend took ill and asked her to handle a home delivery birth for her, she consented. However, she emphasizes, "I had a lot of help with me."

In the book, "The Fight For Life," written by Paul de Kruif in 1933, he referred to Dr. Tucker as "a woman of the future." Now, Dr. Tucker describes herself as "the last rose on the bush."

This is in reference to the virtual extinction of home deliveries.

"Most doctors have never seen a baby born at home, and, they don't know how to do it," said Dr. Tucker recently, at a South Side medical center where she remains doing gynecological work. She is nearly six feet tall, with short gray hair, owl-rim glasses, a quick, high, delighted-sounding voice. She wore under her white smock a black turtleneck with a silver-and-turquoise Apache-made necklace.

"And most hospitals won't deliver a case unless it has been pre-registered by at least the seventh month," she continued. "You know, I also had a big private practice and made money, but the part I enjoyed most was down there at the Center. I thought I was making my best professional contribution down there. We took any case, and many of them were police calls. That's where a lot of the thrills came in."

It seemed very little came easy in Dr. Tucker's life. First, her father made a fine living as a self-appointed, unlicensed doctor, while she and her mother and father were always on the hoof, usually just ahead of the law.

Dr. Tucker went into medicine because she was determined to grasp some respectability for herself and her family.

She became the first woman resident at the University of Chicago Lying-In Hospital in 1922. She would work under Dr. DeLee, a great but gruff man.

"When I first got to the hospital I remember him introducing me to a surgeon, in front of several people. He said, 'This is the new resident, Doctor Tucker.' And then in front of everybody, 'Of course, she'll never be able to do what you've done, Doctor so-and-so.' And I was just furious.

"And so after this meeting I went trouncing into his office and said, 'I would like to have a word with you. You know, I don't think you are a very nice man. I don't think you have treated me properly. I am the first woman here, and it may be difficult enough without you making it more difficult.' I never had any trouble with him again."

Her spiritedness has been widely admired. She never married but was one of the first single women in Illinois to adopt children. (A few years ago she delivered her first grandchild on a kitchen table.).

And not until she was in her 70s did she stop going into ghetto projects alone on calls. ("I was too old to rape, but friends convinced me I wasn't too old to be slugged.")

Not long ago she had an operation on her hip. She was soon on her feet again. One evening as she and a friend were walking slowly down a street, Dr. Tucker sensed his apprehension. "Well, I may tilt and wobble a little," she said presently, "but I won't fall."

He's 92, but still teaching

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — If Dr. John Smith isn't the oldest active teacher in New Mexico — and perhaps in the nation — the students and faculty at the Roswell campus of Eastern New Mexico University would like to know who is.

Dr. Smith, who was 92 in November, has been teaching mathematics and physics since the school was launched in 1958. He has missed only three days' teaching, because of illness.

It was in 1950 that Dr. Smith had to retire because of age as head of the physics department at New Mexico Military Institute where he had taught for 20 years. He immediately sought employment at the Walker Air Force Base, where he was an electronics repairman until offered his present teaching position.

Dr. Smith started his career at 21 in a one-room schoolhouse in southern Indiana, at $48 per month.

Mills to push Jackson's bid

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Senate President pro tem James Mills, D-San Diego, says he will be a state cochairman in U.S. Sen. Henry Jackson's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mills announced Monday that the other cochairman is state Treasurer Jesse Unruh, who had already been appointed California campaign chairman for Jackson.

McCloskey hoping to debate Reagan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Congressman Pete McCloskey, who campaigned against former President Nixon in New Hampshire four years ago, says he would like to debate Ronald Reagan there this time.

McCloskey, who says he is supporting President Ford, challenged the former California governor to a series of a debates leading up to the Feb. 24 primary in New Hampshire. Reagan declared his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination last week.

"Reagan is programmed so beautifully that when he's allowed to speak in generalities, he sounds fine. It's only when someone asks him the tough questions that we can find out what he really thinks," McCloskey said recently in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C.

"I don't believe there are any reasoning powers behind the programmed articulation of Ronald Reagan," McCloskey added, "and I would like to test this thesis in open debate."

McCloskey said he did not consult with President Ford before issuing the debate challenge, and Reagan so far has not responded.

State ships more wine

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shipments of California wine to the market totaled a record-setting 154 million gallons the first seven months of 1975, an increase of 9.6 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to figures released by the Wine Institute.

The trade association of California's wine growers said a breakdown of figures shows table wine, which accounts for two-thirds of the state's production, was up 11 per cent; appetizer and dessert wines rose 8 per cent.

Poly gets $600,000 grant for expansion

Kellogg West Community educational center at Cal Poly Pomona, will begin a $1.5 million expansion with major funding from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich.

The award of a new $600,000 Kellogg Foundation grant was announced Tuesday by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the Cal State University and Colleges and Robert C. Kramer, president of Cal Poly Pomona.

The new award, coupled with a recent similar-sized grant and funding commitments from California donors, will finance the center's enlargement, including the doubling of its residential facilities.

Dumke said that, with the latest grants, the Kellogg Foundation will have provided $4.2 million for Kellogg West, a center for continuing education in the state college and university system. In 1968, the foundation made the initial $3 million grant for the present structures.

Construction will start within a few months to enlarge the overnight facilities from the present 102 people in double-occupancy rooms to accommodate another 100 people. Also to be added are additional conference and special classrooms.

The units will also house Cal Poly's new curriculum for the hospitality industry.

Kramer said that Kellogg West, which includes a wide range of conference and dining facilities, is used by more than 30,000 persons a year.

This includes more than 1,800 business, government, agricultural and civic groups which have taken advantage of the residential and conference facilities since the center opened in 1971, Kramer added.

Kellogg West is one of nine residential centers and the only one in the western states to be established through grants by the foundation for programs of continuing education.

State reimbursements too small

Valley anesthesiologists to drop Medi-Cal patients

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Anesthesiologists at the three largest hospitals in the valley will cease to care for Medi-Cal patients this weekend.

State reimbursements are too small to help the physicians meet their increased insurance premiums, a spokesman said.

The anesthesiologists at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Pomona, San Dimas Community Hospital and San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland, have voted to reject surgeries in all but dire emergencies, according to Dr. Nathan Martin of PVCH.

"However, we will assist in surgeries in cases of real emergencies where the patients cannot be transferred to a county hospital," added Dr. Martin.

Officials at Park Avenue Hospital in Pomona, Chino General Hospital and Doctors Hospital at Montclair report that, at present, these hospitals will continue surgeries and obstetrical care involving Medi-Cal patients.

It was explained that these hospitals supplement physician anesthesiologists with certified nursing personnel on their staffs as anesthesiologists. Thus, the medical malpractice insurance problem facing physicians does not affect these individuals.

Dr. Martin said that, as of Jan. 1, 1976, the average anesthesiologists will have his premiums raised from approximately $4,000 this year to somewhat over $30,000 for the next year.

The doctors say they cannot afford to treat Medi-Cal patients because of the low rates paid by the state for such care.

"We are being reimbursed only about one-half of our normal fees for care of the Medi-Cal patients," added Dr. Martin. "Therefore, in the face of the drastically increased insurance rates, we must refuse these cases."

Dr. Martin reported that Whittier Presbyterian Hospital anesthesiologists took the same action earlier this month and doctors at Inter-Community Hospital in Covina and Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina are presently considering future action. These staffs have not yet made statements.

The California Medical Association (CMA) expects many doctors and hospitals to refuse treatment of the state's 1.5 million Medi-Cal patients by January because of escalating professional liability insurance rates.

All local hospitals report that, to date, most Medi-Cal patients are still being accepted.

If private hospitals in the Southland do refuse care of the state-assisted patients, the influx at the counties limited facilities is expected to create many problems and delays in patient care, Los Angeles County health officials said.

The problems faced by Medi-Cal recipients are not expected to be shared by those on the federal Medicare program.

Prediction of rain cheers firefighters

By JON MORRIS

Firefighters started to gain the upper hand on the raging Mt. Baldy brushfire Wednesday afternoon but the huge blaze was burning northwesterly toward difficult terrain at Rattlesnake Peak.

Forestry officials claimed 30 per cent containment but that involved mostly the southerly flank near Baldy Village and into the lower San Antonio ranger station.

Prediction of rain by late today or early Friday was enouraging to forestry officals, who indicated it couldn't come too soon. The National Weather Service predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers by this afternoon.

The rain was to be accompanied by winds gusting to 25 miles an hour, the service reported.

More than 23,000 acres have been burned already, and fire officials did not seem happy about prospects of the blaze moving northwest toward Rattlesnake Peak, 10 miles north of San Dimas.

No structures have been lost except for the cabin that started the fire in Baldy Village Sunday evening.

Baldy residents started getting back to normal Wednesday, with the opening of the road to all traffic in both directions, according to highway patrolmen.

A forestry spokesman indicated trouble, however, with the northwesterly direction of the blaze, toward Crystal Lake above Azusa. Highway 39 was closed Wednesday to all motorists.

No major injuries to firemen have been reported. About 2,000 men are on the fire lines.

Meanwhile, the Big Tujunga fire was about 80 per cent contained, according to fire officals.

Full containment was predicted for 6 p.m. today.

The remaining 20 per cent of the perimeter still considered vulnerable to the fire's spread lay along the remote northwest side, far from populated areas.

Some firefighters were being shifted from Tujunga, northwest of Los Angeles, to the Baldy fire.

President proposes $2.3 billion NYC loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford proposed Wednesday night a federal aid program offering short-term loans of up to $2.3 billion to rescue New York City from its financial crisis.

Ford said leaders of the state and the city have made "the tough decisions" to shape a realistic program to bail the city out — and he added, "I have quite frankly been surprised that they have come as far as they have."

With that, the President dropped his resistance to a federal rescue mission for the troubled city, and outlined a three-year plan he said can be conducted without expense to the nation's taxpayers.

What Ford proposed to Congress is a program of loans that would be available during each of the next three years, with authority to make them expiring on June 30, 1978.

The loans each year could be as high as $2.3 billion, but every loan would have to be repaid in full at the end of each year.

The interest rate on the loans would be one per cent higher than the rate the federal government pays for its short-term borrowings currently that is seven per cent.

At the outset, any loans for New York City would have to be funneled through the state government. A Ford aide said that is because the city's Emergency Financial Control Board, set up in an earlier effort to find a way out of the crisis, is an agency of the state.

Court challenged in war crime trial of U.S. housewife

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan went on trial with 13 other former Nazi concentration camp officials Wednesday, and her lawyer promptly challenged the right of a West German court to try the Austrian-born New York housewife for mass murders committed in Poland more than 30 years ago.

The proceeding, dealing with the deaths of at least 250,000 Jewish inmates of the Majdanek concentration camp outside Lublin, is being billed in the press here as the last of the major German war crimes trials.

Presiding Judge Guenter Bogen is to rule next Monday on the defense motion that Mrs. Ryan is an Austrian citizen and cannot be held accountable in West Germany for war crimes committed against non-Germans in a foreign land during World War II.

West section of Mall opened to cars, but response light

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

For the first time in 13 years the west section of the downtown Pomona Mall was opened to traffic Wednesday.

Traffic was light throughout the first day, businessmen reported.

They anticipate that as residents become aware that they may now drive west along the Mall from Garey to Park avenues traffic will pick up.

John Evans of the John P. Evans Store at 269 Pomona Mall West said the merchants feel that opening that section of the Mall to traffic will help their Christmas business.

Evans, a director of the Central Business District, said the merchants had been asking to make this move for the past four years. He described it as an experiment and said that if it is accepted by the public, the plan is to open the east end of the Mall.

Mall traffic is limited to 15 miles per hour, for the safety of pedestrians who for 13 years have had exclusive use of the entire street area.

Drivers may not park.

Evans said there had been a great deal of positive and enthusiastic comment about opening the Mall to traffic from merchants and the public.

"In fact," he said, "I think some of the merchants on the east end of the Mall feel a little left out."

City Council voted 4-1 to open the west end of the Mall, formerly Second Street, to traffic. Mayor Ray Lepire cast the no vote, citing potential traffic problems.

Second Street was closed in 1962 when Mall construction began.

Weather

Hazy sunshine today, but changing temperatures and a chance of showers tonight and early Friday. Winds gusting to 25 miles an hour. High Wednesday was 80, with an overnight low of 50. Sunset tonight at 4:42, sunrise Friday, 6:36.

Holiday traffic dangers noted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Alcohol, bad weather and heavy traffic could be an elixir for an accident-marred Thanksgiving holiday, warns California Highway Patrol Commissioner Glen Craig.

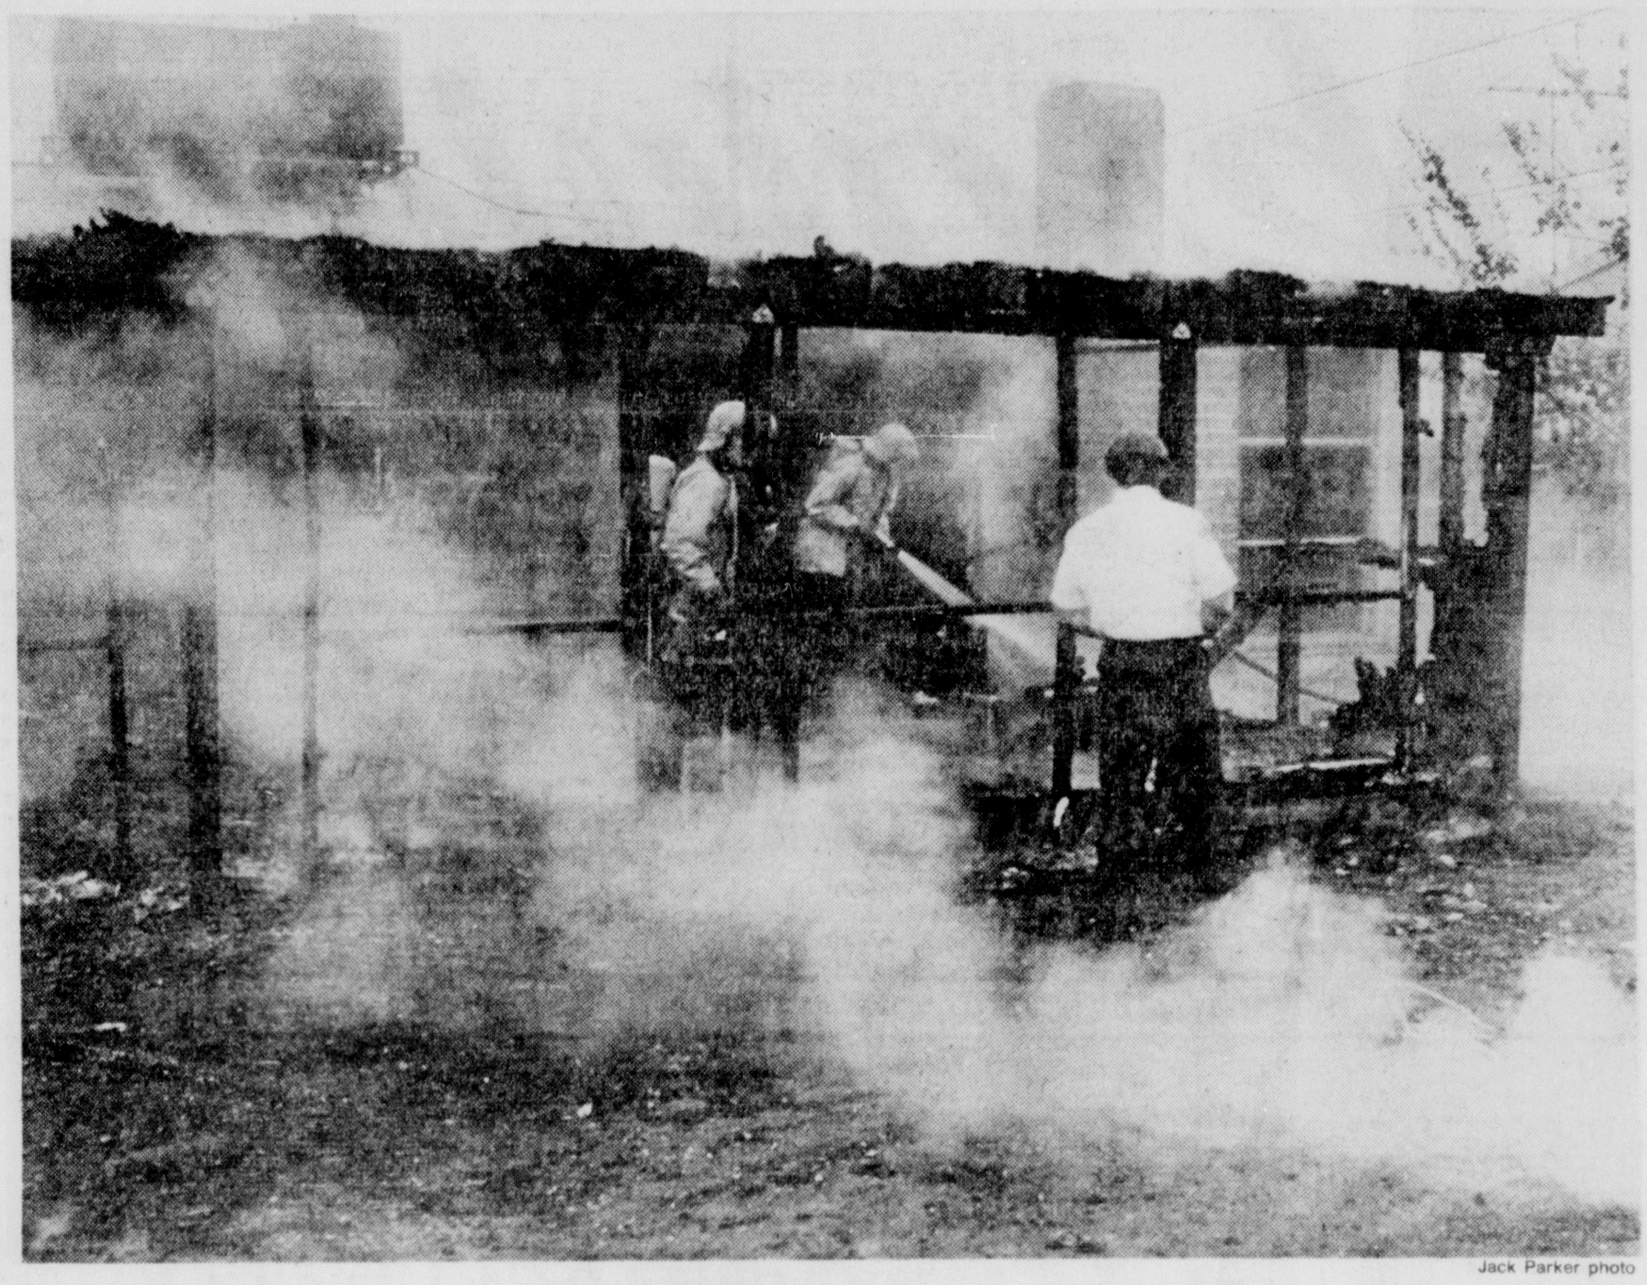

"The number one problem is alcohol," Craig said Tuesday.

Almost 2,000 drunken drivers were arrested during last year's four day Thanksgiving holiday, Craig said.

Last year 56 people died during the four-day period, far below the record of 88 deaths in 1970.

HOME LOST Pomona firemen water down a house at 347 Fanshaw Ave., Pomona, which was destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon. The fire, which is under investigation, caused an estimated $12,000 to structure and $2,000 to contents. The house was occupied by Clarence Jones.

Trade surplus swells for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sold corn and soybeans overseas in October and cut its purchases of foreign oil, pushing the nation's trade accounts toward a record annual surplus, the government reported Wednesday.

The Commerce Department said exports were $1.076 billion higher than imports in October. The September surplus was $976 million.

So far U.S. exports are $9.5 billion ahead of imports with two months left to go in the year. The record surplus for a year, based on a system of accounting different from but basically comparable to the current system, was $7.083 billion in 1964. If there was a big deficit in the last two months of this year the total surplus for the year would not be a record.

The continuing surplus holds out a prospect of lower prices on imported goods for Americans as the swelling trade surplus helps strengthen the dollar against foreign currencies.

The current performance is in contrast to the $2.3 billion trade deficit last year and persistent deficits which contributed to two devaluations of the dollar since 1971.

The value of the dollar, as computed by the Treasury Department on a basis weighted to reflect the volume of U.S. commerce with its trading partners, has moved upward fairly steadily since hitting its five-year low point earlier this year.

Measured against the currencies of the 22 major industrialized nations, the dollar currently stands 11.5 per cent below its pre-devaluation value. Measured against 47 major U.S. trading partners, the dollar has virtually recouped its losses of the last five years, standing one-tenth of 1 per cent below pre-devaluation levels.

In other economic reports, the Labor Department reported continued improvement in the productivity of American workers.

Labor said productivity rose at a 12.4 per cent annual rate among non-financial corporations during the three-month period ended in September.

And at the same time, the department revised upward its original report on productivity in all of the private sector for the same period to a 11 per cent advance at an an annual rate. The increase had originally been reported as 9.5 per cent.

Productivity means workers are producing more goods per hour of labor and thus improving their employers' profit picture while also alleviating inflationary pressures on prices.

The Commerce Department said the latest trade surplus was the product of a 1.3 per cent advance in exports compared to a three-tenths of 1 per cent rise in imports.

Most of the export gain was due to a $364 million advance in corn and soybean exports, a $45 million rise in chemical exports and a $170 million increase in exports of machinery and transportation equipment, primarily automobiles.

The nation also stepped up its imports of transportation equipment, including cars, by $111 million. But the volume of oil imports fell at a seasonally adjusted rate of $135 million.

The oil decrease was apparently the result of importers stockpiling petroleum products during September in anticipation of the Oct. 1 price increase by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, then reducing imports until those stockpiles can be drawn down.

The monthly decrease in volume of oil imports was 5 per cent, leaving the volume of imports so far this year 1.5 per cent behind the same period last year.

But as a result of higher prices, the bill for that oil is currently $650 million, or 3.2 per cent, ahead of the first ten months of last year.

Freedom Train rolls into California

BAILEY'S CROSSROADS, Va. (AP) — The American Freedom Train, a rolling bicentennial project, is expected to chalk up its 10,000th mile on Thanksgiving Day as it travels from Reno, Nev., to Sacramento, Calif., train officials said today.

Its cargo — thousands of mementoes, manuscripts and artifacts including a wax model of President Ford — has been a big draw. Since April, 2.5 million people have made the 22-minute tour through 10 display cars.

The train has drawn mixed reaction since beginning its 21-month tour. There have been some complaints — and even a demonstration, in Seattle — against long lines, being "rushed through" exhibits, and the price of souvenirs. But the project has also received much praise from civic officials in the communities on the train's itinerary.

The Colorado Springs Gazette-Telegraph questioned 1,500 people who visited the train October 3 and reported that only 86 were dissatisfied with the experience.

Mrs. Pat Bell, assistant to the city commissioner of Portland, Ore., said she saw 11,000 people go through the train in Sioux Falls, S.D., and noted only six complaints.

A moving walkway takes visitors through the display cars, accommodating 16,500 people during a 14-hour day. The train is open daily from 8 a .m. to 10 p.m. and the hours normally are extended where necessary and feasible.

The train has more than 135 stops on its itinerary through next year and the foundation is considering requests from other communities.

Ford has consumer plan, too

WASHINGTON (AP) — With considerable fanfare, the Ford Administration unveiled a government-wide program Wednesday which the President says would make the bureaucracy "more responsive to the needs of the American consumer."

Critics said the 181-page, 17-agency plan is little more than a smokescreen aimed at softening the President's expected veto of a strong consumer protection bill now awaiting final congressional action.

But Ford, in a memo to the entire executive branch, declared that "these steps will prove responsive to consumer concerns" and instructed each department and agency "to proceed at once to put these plans into effect."

The program generally reflects the proposals drawn up separately by each agency at the President's direction last April.

Hence, the steps vary tremendously from one department to another, ranging from little more than publicity activities in some cases to the establishment of special consumer complaint offices in others.

Midwest snowstorms leave 10 dead, snag holiday travel plans

By CHRIS FRENCH
Associated Press Writer

Snow storms swept from eastern Washington to Indiana and as far south as Texas on Wednesday, killing at least 10 persons, dumping up to 10 inches of snow in parts of eastern Kansas and western Missouri and snarling Thanksgiving travel plans.

More bad weather is expected for the area and much of the rest of the nation on Thanksgiving day. A severe storm moved into Montana Wednesday and was expected to hit the Plains states Thursday following in the wake of Wednesday's storms.

Driving conditions were hazardous, and police reported nine persons killed on icy, snow-packed roads in the two states — five in Missouri and four in Kansas. Another died in an automobile accident on an icy Interstate 40 near Adrian, Tex.

Valentine, Neb., recorded a low of 19 below zero to become the coldest spot in the nation Wednesday.

The National Weather Service said it will be only the third Thanksgiving in 85 years on which there was snow on the ground in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri.

The service forecast near-blizzard conditions in Montana and warned travelers to keep advised of road conditions. A 60-mile section of Interstate 90, the main southern route across Montana, was closed due to high winds and poor visibility.

Winter storm watches were issued by the National Weather Service for Kansas, Wyoming and Colorado. Travelers advisories were issued for Idaho and eastern Washington and Oregon.

Hundreds of schools in the Kansas and Missouri, including nearly every one in the Kansas City metropolitan area, were closed. Numerous minor accidents were reported, and roads were lined with stalled cars. The Kansas Highway Patrol reported roads throughout the state snow packed and icy.

Topeka, Kan., firemen were hampered by the seven inches of snow and temperatures in the low 20s as they battled a blaze at the Grace Episcopal church in the downtown area. The roof and ceiling in the sanctuary collapsed, and the fire chief estimated damage at $3 million.

Runways at Kansas City International Airport were closed several times Tuesday night for brief periods as city crews cleared them of snow. The Jefferson City and Columbia, Mo., airports were closed Wednesday.

The Texas Norther brought snow and ice to some sections, thunderstorms to others and chilling cold to all but the extreme south.

Dumas, Tex., was hit with winds hitting up to 70 miles per hour, and the temperature plunged to 8 degrees.

Some snow was expected in the northern portions of New York and New England and there is a possibility of rain on Thanksgiving Day in southern sections of that area. In the Southeast and the lower Mississippi Valley showers and thunderstorms were a possibility.

In return for testifying

Church doubts panel will agree to Nixon conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday he doubts the Senate intelligence committee will agree to the conditions posed by former President Richard Nixon in his offer to testify before the committee.

"I'm doubtful that this can be worked out to the committee's satisfaction if the exchange is limited in the ways (Nixon attorney Herbert J.) Jack Miller has suggested," Church said in a telephone interview from Boise, Idaho.

Church specifically cited the proposal that Nixon answer questions only before the "ranking members" of the committee — presumably Church and vice chairman John Tower, R-Texas.

"I doubt that that would be acceptable to the committee," Church said. "It was the clear expression of the committee the last time we discussed the matter that the full committee should be involved.

Church also said Nixon almost certainly would be required to testify under oath, a point not addressed in the proposal which Miller has submitted in writing to the committee.

If the committee were to accept Nixon's offer, he would appear before Church and Tower at San Clemente for four hours sometime in January, according to Nixon attorney Stan Mortenson.

Mortenson stressed that Nixon has offered to testify only in "an informal context" and is reserving his right to invoke executive privilege. The committee is expected to consider the proposal at a meeting next week.

Nixon's proposal was made in a letter signed by Miller. It was made in response to a request from the committee outlining a number of areas about which they wanted to question the former president.

Mortenson said those areas included covert operations in Chile, the so-called Huston plan which recommended a variety of illegal domestic intelligence gathering methods and the CIA's surveillance of anti-war activists and other dissidents during Nixon's presidency. According to Mortenson, the committtee also is seeking Nixon's views on how best to reform the intelligence community.

Fromme case jury 'not close'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The jury in the trial of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme reported Wednesday that it was "not close" to a verdict and asked that Thanksgiving dinner be arranged for jurors.

U.S. District Court Clerk Walter Fitzpartick said that Judge Thomas MacBride informally "stuck his head in the jury room" and asked whether jurors would be around for Thanksgiving.

Fitzpatrick said the fore-woman of the jury, Helen LeRoy, then said that the verdict was not imminent on whether the Miss Fromme, 27, a Charles Manson follower, tried to kill Preisdent Ford.

On the holiday, jurors planned to deliberate throughout the day, taking off 3½ hours in the afternoon to have dinner with their families, who will be brought to a restaurant for the occasion.

The jurors indicated earlier they were locked in disagreement on the question of whether Miss Fromme, a member of the notorious Manson family, intended to kill President Ford when she pointed a gun at him Sept. 5.

MacBride, asked by the jury for guidance, told them Tuesday they could move on to consideration of a lesser charge of assault.

The charge of attempted assassination of a president — the accusation made by a federal grand jury — carries a possible life sentence.

A conviction on assault against the President carries a maximum 10 year penalty with the possibility of parole in slightly more than three years.

The dispute among jurors apparently centered on each panelist's intuition about Miss Fromme's thoughts the day she walked into a park near the Capitol with a gun strapped to her leg. She refused to testify at her trial.

Although many witnesses saw her point a gun at Ford as he passed through a crowd, no one heard her mention murder.

The government asked jurors to infer from Miss Fromme's reported shout: "It didn't go off!" that she was disappointed and frustrated at her failure to shoot the President.

But the defense elicited testimony from some of the same witnesses that her exclamation may have been, "It couldn't go off" or "it wouldn't go off."

One man even told police that the tiny, red-haired defendant shouted, "It wasn't loaded anyway."

If Miss Fromme knew the gun could not fire, with four bullets in the clip but none in the firing chamber, the defense says this is circumstantial evidence that she didn't plan to shoot.

Defense attorney John Virga has insisted that Miss Fromme, who has dedicated her life to Manson and his cult-like tribe, was merely seeking attention for her campaign to get Manson a new trial. He is serving a life sentence for 1969 murders of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

Miss Fromme is the first person brought to trial under a federal law enacted after the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The assault charge under consideration is also based on that statute.

Pearl Bailey tells United Nations to 'get it together'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pearl Bailey made her debut at the United Nations General Assembly with a prepared script that the Cuban delegate said she should have sung and an ad lib encore in which she appealed for "truth, brotherhood and the will of God that everybody here should get together and get these bricks together."

Miss Bailey, who is starring in a revival of "Hello, Dolly!" on Broadway, last week took an assignment as special adviser to the U.N. assembly delegation with the intention of taking part in discussions that interested her.

The first one to interest her was the annual debate on colonialism, and she came armed with a speech replying to the anticipated annual Cuban attempt to bring the Puerto Rican independence movement into the debate.

After Cuban delegate Ricardo Alarcon raised the issue and declared that the island commonwealth was under U.S. occupation and lacked self-determination, Miss Bailey said in reply:

"It is incomprehensible ... that the representative of Cuba has tried to divert this meeting from its business by discussing something which is so far afield from its agenda. The U.S. government regards any international review of Puerto Rico as a flagrant interference in Puerto Rican and United States domestic affairs."

She reviewed the U.S. position that Puerto Ricans again and again have freely chosen their commonwealth status and that the United Nations has acknowledged it.

Alarcon accused Miss Bailey of rehashing arguments the United States uses year after year and said it might be more convincing if "we could have had it sung."

Miss Bailey returned to the microphone and said she was speaking "with no paper, with nothing, from the heart and from the head.

"I do not know if members have been addressed this way before," she continued, "but I have waited long to stand here and I stand here under God's truth in all honesty seeking nothing but truth, brotherhood and the will of God that everybody here should get together and get these bricks together."

"I tremble not from fear of standing before men, but I tremble at the very thought that men and women who sit and dare to breathe the God-given air say, 'We shall be together,' and still fight . . .

"I believe in more than brotherhood. I believe in humanism, and that does not take so much experience. Yes, I have lived in America and I still do. I have gone to many of your countries; I have seen the rights and I have seen the wrongs. I have been righted and I have been wronged. But I assure you of one thing:

"I have never been any place where I probably would not have stayed, and I have never been any place from which I would not have come back to my country."

'Family of the Year' selection draws criticism from official

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The selection of a couple with 12 children as San Diego's "Family of the Year" was criticized today.

Willard Johnson, director of the Population Study Center, described the choice as incredible.

"It is high time we stop glorifying large families and begin to show some social responsibility to a world which is already threatened," said Johnson.

In a leter published by the San Diego Union, another local resident said the selection of the C. Jordan Naylor family "made me sick."

The Naylors were chosen by the San Diego district of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, whose spokeswoman cited them for respect for laws and order, church attendance, honesty, industry and mutual love.

Naylor is an FBI agent who is active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Three of the 12 children were orphans adopted by the Nayors.

The Naylor family, the citation said, "is a unique example of the traditional and fundamental virtues of family living."

Commented Johnson in a statement:

"If every one of the 55 million families in the United States had 10 children, our population would be more than 600 million.

"Our unemployment would be devastating. Our petroleum would have vanished long since. Our resources would be so expensive and in short supply that we could not afford automobiles, television sets and all the items which use resources.

"City densities would be preposterous. Freeways would be crowded beyond belief. Pollution would be deadly. Open space would be unreachable.

"In other words, castrastrophe would be upon us."

The Naylors were out of town on vacation and unavailable for comment.

Crippled driver asks for aid, gets robbed

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — A cripple flagged down a passing auto when his car ran out of gas early Sunday and was robbed by the men who stopped, police said.

Officers said James Mills, 34, of Scotch Valley, who is paralyzed from the waist down, had managed to get into his wheelchair after his car stopped. They said three men in the auto that pulled over apparently to help Mills held a knife on him while they stole his wedding band and $5.

Driving test proves fatal to examiner

LONG BEACH (AP) — A state drivers license examiner died Wednesday of injuries suffered in an auto accident while conducting a driving test.

State officials said the victim, Vincent W. Jones, 62, had conducted 132,000 driving tests in his 24-year state career — more than any other examiner in the Department of Motor Vehicles history.

State officials said Jones was the first DMV examiner ever killed in a driving test.

He was injured last Friday when the car in which he was riding collided with a city bus.

The driver in the test, a 23-year-old Long Beach housewife, was also injured.

DMV director Herman Sillas said about 500 examiners are injured annually, and about 30 a year require hospitalization.

Jones died in Pacific Hospital in Long Beach.

Rescue party saves hiker, but leaves life-saving dog behind

AUBURN, Calif. (AP) — An injured hiker rescued from rugged Sierra foothill country says his dog Zorro saved his life and then was left behind by a rescue team.

Mark Coopper, 26, said his 8-year-old German Shepherd pulled him out of a whirlpool after he had fallen 85 feet Sunday in the Forest Hills area about 50 miles east of Sacramento.

Then the dog crawled on top of him to keep him warm, Cooper added.

Cooper was airlifted to Placer General Hospital Tuesday after a sheriff's team, the National Guard and the Air Force cooperated in the rescue.

A spokesman said Placer County sheriff's cars cruising the area would be on the lookout for the dog.

"My dog saved my life, and evidently the sheriff's office didn't care enough and left him stranded up there," Cooper said.

Under heavy sedation, Cooper talked slowly. He has a broken pelvis, internal injuries and sprains and bruises.

When Cooper regained consciousness after his fall, he said he found his dog "pulling me out of the water, licking my face and whining and barking."

Sheriff's Capt. Marvin Jacinto, who headed the rescue effort, said afterward that he had to decide whether a man or dog would walk alongside the Jeep which was carrying the rescue party.

There were seven men in the Jeep, he said, and deputies were sitting on top of deputies.

"I was sure the dog would follow along, and he did until we went over a bank and had to shovel the Jeep out. Then the dog wasn't there anymore.

"We did not abandon it. If there had been room in the Jeep, I would have had it in there," Jacinto said.

Mrs. Pearl Logan Shewman, widow of Harry Shewman, Pomona, city employe for 42 years prior to his retirement, died Monday morning in a local medical center.

Mrs. Shewman was born Oct. 29, 1893 in Missouri. She had been a resident of Pomona for many years. She was a member of the Foursquare Gospel Church, Pomona.

Surviving are three sisters-in-law, Mrs. Lena M. Marceron of Watsonville, Mrs. Maudie Lewis of Aptos, and Mrs. Ellen Branch of Victorville.

Services will be held Friday at 10 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. James Runyan, pastor of the Foursquare Gospel Church, Pomona, will officiate. Burial will be made in Pomona Cemetery.

James Shaw

James E. Shaw Sr. of 2208 Carlton Ave., Pomona, died Tuesday evening in Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Mr. Shaw was born Sept. 22, 1908 in Goler Wells. He had been a resident of Pomona for the past 21 years. He served with the U.S. Army during World War II.

Mr. Shaw was a member of the International Brotherhood Teamsters, Local 871; Teamster Retirees Association Council 42; and the Concerned Citizens of Valwood II of Pomona.

Besides his widow, Linda J., he is survived by a son, James E. Jr. of Pomona; two daughters, Terri Lynn and Kris Teen, both of Pomona; a brother, Homer of Hanford; and a granddaughter, Mrs. Michell Rene Shaw of Portland, Ore.

Services will be held Monday at 11:30 a.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. The Rev. Richard N. Avery, vicar of St. John's Episcopal Church, La Verne, will officiate. Burial will be made in Forest Lawn Covina Hills.

Friends may make memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society, 111 W. Center St., Pomona 91768.

No verdict yet in Ontario murder trial

The jury failed to reach a verdict Wednesday in the Ontario murder trial of Frank Mendoza, and recessed until Monday.

The defense rested its case after a California Institution for Men inmate claimed he, rather than defendant Mendoza, had killed Jesse Valenzuela at CIM June 19.

After closing arguments in the murder trial of Mendoza in the West Valley Superior Court of Judge Clifton L. Allen the jury Tuesday was charged with coming to a verdict.

Jurors deliberated all day Wednesday.

Mendoza, already serving a life term for the stabbing of another inmate at CIM, is accused of first degree murder in the stabbing death of Valenzuela.

Valenzuela died of multiple puncture wounds of the chest and side on June 19 after being attacked on the first tier of Palm Hall in the CIM Reception Guidance Center Central, according to testimony.

The defense presented inmate Nicholas Sosa, serving four life terms, as its key witness in the trial. Sosa was identified as one of several inmates, including the defendant, on the tier when Valenzuela was attacked.

Sosa told the jury that several months after the murder his conscience had gotten the better of him and he sought out a Catholic priest for help. He claimed that during his conversation with the priest at CIM he had a "religious experience" and now wanted only to clear his conscience by admitting he was the one who had killed Valenzuela.

In earlier testimony, inmate Paul D. Warren, appearing for the prosecution, testified that from his cell he saw Mendoza standing over Valenzuela on the tier making stabbing motions with his arms.

Warren also testified that shortly after the stabbing Mendoza and "Tex" (Sosa) came over to his cell. Warren said that Sosa stuck his arm through his cell door and told him to wash the blood off.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Thomas Spivey, rebutting Sosa's testimony, told the jury that after the witness had his "religous experience" he was transferred to county jail.

At the county jail, Spivey said, Sosa allegedly took part in the stabbing of a jail trusty. Spivey pointed out that Sosa, by admitting to the killing, would have nothing to lose since he was already serving four life terms for other than capital offenses and could not be given the death penalty in this case.

Sosa was also identified as a member in the "La Nuestra Familia" who according to prison authorities its believed to be behind the killing of Valenzuela.

Mendoza was called to the stand, but refused to tell the jury anything about the incident claiming that he feared for his life. Mendoza denied that he was a member of La Nuestra Familia, despite evidence given in court of several documents found in his cell, in his own handwriting about La Nuesta Familia activities.

Because of Mendoza's previous murder conviction, if found guilty of murder in the Valenzuela case, he could face the death penalty under California law. The penalty on a conviction would be decided in a later court action by the same jury.

Choral groups aid Vietnamese refugees

Their first Thanksgiving in America is one not likely to be forgotten by the 11-member Tran family, members of the Vietnamese refugee group living in the Sunflower Apartments in South Pomona.

Wednesday afternoon 20 choral students from Ganesha High School delivered food, clothing and miscellaneous household items to the family, all of which they had supplied with their own contributions and earnings.

The students, accompanied by choral director Susan Winckler, represented the three campus choral groups which number about 70 members.

Breakwater made from used tires

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Discarded tires have been chained together to form an effective breakwater near the Dunkirk East Coast Marina. Researchers report favorable results breaking wind and wave action.

More than 1,000 worn-out wires will eventually compose the thousand-foot structure. The tires are assembled in bundles of 18 which are laced together by cable and chain and ride vertically through air trapped in their crowns. They are pollution free, do not interfere with marine migration and provide an anchoring reef for marine life.

Credits for ROTC course

BERKELEY (AP) — Reversing a five-year stand against military instruction, faculty members at the University of California campus here have decided that ROTC classes should receive academic credit.

A UC spokesman said Monday that the faculty had voted 553-409 in favor of accreditation, providing ROTC meets certain academic standards.

County school chief cautions about test scores

Los Angeles County Supt. of Schools Richard M. Clowes says making comparisons of the results of California's 1974-75 statewide testing program can lead to misinterpretations.

Clowes urged parents and other citizens to use caution in making comparisons of any sort as they read about or review the reports of tests administered to California public school students in grades two, three, six and twelve in 1974-75. The statewide summary was presented at the November meeting of the State Board of Education in Sacramento.

"Nineteen seventy-four-75 was the first year in which we had a multiple matrix sampling approach in all grade levels being tested. It was the first time the sixth and twelfth grade matrix tests were given and even the second and third grade tests were changed from those given the previous year," he explained.

"The new testing program was designed to be primarily a state assessment program and was not intended for district or school program evaluation.

"It's intended to give only a general picture of what public school students in grades two, three, six and twelve are doing statewide. The program was designed by the state for use by the state."

Clowes pointed out several specific limitations of the test results — limitations reported in the "Guide to Interpretation (of the test results)," prepared and published by the state Department of Education:

—The results are limited in that they deal only with those cognitive content areas that can be measured by paper-and-pencil tests. History, geography, social science, science, art, music, career education, citizenship, cultural appreciation and self-esteem are not included.

—The scores presented are the average per cent correct scores for a district. They do not show scores for high-achieving or low-achieving students.

—The tests measure only a sample of the skills in the areas of reading, written expression, spelling and mathematics. Those samples are only samples of skills at a particular time of the school year on a particular day at a particular hour.

The county superintendent said understanding the tests' results is dependent on understanding the multiple matrix sampling approach. "Not all students in any grade level tested were given the same test items. Each student received portions of a very large test. Then, all responses are combined to give the district and state per cent of items answered correctly.

"For example, the 12th grade has 18 forms. If there were 36 students in a group testing situation, only two students would be taking the same test items. But the results reported would be the total of all 36 sets of students responses to 18 different tests. No individual student scores are obtained or reported.

"This process allows for inferences to be made on a large unit, such as a school district, or, in the case of the report to the state Board of Education, the statewide picture. There is no information available on individual students and very little information of use at the individual school level."

Clowes said the only valid comparison that might be made would be a comparison of the 1974-75 third grade test results with the 1973-74 second grade test results.

"But," he cautioned, "that comparison would be valid only if there was little or no change in the students tested in each school or district and if there was little or no change in the test. A quick look at mobility of families here in Los Angeles County reveals significant changes in student population in our schools from one year to the next. And, there were changes in the second and third grade tests. So, even this one possible comparison is relatively impossible."

Priest asks for new donation—garbage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A priest who last month asked his parishioners for offerings of handguns has asked them to bring some garbage to church.

The offerings will symbolize the "garbage" people carry with them in the form of grudges or bitterness toward others, according to the Rev. Richard Engle, pastor of St. Philip the Apostle Catholic Church.

Bringing a bit of trash, such as a beer bottle or an apple core, and dumping it into garbage cans placed in the church sanctuary, reminds people that they must get rid of negative thoughts before they can love and accept themselves, others and God, the priest said.

Father Engle made the request at a service Sunday night.

Last month the Rev. Engle asked for offerings of handguns which were melted into crosses to be distributed to legislators and political leaders to show support for gun control.

Moves delta

The silt carried by the Mississippi River to the Gulf of Mexico moves the river's delta 340 feet farther into the gulf each year.

Banking seminar slated

The Citrus Belt Chapter of the American Institute of Banking will present a one-night seminar on "Incoming and Outgoing Collections," Dec. 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Griswold's, Claremont.

The seminar, open to all bankers in the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, is aimed primarily at persons already experienced in handling incoming and outgoing collections.

Marc Vick, manager of management communications, United California Bank, will be the instructor.

Chaffey alternative school tailors learning to student

The Mountain High Alternative School in Upland, opened this fall, is the newest addition to the Chaffey Union High School District.

It is one of seven high schools in the district, joining Montclair, Alta Loma, Ontario, Valley View, Upland and Chaffey high schools.

But Mountain High is quite unique from the other district schools.

Mountain High is based on the concept of individualized, personalized instruction for each student. Students who attend Mountain High are those whose needs are not met in a normal high school system.

Mountain High is attended by 130 students, all of whom have unique, personalized schedules. Each student is enrolled in either the morning or afternoon sessions, which last three hours each day. Many students arrive by school bus.

The classes offered at Mountain High include everything needed to fulfill the district graduation requirements: history, English, science, driver education and other "solids." There are many elective classes offered, such as macrame, self-awareness, business education, creative arts and music.

Also offered as an elective is a community-lab workshop where students can earn credits through working on projects outside the classroom that involve community resources.

All students meet weekly with their adviser to discuss their individual progress.

The school building itself, located near the corner of Ninth Street and Mountain Avenue at 1253 W. Ninth in Upland in the midst of a group of warehouses called the "Upland Business Center," consists of a huge room containing several work areas. The walls are decorated with contemporary posters. Large pieces of material hang from the ceiling. Comfortable sofas and chairs are grouped in corners. Only bookcases and shelves separate areas into "classrooms." (Much of the furniture was made or brought by students and teachers).

The principal of the school is Monroe Lair, who is also the principal of Valley View, the district's continuation high school.

Lair is assisted by head teacher, John Tracey, who was also responsible for much of the original planning of the school. The only counselor is Ike Iddings.

Besides Tracey there eight other instructors, each of whom teach several subjects. The teachers are flexible,

Earnings, sales up for Tandy

Tandy Corp., parent company of the Radio Shack electronics store chain, reported a sales gain of 30 per cent in its continuing electronics group for the first quarter of the 1976 fiscal year.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, Tandy reported sales of $139,320,693 from continuing operations. For the same period last year sales were $107,046,556.

Net income was $8,389,877 compared with $4,036,325 last year. The strong increase in net income is attributed to the sales gain in the company's electronics group, a reduction in unprofitable operations, and a reduction of interest costs.

Earnings were up 108 per cent to $1.20, with the electronics group (Radio Shack) contributing 93 cents. Last year, for the same quarter, earnings were 65 cents with Radio Shack contributing 44 cents. Average shares outstanding on Sept. 30, 1975 were 9,006,571, compared to 9,214,306 a year ago.

According to Charles D. Tandy, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Tandy Corp., "We are well pleased with the progress being shown by each segment of our business, and anticipate that the upcoming separation of Tandy Corp. into three distinct companies will make the progress even more effective and visible."

Tandy Corp. recently completed all requirements to spin off two new companies, splitting the concern into three parts. Under the plan, Tandy Corp. will continue its consumer electronics business, represented by Radio Shack, Tandy International Electronics, Tandy Electronics Manufacturing and Allied Electronics.

MAX VORSPAN

Author to speak on Jews

Max Vorspan, author and television host, will discuss "Updating the Past: The American Jewish Experience" on Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. in Garrison Theater, Claremont.

Vorspan is an associate professor and vice president of the University of Judaism, where he received his doctor of Hebrew letters in 1961. He was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

His television show is on Sundays on KNXT.

The lecuture is the second in a Claremont series. "Yearnings of the Spirit: Four Eminent Jewish Speakers." Rabbi William Kramer will speak on Feb. 18 and author Elie Weisel is scheduled in May.

Tickets for the remainder of the series are $7.50 and are available at Garrison Theater or at Temple Beth Israel in Pomona and Temple Sholom in Ontario, cosponsors of the program along with the office of the chaplains of the Claremont Colleges and the Hillel-Jewish collegiate community.

Vaccination

The first smallpox vaccination was performed in 1796 when Edward Jenner, an English doctor, scratched fluid from cowpox blisters in a boy's arm.

Almanac

—Today in History—

Today is Thursday, Nov. 27, the 331st day of 1975. There are 34 days left in the year. This is Thanksgiving Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, during World War II, French navy men at Toulon, France scuttled ten French cruisers, 28 destroyers and 14 submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

On this date —

In the year 602, the Roman emperor, Maurice, and his five sons were beheaded at Chalcedon in Asia Minor.

In 1703, a coastal storm in England took an estimated 8,000 lives.

In 1919, Bulgaria signed a World War I peace treaty which yielded territory to Greece and Yugoslavia.

In 1940, during World War II, Germany annexed the French province of Lorraine.

In 1945, General George Marshall was named a special U.S. envoy to China to try to end hostilities between the Nationalists and the Communists.

In 1970, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover charged that a terrorist group had planned to blow up tunnels connecting Washington buildings and to kidnap White House Assistant Henry Kissinger.

Ten years ago: Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara reported that more than 5,000 U.S. nuclear warheads were stored in Europe in support of NATO forces.

Five years ago: Pope Paul VI continued to mingle with crowds on an Asian trip after escaping an assassination attempt in Manila.

One year ago: Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board pedicted a permanent decline of America's economic and political power unless world oil prices could be forced down.

Today's birthdays: Caroline Kennedy is 18. Broadway producer David Merrick is 63.

Thought for today: In the kingdom of the birds, the parrot is the best talker — and the worst flier — Orville Wright, American aviation pioneer, 1871-1948.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the American forces which had captured Montreal started moving down the St. Lawrence river toward Quebec.

facilitating students' schedule needs.

There are only four major rules at Mountain High, all designed solely for the students' benefit: 1) No drugs or alcohol allowed; 2) No fighting; 3) Required regular attendance, and 4) Required element of participation.

If a problem with a student does come up, it is discussed and a decision is made. Students at Mountain High are there because they want to be.

To be eligible to enter any alternative program, whether it's Mountain High, Valley View or Adult Education, there must be some evidence that the regular school system is not meeting the student's needs. A student counselor conference is the first step, followed by a counselor-parent conference. Students, counselors and parents all discuss the alternative programs before placing any student.

Director of scrolls project is appointed

John C. Tever has been appointed director of the Dead Sea Scrolls project and consultant in lay education at School of Theology at Claremont.

Trever comes to Claremont from Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio, where he served as professor of religion since 1959. He previously headed the Department of Religion and Philosophy at Morris Harvey College in Charleston, W. Va.

In 1947-48, he played an important part in the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls as a fellow of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem. The story of Trever's relationship to the discovery was published in his "The Untold Story of Qumran."

The Dead Sea Scrolls project is on exhibit in the school's library which contains slides, reproductions of documents and other information.

JOHN C. TREVER

Not of Asia

In 1501-2, Portuguese explorer Amerigo Vespucci explored 6,000 miles of South America's coast and was the first to suggest that America was not a part of Asia.

ANNIVERSARY — Ontario resident Frank Colella is celebrating his 30th anniversary with the Bank of America during November. He is the manager of the bank's office in Colton. He joined the bank as a teller in 1945.

Speeding arrests by CHP climbing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The woman driver had a tearful excuse for going above the nation's 55 mile-an-hour speed limit, recalls the California Highway Patrol; but hubby ruined things.

The CHP officer had been commiserating with the woman after hearing her story, when a man drove up and identified himself. You guessed it.

"She just told me you died," the unamused officer observed to the wife's embarrassment — and the husband's surprise.

These days CHP officers are spending a record 50 per cent of their traffic patrol time chasing speeders whose excuses are less and less remorseful.

"It used to be we'd hear, 'I wasn't looking at my speedometer,'" recalls CHP Capt. Phil Brown. "Now speeders say of the 55 m.p.h. limit: 'It's unreasonable, other drivers don't obey it, and therefore I don't deserve a ticket.'"

Officer Charles Shipley keeps a sense of humor about such excuses on his regular patrol "beat" on the Ventura and San Diego freeways in the heavily traveled suburban San Fernando Valley just west of downtown Los Angeles.

As a reporter and photographer slip into a black-and-white patrol car to see what his beat is like, Shipley says no day is "typical." For instance, he identifies himself as one of two patrolmen to chase down an escaped yearling black bull recently.

"He was heading westbound on the freeway out toward the hills, looking for greener pastures," relates Shipley, an ex-Texan from San Antonio with seven years with CHP. "We finally cornered him, got a rope around 'em and put him in the back seat cage," he says, pointing to where the photographer is sitting.

As it turns out, Officer Shipley's next ticket goes to a driver almost as frustrated as the bull. The driver, about 45 and from a nearby suburb, pounds the steering wheel in grief.

"I swear I went 55 all the time," he says. Then he asks if he can cancel the offense by going to traffic school, declaring, "I'm out of a job and my insurance will go up."

Officer Shipley, who issues him a ticket, says: "You should be aware that you're going well over 60 if you're passing cars."

Shipley and his boss, Capt. Brown, say their job is to enforce the 55 m.p.h. rule — not philosophize about its justness.

The officer relates that some days it turns out he never issues a ticket. This isn't one of those ticketless days, although Shipley also helps out a disabled trucker, tells a house-trailer's driver to stay in the slow lane and gives a mother and two toddlers a lift to help after their car conks out.

Two other drivers earn tickets. One shrugs "I got caught." Another lets his wife argue unsuccessfully "please let him go; I'll see to it he doesn't do it again."

One smiling, chubby man bounces out of his car to greet the officer when the red light flashes. The man — not far over limit — gets a warning after his wife asks "what's the matter" and he responds honestly: "Going a little too fast."

As day ends, Officer Shipley observes what the photographer and reporter had also concluded: drivers pay more attention to the speed limit when they see a black-and-white CHP car.

"Most people," Shipley states frankly, "aren't going to violate the law with a cop around."

Four cities join quest for transit aid

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Four valley cities will form a blue ribbon committee of mayors, technical staff and Chamber of Commerce officials to design legislation giving flexibility to allocations of state transit funds.

Nearly 50 representatives from the cities of Claremont, La Verne, Pomona and San Dimas participated in a transportation meeting at San Dimas City Hall Tuesday.

Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., and Assemblyman Bill Lancaster, R-62nd Dist., also attended the meeting and agree to lend expert assistance for drafting a bill.

They both warned that there were numerous pitfalls in seeking new legislation allowing the disbursement of Senate Bill 325 funds to other than the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

Mayor Jim Lough of San Dimas opened the meeting with remarks on the need for unity in examining transportation in the valley. He said "the amount of money we're paying (to RTD) should entitle us to a better shake on transportation."

Instead the four cities are getting "taxation without transportation," he added.

Wes McDaniel, executive director of San Bernardino Associated Governments which gives planning assistance to San Bernardino County transit groups, explained the structure and role of the West Valley Transit Service Authority (WVTSA), discussed the Alan M. Voorhees transit report for the valley and outlined revenues available and costs.

The Voorhees report was suggested by Ray Remy of the Southern California Association of Government and paid for through Urban Mass Transit Authority funds passed through SCAG.

Voorhees examined transit needs and service levels within the four cities, relying upon information from RTD, city officials and staff and community individuals and groups. The report was done simultaneously as the RTD report from Wilbur Smith and Associates of Los Angeles.

McDaniel pointed out the two studies were "couched on different concepts. Wilbur Smith's was mainly an efficiency study to get more bang for the buck. The Voorhees study findings were much more community-based, explored local areas neglected and attempted to make recommendations for better community service."

Alluding to accusations from RTD, the SANBAG executive made it clear that "We're not out to do RTD in, not out to get RTD. The choice is yours."

City Managers Jerry Gonce of Pomona, George Caswell of La Verne and Bob Poff of San Dimas, and Paul Brotzman, assistant city manager of Claremont, indicated they had not received a copy of a final report for transit improvements from RTD. This report includes new service for the valley to be implemented in January.

"RTD has put its eggs in the basket of better long haul transportation," said McDaniel.

It does not significantly improve local service, he added. However, the transit district claims in this final report that it will service 2.2 million miles annually in the valley at a cost of $2.6 million, he said.

The four valley cities generate nearly $2.2 million in SB 325 and UMTA funds. The difference of $400,000 happens to coincide with the four cities' share of revenue sharing funds, McDaniel said.

"If this is in actuality what is being offered by RTD, then you should take the money and run. But there are numerous considerations that would be inappropriate for me to discuss at this time," said McDaniel. "It has been said that what RTD giveth, RTD also taketh away."

Lancaster corrected newspaper reports that he had agreed to sponsor a bill revising SB 325 fund allocations, saying he had agreed to "take a hard look at services offered."

He advised the group to examine the structure of various transit operations, consider all the facts and questions if they did withdraw from RTD and detail the cost factors and effects upon other communities.

Mayors Ray Lepire of Pomona and Mike Morales of La Verne both voiced dissatisfaction with service from RTD, but wanted to explore all alternatives before totally withdrawing from the district. Claremont Vice Mayor Claire McDonald indicated a "go slow attitude" to see what RTD does in January.

Gonce commented "There is really something going on in the West End that we should take a very close look at. And there's an out that we should not forget. We can contract with RTD if withdrawing. We have an obligation to the citizenry that can be more easily met through WVTSA than anything with RTD. You must determine the level of service and where you want it to go."

He noted that the failure to receive the final RTD report is indicative of "improper relationships that RTD is conducting with local cities and agencies."

At the urging of Don Descombes and Lynn Rountree of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, the group agreed to form the special committee and report back within a month.

Valley Jews to observe Hanukkah

The valley's Jewish community will join its brethren throughout the world Friday night to observe the beginning of Hanukkah, the eight-day Fesitval of Lights.

Hanukkah, which has become one of the three major Jewish holidays of the year, observes the victory of the Macabees over heathen Syrian forces in 164 B.C.

It is also a commemoration of the survivor of Jews against adversities throughout the past two millenniums.

Appropriate services are scheduled Friday night at both Temple Beth Israel in Pomona and Temple Sholom in Ontario.

The observance starts at sundown Friday with the lighting of one candle. As the eight nights continue additional candles are added to signify the burning of the eternal light.

Considered a minor holiday throughout most of the past 2,000 years, Hanukkah captured the imagination of the Jewish Community only during the past 50 years, and now ranks third behind the High Holy Days and Passover.

Although the kindling of the candles is a major feature of the celebration, it is the legend behind the holiday that really provides significance to the observance.

According to the book of the Macabees, a small group of Jewish fighters recaptured the Holy Temple in Jersualem beating back full compliments of Syrian forces several times. Legend which surrounds the capture of the Temple holds that the Jews could find enough purified oil for only one day of rededication, but that the oil miraculously lasted for eight days.

In time, the oil has come to symbolize the miracle of Jewish survival against all odds, and the flames reflect the glow of religious freedom for which the Macabees fought.

Hanukkah is a time of joy, observed with special foods, special games, songs and dances.

U.S. may have to aid N.Y.—Lloyd

The federal government may have to help financially plagued New York City to prevent an adverse effect in other cities, said Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

Should New York City have to default on its payments, local city officials believe they wouldn't be able to sell their municipal bonds due to a lack of public confidence, he added.

The West Covina legislator described this as an "explosive issue" which must be addressed now.

"Based on what I had heard until arriving this week in the district, I would have voted no on the federal support," said Lloyd. "There seems now to be a distinct shift on the part of local officials — including city councils and school boards — with the realization their bonding problems would be affected by New York's problems."

Lloyd said there would be no federal expenditures should the government decide to guarantee a loan for New York City. But should the city declare bankruptcy, the government would then be required to provide police, fire and health services.

"I will not vote for support until the state clearly defines its position," he declared.

Holiday tip

Window is weak spot of dwelling

The Progress Bulletin has asked for tips from valley law enforcement officers which may help readers avoid becoming victims of holiday season crime. Today's advice from Pomona Police Chief F. P. Wallick concerns the security of windows.

Burglars often get into houses and apartments the same way you do when you lock yourself out — through a window. Windows generally are difficult to protect from entry by burglars. Locksmiths offer a wide variety of devices to secure windows and some are more effective than others. Some prevent the window from being opened more than four or five inches. Others require keys to open or ring alarms.

Some persons have considered installing iron bars on their windows, but they run a terrible risk of not being able to escape in case of fire.

Open school lunch program gets conditional approval in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

While not exactly giving Chino High School's open lunch program a vote of confidence, the school board wants to continue the plan.

Trustees, on a 4-1 vote Tuesday with Roy Ward dissenting, extended open lunch for students, which came under attack last month as the source of "police problems." The program allows students to leave campus during the noon hour.

In approving continuation of the plan, the board stipulated that a clean-up committee must be formed to patrol the streets and handle trash problems. And, if the program continues to create problems, it will be dropped, trustees agreed.

A number of residents have complained at City Council and school board meetings about traffic problems caused by students leaving the campus. Also, citizens charged that trash is carelessly tossed on lawns in the neighborhood.

Both Supt. Royce Lapp and Principal Dick Ferguson urged continuation of the program, even though they acknowledged problems over it. "At one point we were ready to drop the program," said Lapp, "but police problems have died down since then."

Ferguson noted that he was "disappointed" with the effect and results of the open lunch "survey."

Kip Grubb, student body president, reported that survey results showed out of 22 residents, 15 favored open lunch, three opposed it and four had no opinion. Four of seven area restaurants favored the program.

Neighbors who objected cited parking problems near their homes and trash left on lawns.

A spokesman for McDonald's, a favorite eating place for students, strongly opposed the open campus plan in the survey. "Students have no respect for other people's property. They disrupt business by lack of control over themselves; adults and children have complained and stopped coming to McDonald's at lunch time . . .," the McDonald's statement said.

A majority of parents surveyed opposed the plan. Seventeen favored its discontinuance, while 13 favored the program. Some parents said students would be doing "bad things," while others noted there would be parking, smoking and traffic problems.

Two residents addressed the board Tuesday, indicating open lunch should be dropped. Continuance of the heavy trash problem was cited by Mrs. M. Gaalswyk, of 12614 10th St. Also, she said, referring to the survey, "I'm sure there are more than 22 homes near Chino High School.

Frank Strader, another resident, said persons living on Catalpa Place should have been polled. "Our problem is speeders. They go down Jefferson at 70 miles an hour. A child was killed on Benson and we're sitting on a time bomb."

He charged "there is a direct proportion of the number of speeders in the area and whether school is open or not."

Board President Augustine Tapia said the question remains whether open lunch is to blame for some of the problems.

"I played cop a few weeks ago in the high school area," said Tapia, "and I saw quite a few non-students around. One kid peeled rubber and took off."

Kara Hanson, student body vice president, said he was told by police that the problem on Catalpa was caused by non-students or Buena Vista High students.

Claremont school board delays on New Directions Committee

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont school board has delayed official action toward endorsing a "New Directions Committee," as requested by the Citizens for Quality Education.

Instead, board President Ernest Taylor has suggested that several members of the citizens group, fighting to keep Sycamore Elementary School and La Puerta Intermediate School open, come up with specific items that such a committee might study. He also suggested that individual board members might come forth with their own ideas, too.

Taylor stressed that if the panel were to study the issue at hand — the closing of the two schools — he would say no. "But as to an ongoing program for the whole district, I would say yes," he said.

John Moore, who spoke for the CQE on the proposed panel Monday night, told the board that "unique challenges face us. A fact-finding panel is crucial."

Moore called the plan good, "although it may not be perfect." He told the board that the CQE didn't expect the board to accept the plan "carte blanche."

The CQE has envisioned the committee as constituted for a year or less with the capability to advise and consent on meeting the challenges before the district and the community.

The CQE has proposed that the committee be comprised of voting members representing each school, administrative council, faculties and neighborhood groups such as the retirement community, Foothill Association, Friends of Wheeler Park, and the Claremont Civic Association.

The New Directions Committee would have at its disposal a fact-finding panel, comprised of one member selected by the school board, a member selected by the committee, and a third acceptable to both.

Board member Arthur Steffen said he appreciated the motive of the panel, but questioned the mechanics.

"Certain board members may champion certain issues," he said. "What is the fact-finding panel going to be doing?

"This deserves a dialogue, but the board meeting doesn't provide for this. Issues can put the board in a defensive position which doesn't allow for communications."

Steffen called for a true workshop where board members are not pinned to the wall for what they believe.

Moore responded that " we didn't expect you to accept this carte-blanche. These are issues which confront the whole community. A workshop would dilute a situation of an advocate speaking for each of the seven schools."

"We must come to grips with immediate as well as long-range problems," Moore said.

On campus

GERALD HOLTON, professor of physics at Harvard University, will be the second speaker in the 1975-76 Zarem lecture series at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, on Dec. 4.

Holton will discuss "A Case Study of the Role of Preconceptions in Science" at 8 p.m. in Galileo Hall on the campus. He has been a National Science Foundation faculty fellow and was an exchange professor at Leningrad University.

THE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY at Claremont will host a conference on "Evangelism and Eco-Justice" cosponsored by the National Ministries of the American Baptist Convention on Dec. 2 to 5.

On Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in Mudd Auditorium. Garrett Hardin, professor of biology at UC Santa Barbara will speak on "The True Meaning of Humanitarianism for the Response to World Hunger." He will be answered by Joseph C. Hough Jr., dean and professor of Christian ethics at the School of Tehology.

On Dec. 4, Paolo Soleri, builder of Arcosanti in Arizona, will present an illustrated lecture on his vision of a city which operates on solar energy. This program is also at 7:30 p.m. in Mudd Auditorium.

The CENTER FOR CONTINUING Education of the Claremont Colleges has added individualized career counseling for adults to its educational planning and referral services.

Mary Ellen Brigante, the center's educational consultant and a licensed psychologist, is in charge of the service which offers each client a personally designed package.

The center will also sponsor a 10-week workshop on career and life planning beginning in February.

Further information on the counseling program or the workshop may be obtained by writing the center at 160 Harper Hall, Claremont, or calling 626-8511, extension 3660.

CITRUS COLLEGE trustees are taking action to ease the crowded parking conditions on the campus by calling for bids from architects interested in submitting plans for paving and landscaping a parking lot on the west campus. No time table has been set for the project.

We can't afford higher costs

Every American who is concerned about the economic future of America should pay attention to what Thomas A. Murphy said recently in a speech before the Economic Club of New York. Murphy speaks with the authority that goes with his position as chairman of the board of General Motors Corp.

While his address dwelt at length with the special problems of the automotive industry, Murphy's central theme was that this nation cannot afford more cost.

For a country that is accustomed to thinking in terms of "bigger and better," Murphy's words of warning about what is happening to American productivity are not easily accepted.

"American management, no less than American labor, must waken to and act upon a basic truth: only as we improve the output of an hour's labor can we prudently increase the compensation which that labor has earned. You can't get something for nothing. Everything carries a cost," Murphy pointed out.

Economic history in recent years illustrates Murphy's point. In the six years between 1959 and 1965, output per man hour in U.S. manufacturing increased almost exactly in line with compensation—both rose about 25 per cent—so that unit labor costs and industrial prices remained stable.

But in the next six years, compensation climbed 43 per cent while output per man-hour (the definition of productivity) went up only 17 per cent. As a result, unit labor costs increased by 22 per cent and industrial prices rose 18 per cent.

"We want to create decent jobs for our growing labor force, clean our skies and waters of pollution, rebuild our cities, teach all our children and teach all of them better, and provide decent health protection and housing for all," declared Murphy.

"Yet these ambitious national aspirations will be no more than idle dreams—unless we slow the drain of rising cost which saps the sources of investment which their achievement requires. In short, for our country and its people, no profits mean no growth, no profits mean no new jobs, no profits mean no progress," he added.

Stated in simple terms, American industry and labor must jointly roll up their sleeves, cut costs drastically and start turning out more work per man-hour. Otherwise, there will be no bright American dream for the millions of young people who are entering our labor force every year.

Battery sparks interest

Two factors keeping the electric automobile as little more than an an experimental curiosity are the great weight of the huge banks of batteries required and their long recharging times.

That may be changing. Two Japanese companies claim to have developed a rapid-charge process for storage batteries that cuts recharging time to one-eighth of normal. The new technology involved the remodeling of conventional lead-acid batteries and battery chargers.

Batteries that usually take around four hours for each round of charging up to 80 per cent of their capacities can now be charged in 30 minutes, say Daihatsu Kogyo Co., a maker of industrial vehicles, and Yuasa Battery Co.

The greater efficiency of the batteries makes it possible to reduce the number of batteries. This permits more loading and say the companies, promises easier starting and stopping of the electric motor and better acceleration.

One battery-powered pickup truck has been tried out for 15,000 kilometers of durability testing and was found to cover a distance of 60 kilometers, or about 37 miles, with each 30-minute charging.

This is still far short of the performance of the conventional internal combustion engine, but the electric car is getting there.

Daihatsu will shortly start marketing a new midget commercial vehicle utilizing the new system.

What people say

"Even those who have broken our laws have the right to humane treatment from a lawful society. At the same time, lawbreakers must not expect to live in luxury in our prisons or to escape imprisonment altogether simply because there's no space in our prisons."

—Gov. Reubin Askew, of Florida, in discussing the need for a review of the nation's prison system.

"In imperial times, those who came to the court of Peking as petitioners of the Chinese emperior were treated with contempt. Those who insisted on some reciprocity eventually won respect. This is an understanding which we can hope President Ford will take to Peking when he visits later this year."

Then and now

The power of Thanksgiving

By DAVID POLING

What is as American as pumpkin pie, as old as the Indian nations, as official as a presidential proclamation, and as lively as a football game in November?

You're right — Thanksgiving is more ancient than the United States yet fresh as every fall. It has a special magic vitality which causes it to flourish in our national habits. Thanksgiving is remembrance and celebration. It promotes stadium cheers and sanctuary prayers. Around this annual observance swirls all the commercialism of a shopping-center society, all the nostalgia of homecoming and feasting, and then that something more — a deep yearning to articulate a feeling and mood which is religious at the very core: gratitude to the Heavenly Father for the good things of life.

Praise and thanksgiving are the central expressions of religious faith mutually shared by Protestants, Catholics, and Jews. Those holy sentiments are traced to the Psalms of the Old Testament, later to be the words of gratitude and praise that rang through much of the New England settlement, for they were people of the Book. Without such an expression today, Thanksgiving becomes just another commercial holiday, another sleep in morning, a day-off. With the full meaning of the observation, we again come close to the power of the first Thanksgiving which can be life changing and life shaping, for that is just what happened in Massachusetts.

The first Thanksgiving was terribly practical and utterly frank. These tough settlers thanked God for being alive, for making it through a tough winter, for having food on the table, and with their Indian neighbors, good feeling around the table. Their prayers were really for survival not abundance, and they were to enjoy both in the Bay Colony in 1640. If that is the beginning and ending of our celebration, we are narrow people indeed. Thanksgiving offers more and claims more than a backward look of several centuries or cartoon pictures of Pilgrims and turkeys.

Charles Lamb, the distinguished author and leading American historian pondered the largeness and beauty of creation and his own impulse to be thankful, wrote:

"I am disposed to say grace twenty other occasions in the course of the day besides my dinner. I want a form (of prayer) for setting out upon a pleasant walk, for a moonlight ramble, for a friendly meeting or a solved problem. Why have we none for books, those spiritual repasts — a grace before Milton or a devotional exercise to be said before reading the 'Faire Queen'?"

What Lamb is saying is that we have boundless occasions in each day to express and share the spirit of thanksgiving — it is not confined to food nor saved only for a single Thursday in November.

If we are to admit to the power of Thanksgiving, we should look to its variety of expression through the centuries, particularly the attitudes of those descendents from the first autumn banquet. I'm not thinking of the Pilgrim-Puritan heritage which has punctuated our history and our government — rather the Indian world of religious perception and influence, writing its own history and story, century by century.

In the new book "Enchanted Temples of Taos" (Rydal Press) Dora Vasquez tells the true story of her near-grandmother of Navajo descent, Rosario. All of her life she had been an Indian slave to the Spanish in Northern New Mexico. Her past had been nearly erased by separation from her people. Later years were spent as a domestic in the home of a priest, who one day called her in and told her, in Spanish, that Abraham Lincoln had just signed the Emancipation Proclamation. He handed her a picture of the great President — the first time she had ever heard or seen anything about this accomplishment. Now approaching 100 years of age, she entered a tiny chapel, with picture in hand and turned, in thanksgiving, to the presence of God:

"Though she had not been religious before this time, she took Abraham Lincoln's picture and placed it among the saints on the altar. He was the greatest saint to her, she looked at it again and went out a different person. Abraham Lincoln never knew that even in these hidden places he was cherished as a great man."

Lamb is right — there are many events in life, even daily, that the thoughtful and perceptive person can offer silent petitions of thanks, sentences of praise for the glistening moments that enrich everyone. In his recent volume, "Diary of Daily Prayer," Barrie Shepherd has the suggestion that gratitude is the most universal emotion among people and that we ought to not only be able to express this feeling on the "official" days but in "the hidden joys, the tiny discoveries, the lesser celebrations" which confirm the wonder of life.

If Thanksgiving has the force and persuasion of religious emotion, it will be found in every arena of life, and be felt in a rich variety of expressions. The Indian culture abounds with the senstivity and gratitude of praise for Creation. An ancient Arapahoe invocation, sent to me by Henry J. Reemtsma, has been chanted for centuries by this Indian tribe at the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming, (with translation by Benjamin Friday and William Shakespeare):

O Father, Great Spirit
O Four Old Men and the keeper of the Sacred Pipe.
O Morning Star and all good things of creation.
I mention these good things: the light of dawn, the good wind. the timber, the soil and the animals.
Listen: all you creatures under the ground — all the creatures above the ground, in the air and in the water.
May our boys and girls, our children of all ages —
May our grown men and women and all our elders
May they increase and be strengthened.
O Father Creator, We ask the blessing on the food
And we ask for all people the growth of loving hearts and a happy life and harmony.

Thanksgiving, when linked to a loving Father, is not only powerful but eternal. It gathers all the emotions of family life, all the sentiments of history, all the pride of a people's past, blending race and culture and creed, and royally proclaims what the Psalmist shouted thousands of years ago, "Let everything that hath breath praise the lord!"

The public forum

Crime not printed

Dear Editor:

I enjoy reading the letters in your public forum. I think it is a great help to read other people's views. I wish to describe an incident I had a few days ago in Pomona. I went to my bank and cashed a check and was walking out to the parking lot where my car was parked.

Two men walking near came up behind me, grabbed me by the belt and jerked out my billfold and took what money I had. Some bystanders called the police for me. It took over 20 minutes for them to arrive. By that time the robbers had driven off in their car. A witness got a good description of the car as it drove away.

The police seemed reluctant to talk to the witness but finally did. The police didn't get my name, didn't seem interested in the case. They gave me a form to file a report. After they left I filled it in and took it to the front desk at the police station. I returned to the station the next day and the report was still lying on the front desk where I turned it in.

Nothing was in the newspaper about this crime but there was a big article about a crime in Ontario. Why are we keeping all the Pomona crimes out of the paper? Doesn't the public have a right to know what is going on in the city in which we live. We may need to make changes at election time. — L. D. L., Pomona

Players good, play not

Dear Editor:

Who is responsible for the degrading and demoralizing of a cast and crew of 16 students who participated in a recent school play at Upland High? Who directed the students in the play, "And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little", which has a script containing vulgar, crude, profane language, and which demeans and ridicules those in the teaching profession?

Although the young actors and actresses are to be complimented for their fine performance, the concept of the play was very debasing.

Isn't it time for the School Board and the Administration to take careful scrutiny of the teachers being hired and the learning materials which are being foisted onto the young people? Perhaps on the streets of San Francisco among the peddlers of pornography, one could expect this type of thing, but at a high school?

Is it any wonder at Upland High, that the students are so disrespectful, that a graduation exercise cannot be held without disruption from the students? — A very concerned parent, Eileen T. Olson, Upland

Just in jest

Here's a Bicentennial flashback which will probably never be included in those, "That's the way it was 200 years ago," television vignettes being broadcast these days.

Two hundred years ago our forefathers signed a Declaration of Independence in which they stated:

"We hold these truths to be self evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among them are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

And after we'd fought and won a Revolutionary War to prove those words were no idle threat, there were still 500,000 slaves in America. —Yes, that's the way it was 200 years ago.

Paul Harvey

The gelded generation

This is a gelded generation. For urbanites, let me explain that a gelding is a horse which travels with the mare herd — in an advisory capacity only. Perhaps the men of our youth never were so tall as we remember them — yet we do remember them.

In my own profession, we remember Walter Lippmann and Walter Winchell, Ed Murrow and Elmer Davis, Henry Kaltenborn, Boake Carter — the purposeful boat-rockers.

In entertainment the macho-man is out of fashion. We have become a dress-alike neutered gender, an amalgamated generation.

Where midst the military could find even one Douglas MacArthur or George Patton — a Billy Mitchell, an Omar Bradley, a Bull Halsey?

Vermont Royster, scanning the two ends of Pennsylvania Ave., asks the same question: Where today are there men to match the stature of the ghosts?

Franklin D. Roosevelt, loved or hated, bestrode his times like a colossus. Harry Truman, Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy were at least forceful men. When they spoke we listened. Even yesteryear's losers would tower over today's winners — for example, Tom Dewey, Adlai Stevenson.

And where in Congress is there even one Bob Taft who commands respect on both sides of the aisle? Or an Arthur Vandenburg of Michigan, Carl George of Georgia, Carter Glass of Virginia, William Borah of Idaho, George Norris of Nebraska and Everett Dirksen of Illinois?

Granted, time puts a patina on the past, but it is difficult to find their like today. As Royster says, House Speaker Albert and Senate Leader Mansfield are nice men, but one cannot lead the Senate nor the other the House.

Where are the men who made the bells ring? What bells ring for the Jacksons, Sanfords, Udalls, Schapps, Shrivers and Birch Bayhs? Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the Democrat-most-likely, is a rerun left over from the days when we had stature to spare.

Does the forthrightness for which we remember Sam Rayburn and Alben Barkley and Harry Truman run for cover from the slings and arrows of today's exponents of mediocrity?

Are we now so prone to distrust anyone who does not stay in line, march in step? Then the axiom said: "Dare to win or lose it all!" The axiom now says, "Don't make waves." Today in business and industry Horatio Alger is straitjacketed by his own lawyers and red-taped to immobility by Lilliputian bureaucrats.

Politicians have suggested that time of detente call for moderators, compromisers, milquetoasts. An historian sees these times rather as crying out for excellence, for uncommonness, for mountain-movers! Where are today's men deserving to be tomorrow's statues? Perhaps coming up from under, filling the void, the next giants will be women — or a reasonable facsimile.

Ann Landers

Thanksgiving day letter

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago on Thanksgiving Day, you printed a beautiful letter from a daughter thanking God for the wonderful father she had just lost. I always regretted not clipping that column and now I am asking you to hunt it up and run it again. This time it will have even more meaning to me because I lost my own beloved father just a few days ago. Thank you, Ann. I know you'll come through. — Your Long-Time Friend In Cleveland

Dear Friend: I do recall the letter and here it is — once again on Thanksgiving Day.

Dear Ann Landers: A great man died today. He wasn't a world leader or a famous doctor or a war hero or a sports figure or a business tycoon. But he was a great man. He was my father.

He didn't get his picture in the paper for heading up committees. I guess you might say he was a person who never cared for credit or honors. He did corny things — like pay his bills on time, go to church on Sunday, and hold an office in the P.T.A. He helped his kids with their homework and drove his wife to the shopping center to do the grocery buying on Thursday night. He enjoyed hauling his kids and their friends to and from football games. He enjoyed simple things — a picnic in the park, country music, mowing the grass, and running with the dog.

Tonight is the first night of my life without him. I don't know what to do with myself so I am writing to you. I am sorry now for the times I didn't show him the proper respect. But I am thankful for many things. I am thankful because God let me have him for 15 years. And I am thankful that I was able to let him know how much I loved him. He died with a smile on his face. He knew he was a success as a husband and a father, a son, a brother and a friend. I wonder how many millionaires can say that? Thanks for listening, Ann Landers. You've been a great help. — His Daughter

Dear Ann Landers: I have been laughing for several days about that column with all those readers suggesting ways to peel onions without shedding a tear. I hope it's not too late to get into the act. Here's my sure-fire, 100-per cent-foolproof method for peeling onions. I learned it from my grandmother.

Put the onions in a basket. Take them outside where a good breeze is blowing. Get a milk stool out of the barn to sit on. Put your bare feet in a pan which you have filled with cold water. Peel just the outside skin off the onion — starting at the bottom. Always look up — never at the onion. When it is peeled drop it in the pan beside your feet.

When all the onions are peeled take them in the house and get a long cellophane bag. With the onion and knife in your hand, pull the cellophane bag well up over your hand and put a tight rubber band around your wrist. Slice the onion and slip the bag off your hand. It's guaranteed, Ann. Not a tear in a bushel basket! Try it and let me know how you make out. — Just Call Me Bill

Dear Bill: It sounds fine — providing you have (a) a good breeze blowing, (b) a milk stool, (c) you live in a house and not an apartment, (d) you have a long cellophane bag, (e) you want to go to all that trouble — which I'm not sure I do. But those who wish to try it — be my guest.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Girl's neck tells much

If a girl's neck is particularly slender, it's obvious she's inexperienced in physical romance. Or so believed the ancient Greeks. They were under the impression that they could tell just by looking at a bride's neck whether she could go to the altar in a white dress, so to speak. Our Love and War man regards that notion as a dark mark on the history of human understanding. Many a young lady of large collar was defamed by such sad nonsense, says he, morosely.

THERE ARE 10 times as many lightning storms over land as over sea. Can you explain why? Neither can I. But orbiting satellites prove it.

EGGS

Q. "Why are the incubators in chicken hatcheries rigged to change the tilt of the eggs every so often?"

A. To keep the embryos from sticking to the egg shells. It's nothing new. Mother hens have been doing that ever since mother hens.

DOG

If you want to comb, brush or otherwise gussy up your dog, put the animal up on a table. That's the counsel of a professional canine currier. Evidently there's something about the altitude that simmers down a pup. Oftentimes a squirmy pet that won't behave when you bend over it will hold steady for you when you get it up on an eye-to-eye level.

START WITH a nugget of gold about the size of a lima bean. Flatten it into a square-yard sheet by pounding on it 30,000 times with a brass mallet. Done? All right, you've just duplicated the routine chore of Thailand's professional gold pounders. They work 10 hours a day, six days a week, to earn maybe $120 a month, if they're particularly nifty at the job. What I find curious about that occupation is its limited longevity. The work takes too much out of the men. There are no professional gold pounders in Thailand over the age of 40.

YOU'VE seen pictures of the oryx antelope with those long horns as sharp as daggers. Client inquires if they ever gore one another. No, they readily spear such beasts of prey as big cats when attacked by same. But in fights with one another, they only clash and clatter with those horns, never thrusting them. Odd bit. They've got this built-in thing against skewering their own kind.

Bowling balls okay for lions

DEAR DR. MILLER: This article I just read recommended bowling balls as toys for lions. Aren't they dangerous? — S.N.

DEAR S.M.: No, lions aren't dangerous if they have the proper environment which, incidentally, is never the home of Homo sapiens. Bowling balls aren't dangerous for lions or other large exotic cats since they're one of the few really indestructible balls they can play with. Most others, if small enough, may be swallowed whole or, if larger, are torn to shreds and pieces may be swallowed. This playful procedure is dangerous since intestinal obstructions — frequently fatal — often result.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rex used to wake me up every morning by snuffling in my ear. These mornings, I have to wake him up. What do you think that means? — B.B.

DEAR B.B.: First of all, is Rex acting lethargic during the day? Could it be he's slowing down all the time a little? If so, an insidious illness may be the problem. If he's generally lethargic, a checkup is indicated. Is he, as far as you know, more active than usual during the day? Perhaps he's into late TV or suffering from insomnia. Maybe his biological clock never caught up with Standard Time. The above are possible answers to a tough question, presuming Rex is a canine or feline? Otherwise, the list may or may not require modification. . .

DEAR DR. MILLER: My sister's cat doctor has recommended drilling holes in the cat's head for a sinus infection. Sounds barbaric to me. I wouldn't want anybody to drill holes in my cat's head. Even then he won't guarantee to cure the poor cat. What's the use then? Sounds like tribal medicine to me. Ugh! — S.E.

DEAR S.E.: Chronic nasal and sinus infections are common and, unfortunately, even more difficult to treat in cats than they are in humans. The best way to avoid these unhappy conditions is to treat vigorously any "cold" or upper respiratory infection which afflicts your feline. Trying to let these infections "run their course" because the cat does not seem at death's door allows them to become established chronic infections which may stubbornly resist treatment, even with massive doses of antibiotics. Drilling sinus openings for direct treatment of the affected areas (trethining) is admittedly drastic but it is often an effective method. Unfortunately, even this approach doesn't work in many stubborn, chronic cases.

Honeymoons for hall of fame

A Honeymoon Hall of Fame is being established at a resort hotel in the Poconos.

According to publicity, a heart-shaped alcove will feature photos, mementos and memorabilia of famed loving couples of history and fiction.

To date, they have included a recording of the Duke of Windsor's history-making declaration of love in which he renounced the British throne, early cartoons of Blondie and Dagwood, and film clips of Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. (If they could only get the drip-dry wedding dress.)

Next to hot chicken soup, a tattoo of an anchor on your chest, and penicillin, I consider a honeymoon one of the most overrated events in the world.

It's one of those awkward times when you know everyone else had a better time than you did but you're too proud to admit it.

It boggles the mind to imagine how they are going to determine who will enter the Honeymoon Hall of Fame and for what reasons, but here are a few nominations.

Ruth and Walter, who enjoyed the shortest honeymoon in history. Ruth shot him in the leg at the reception for fooling around with the maid of honor.

Sue and Ted for the most unique honeymoon in history. While Sue swam, danced, played tennis and shopped, Ted ice fished, skiied, played cards and drank with the boys. While separate honeymoons don't work for everyone, it worked for Sue and Ted.

Laura and Stewart the couple who were the greatest sports on their honeymoon. Right after the wedding, Laura discovered Stewart was out on bail for armed robbery, was coming down with three-day measles, was already married, has a 12-year-old son who sets fires, and had taken out $75,000 worth of life insurance on her at the reception, but what the heck, as Laura explained, "Honeymoons are always a time of adjustment."

Yvonne and Burt: The longest honeymoon in history. For three years Yvonne and Burt shared bliss. They anticipated one another's moods, thought only of each other's comfort, and never went to bed on a harsh word. The honeymoon was so successful, they plan to be married in June.

Symptoms don't spell gout

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please give me some information on gout? My daughter has what some doctors say are symptoms of gout. She is in her early 30s.

Her ankles and top of her feet swell real full, and she has pain in the back of her heel, in the cords.

She only takes water pills which decrease the swelling just a little. She has had the acid test, and it was high, but now down to normal. She is in perfect health otherwise. Should they give other tests or what treatment is there for it?

DEAR RADER — I am not convinced that your daughter has gout on the basis of the information you have given me. Gout causing symptoms in young women is quite rare. More often women may have a high uric acid level but only about 10 per cent develop bone and joint symptoms of gout. Men are the usual victims.

Women do have gout and apparently may transmit various hereditary factors that pass the disorder on to off-spring, hence the tendency for a high family incidence of gout in those affected.

The typical gout attack is not as you describe your your daughter's problem. For more information on gout that you asked for you: can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. That issue will give you a run down on the various levels of uric acid and their meaning and the current thinking about the treatment and management of gout, including the current ideas about diet for gout.

Incidentally, gout is not treated by taking water pills. Sometimes water pills will cause an acute attack of gout. This is another reason that I doubt that your daughter's doctors really think she has gout pains.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wonder if there is any known reason why so many women have kidney infections.

DEAR READER — Most of those infections are not of the kidney, but the bladder. The infection gets into the bladder easily through the short urethra. The man is protected by the relatively longer urethra. That's anatomy for you, and it does make a difference. Men may also get some protection from an antibacterial substance apparently formed by the prostate gland.

The location of the female urethra makes it easy to be injured or irritated with normal family life. This may permit the onset of a urinary tract infection.

Then as a woman gets older and her muscles relax, the emptying of the bladder may not be perfect, and this leads to infection. Even the decrease in female hormones with age may cause changes in the character of the cells of the bladder that make it easier for an infection to get started.

The kidneys can become infected secondarily by spread of an infection from the bladder, but that is considerably less common.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Friday, Nov. 28

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Bargains or agreements today will be advantageous to you, provided they're in an area where you have some past experience.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you apply yourself today, you have the ability to focus your talents toward a profitable end. Concentrate on things that bring reward.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a commanding air about you today. It will draw the respect of others. They'll go along with you and welcome even the little prods you give.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Complex tasks won't faze you today, nor will knotty problems. You field everything — and make it look easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're equipped for problems that challenge the brain, not brawn, today. Others will find you're tops in utilizing the old gray matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be a very profitable day if you are dealing with those you can trust and with whom you have realized a profit in the past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you may get the idea that people aren't listening to your ideas, they are. They will give you credit when your leads bear fruit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For best results, keep your commercial dealings to yourself today. Don't let others know your financial position or what you're aiming for.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your very presence will have a catalytic effect on contemporaries who are around you today. They'll enjoy following your example.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can be very successful today in competitive situations. The opposition will find it hard to overtake you. You'll know instinctively what power they have.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your powers of observation today permit you to learn what others have in mind. You will later use this knowledge to your advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Thinking in bold terms and following through with plans you have weighed carefully will pay off in extra income soon.

YOUR BIRTHDAY. NOV. 28

You will make some friends this coming year who will prove very valuable in developing your image. Two in particular will be the type of pals who stick by through thick and thin.

Opening lead — 3 ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The student gasped when the Professor won the first trick with the ace of hearts over East's queen.

The Professor knocked out East's ace of clubs and claimed the balance after West cashed three heart tricks.

"Why didn't you duck the first heart?" asked the student, after the Professor had chalked up the rubber.

"I couldn't afford to," replied the Professor. "If I could have depended on my opponents to keep leading hearts everything would have been fine. I could have made an extra trick. But someone might have shifted to a spade and I would have chucked my contract."

"Suppose West had made the tricky opening lead of the lowest card of a five-card suit?" asked the student.

"I would have paid off," replied the professor. "West might well have done that, but he would have needed five hearts first."
